PANAMA CITY, Jan. 2.—Gov. Inocencio Galindo of Colon province, Mayor Hernandez of Colon, Police Chief Arias and Second Vice President Carlos Lopez, who defied the new rebel government of Panama, were arrested and placed in jail in Colon tonight. This coup was engineered by Dr. Vasquez with three others, who flew over and rallied supporters for the new administration.

PANAMA CITY, Jan. 2.—With the new year only two days old, the republic of Panama staged a brief and bloodless revolution, and President Florencio Arosemena joined the ranks of Latin-American chief executives deposed by armed force during 1930. Tonight he is the prisoner of a military junta at the home of his cousin, Dunlago Diaz, one of the revolt leaders. Also jailed are Archibaldo Boyd, governor of the province of Panama; Ricardo Arango, head of the police, and other government officials.

An official rebel bulletin issued this afternoon said the revolt had cost 10 lives and 14 wounded. Among the wounded is Hartwell Ayres, 29, an American newspaper man and a brother of Col. Harry M. Ayres, publisher of the Anniston (Ala.) Star. Mr. Ayres is at the Gorgas hospital and his surgeon said his condition was critical. Bullets had pierced his neck and abdomen and broken his pelvis.

Mr. Ayres was shot while he lay between the two factions as they were shooting up a side street near the president's palace. Mr. Ayres lay behind a heap of captured police equipment 50 feet from the palace for about two hours before he was picked up. Apparently both sides shot at the heap, believing it to be a barricade.

Call Envoy in U. S. to Presidency.

President Arosemena's last official act before abdicating was to give a semblance of constitutionality to the upheaval by appointing Dr. Harmodio Arias, one of the leaders of the revolt, to form a new government. The military junta then sent a cable to Ricardo Alfaro, Panama's minister in the United States, asking him to return from Washington and take over the presidency.

The revolt had been carefully planned. While the city was celebrating the birth of the new year, young revolutionaries went around quietly cutting telephone lines. Their sabotage was not discovered until armed forces launched a double attack, one on the presidential palace and the other on the headquarters of the national police. The city awoke to the sound of heavy firing. The police returned the fire of the insurgents, but their resistance was short lived and the rebels soon gained both their objectives. Sniping continued until after dawn.

Capture President by Ruse.

President Arosemena was captured by a ruse at about 6:30 a. m. A band of rebels who had gathered in an adjoining house climbed from its balcony into the presidential palace through a second floor window. They seized Señor Arosemena and then attacked the police guard on the floor below.

The Supreme court in session this afternoon approved of the appointment of Dr. Arias as provisional president, pending the return of Señor Alfaro. Señor Alfaro until Oct. 1 last year was first of Panama's three vice presidents. Reports from Washington tonight indicated that he had accepted his country's call to assume the presidency.

Dr. Arias tonight named the following as members of his provisional cabinet: Foreign minister, Francisco Arias Paredes; finance and treasury, Ernique Jimenez; undersecretary of state, Dr. J. J. Vallarino; public works, Dr. Ramon Mora; education, J. M. Guiros.

City Becomes Normal.

Panama City tonight had settled down to normalcy, although business houses closed all day and civilian riflemen are parading the streets. Occasional autos are seen carrying American and foreign flags, denoting that the occupants are ministers, consuls, or perhaps private foreign citizens.

Enrique Linares, manager of the National Bank of Panama and a close friend of the fallen president, has been jailed by the rebel junta. Gov. Anguilla of the rich province of Chiriqui, who happened to be on a visit to the

FAMED SOLDIER LOSES IN LONG BATTLE FOR LIFE

Succumbs After His Foot Is Amputated.

PARIS, Jan. 3 (Saturday).—(A.P.)—Marshal Joffre died at 8:23 a. m. (Paris time) today. (2:33 a. m. Chicago time.)

At 8:30 a. m. Capt. Saint Cernin emerged from the hospital where the marshal has been at death's door for days and said to reporters, "The marshal is dead." Then he displayed a bulletin signed by the marshal's physicians.

HAD MADE A RALLY.

Early last night a cable dispatch from Paris to THE TRIBUNE told of a rally observed in the condition of the aged soldier. Minister of War Louis Barthou, a close friend of the family, arrived at the hospital at 6:30 p. m. and remained in the marshal's room for more than an hour, believing that he was witnessing the marshal's last moments.

The aged patient scarcely breathed, and his hands, which hitherto even in coma have strongly grasped the coverlet, lay limp and lifeless. It was one of several alarming respiratory lapses marking the late afternoon and early evening, accompanied by the first signs of heart weakness.

At 10:30 p. m. Gen. Issaly, chief of Marshal Joffre's staff, and Col. Fabry, who accompanied the marshal on his American tour, were satisfied that there was no immediate danger of death and left the hospital.

His Vitality Amazing.

"The death agony can last several hours more," Dr. Rene Leriche said in the afternoon. "The end will be signaled a half to three-quarters of an hour beforehand by the speeding up of his pulse, which is now running at 140.

"His amazing vitality is due to the excellent condition of his system on account of his not having absorbed a single drop of alcohol (by alcohol the French mean hard liquor, not counting wines, of which the marshal has always generously helped himself) during the last 30 years. He never has been sick before and he never took drugs or medicines."

HERO OF THE MARNE

Creasy, the English historian, years ago wrote his "Fifteen Decisive Battles of the World." The sixteenth—the first battle of the Marne—was won by Gen. Joseph Jacques Cesaire Joffre, commander of the French armies in the west during the great war. Ending a series of disheartening retreats, after four days and nights of incessant fight, he stopped 2,500,000 Germans and drove them back when they were within thirty miles of Paris.

"I mean to deliver the big battle under the most favorable conditions, at my own time, and on the ground I have chosen," Joffre declared to his generals. "If necessary I shall continue to retreat. I shall bide my time. No consideration whatever will make me alter my plans."

Joffre Saves Paris.

The onward sweep of the Germans through Belgium, Luxemburg, and Lorraine toward the French capital had reached high tide on Sept. 5, 1914, despite the gallant defense of Liege, the stand at Mons-Namur-Charlerol, and a counter invasion of Alsace-Lorraine. Flushed with success, opposed by a numerically inferior force which had continually yielded ground, the Germans had every expectation of capturing Paris and, France, once smashed, of turning their strength to finish the then menacing Russia. The French government, meanwhile, had moved to Bordeaux.

Joffre decided to strike on Sept. 6 with fast and furious flank attacks, following the terrific frontal onslaughts of the enemy. The German right wing, under Gen. Alexander von Kluck, checked by Joffre's unexpected and tremendous counter offensive, fell back upon the Aisne river on Sept. 10 and extended itself northward through Picardy, Artois, and Flanders to the Belgian coast. Paris was saved and Joffre was acclaimed the hero of France.

STOCK PRICES AND GRAINS START UP WITH THE NEW YEAR

New York, Jan. 2.—[Special.]—A wave of New Year's buying swept over financial markets today in the first trading session of 1931 and stocks, cotton, grains, and bonds moved upward for substantial gains.

Gains of $1 to $5 a share were distributed throughout the stock exchange list at the close. United States Steel touched 142, up nearly 3 points, and General Motors, Consolidated Gas, American Can, and other leaders of the list recorded advances of 2 to 3 points.

Cotton advanced more than $1 a bale, July wheat sold up 2½ cents a bushel in the Chicago pit, and corn moved up for gains of about 3 cents a bushel.

CHERBOURG, France, Jan. 2.—Mary McCormic, formerly prima donna with the Chicago Civic Opera, gayly confirmed that she was married to Prince Serge Mdvani, former husband of the screen actress, Pola Negri, when she debarked here this evening from the liner Olympic and hastened to the cable desk in the Maritime station to send a message to her Georgian husband in Venice, Cal.

The marriage took place in America as soon as it was learned the Paris tribunal had granted Pola Negri a final decree of divorce from the prince, she said. She declined to give further information as to exactly when and where the ceremony occurred. Her husband has oil interests in California, she said.

The singer will remain in Paris throughout the month of January and is to appear at the Opera Comique during her stay. She will go to Florence next month.

WOMAN KILLED BY GOLD TOOTH IN HER LUNG

A gold tooth, which slipped down her throat three weeks ago while she was under an anesthetic, caused the death yesterday of Mrs. Minnie Teufel, 31 years old, 3236 West 62d street, mother of three children. Mrs. Teufel died in the Chicago hospital from pneumonia caused by the gold tooth.

Mrs. Teufel was brought to the hospital on Dec. 30 by Dr. Haldane Cleminson. The next day the gold crown was removed from her lung, but inflammation had already caused pneumonia. According to her son, Jack, 11 years old, Mrs. Teufel complained of pains in her chest after having some teeth extracted while under an anesthetic. Members of the family said they did not know who the dentist was.

Parishioners Stand Guard to Keep Pastor

Avowing their intention of preventing the removal of their pastor, the Rev. Edward Kowaleski, a crowd of more than 200 parishioners gathered around the parish house of St. Mary Magdalene's Catholic church, 84th street and Saginaw avenue, last night, and refused to permit visitors and others within 100 feet of the grounds.

The guard, voluntarily recruited from among the 2,000 parishioners, who are largely Polish, acted on unconfirmed reports that the priest had received an order from Cardinal Mundelein transferring him from the pastorate. Father Kowaleski has been pastor of the church for the last 20 years.

Some Carry Clubs.

It was a hostile gathering which greeted investigators, and clubs and pieces of pipe, apparently impromptu weapons, were in evidence in the hands of a number of the self-appointed guardians. Several visitors tried to approach the rectory, but were either driven away or advised to keep at a distance. Strangers were followed, and one was pursued in a taxicab for more than half a mile. One leader of the patrol expressed the sentiment of the parishioners.

"Father Kowaleski has been here 20 years," he said. "He has built this church from a tiny place to what it now is. He has built the school for our children. We love him, he loves us, and now he is to be removed. We will not allow him to go, and we will remain here to see he is not taken away."

People Flock to Church.

Earlier in the afternoon when word spread through the parish that Father Kowaleski was to leave, little groups of his congregation collected in front of the church and residence. Many little children appeared also, accompanied by their fathers and mothers, who, as children, had received the elderly priest's ministrations. Father Kowaleski noted the sentiment. He called in several of the more active parishioners. He wanted no demonstration, he said, nor did he desire any moves to hinder the church's order. Later the crowds increased and men took posts as guards. He again exhorted them to disband, but his wishes were ignored.

Efforts to reach the pastor at his residence were met with his refusal to discuss the reported order. He could not commit himself on the subject, a spokesman for him said.

Force Woman's Auto to Curb; Rob Her of Jewels

Two gunmen riding in a coupe forced Mrs. Ina Hood, 2631 East 74th street, to the curb in her car at Coles avenue and 73d street, and robbed her of $1,000 in jewelry, and $100 in cash, early this morning. She was returning to her home from the loop.

TWO ARRESTED ON VETERANS' RACKET CHARGE

Milton Kohn, owner of a restaurant at 105 East Walton place, and Howard Overton, 1244 North Dearborn street, were under arrest last night, accused by Assistant State's Attorney Charles J. Mueller of instigating a veterans' racket.

They were arrested in room 1030 of the State-Lake building, the headquarters of "Buddies' Federation of Veterans," where about thirty solicitors had been hired, it was said, to sell tickets for a "grand patriotic ball," to be held at the First Regiment armory on Feb. 22. Kohn said he had intended to divide the money collected among destitute veterans' families. He is not an ex-service man himself, he admitted.

Few of the tickets had been sold, Mueller said, but a long list of prospects was found in the headquarters.

BULLETS RIDDLE AUTOMOBILE OF 'ALKY' PEDDLER

Gangsters shooting from a small automobile riddled the car of Adam Vidzes, 4511 South St. Louis avenue, as it stood in front of his house late last night. Both shotgun slugs and pistol bullets were fired into the machine. Three men riding in a sedan did the shooting. They were pursued for several blocks by Motorcycle Policeman James Oakey of the Brighton Park police, but the fugitive car escaped when his machine skidded on a slippery street.

According to Lieut. Archie Kane of the Brighton Park station, who investigated the shooting, Vidzes admitted he "used to peddle alky," and the police believed the shooting was a warning that he had been encroaching on others' territory.

Try First N.Y. to Paris Cargo Flight Today

BULLETIN.

New York, Jan. 3 (Saturday)—(Special.)—At an early hour this morning indications were that William S. Maclaren, former lieutenant in the naval air service, and Mrs. Beryl Hart would hop off from North Beach, Queens, between 5:10 and 6 a. m. today, headed for Bermuda and the Azores, with a landing in the Seine at Paris on Monday as their ultimate goal.

New York, Jan. 2.—[Special.]—Capt. William S. MacLaren and Mrs. Beryl Hart announced today that a little before daylight tomorrow they will fly from Glenn H. Curtiss airport at North Beach, Queens, on a two-stop trip for Paris. Theirs will be the first attempt at a trans-Atlantic flight with a cargo-laden plane.

It's Not a Stunt Flight.

The flyers explained that the trip is being made to demonstrate what they believe to be the feasibility of round trip air transportation between the United States and Europe over the southern route if stops are made at Bermuda and the Azores. They said they expected to be in Paris about forty hours after leaving North Beach. Their object is to demonstrate that ocean flying can be "taken out of the stunt class and put upon sound commercial basis," they announced.

The flight, with 200 pounds of food products aboard, will be in the white specially built cabin monoplane the Trade Wind, equipped with pontoons. Mrs. Hart, a New York widow, will act as co-pilot with Capt. MacLaren, who is an Annapolis graduate.

Postponed Since Oct. 9.

The flight originally was set for Oct. 9, but for one reason or another was postponed from time to time. Capt. MacLaren and Mrs. Hart arrived at North Beach last September. Since that time they have been busy checking their ship and testing and verifying their instruments. The ship has a gasoline capacity of 400 gallons, but because of the stops planned will not be loaded to capacity.

The flyers said they would proceed due south along the Atlantic seaboard, stopping at Bermuda to refuel and check their motor. This done they will start for the Azores, where the refueling and checking will be repeated. The flyers then will set out for Le Bourget field.

DICE FOR $1,000 AGAINST GIRL'S HONOR JAILS HIM

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 2.—[Special.]—Accused of rolling dice with an 18 year old girl with $1,000 as his stake against her honor, Don Courtney, president of the Metropolitan Automobile association, and ex-convict, was held on $5,000 bail today for hearing on a statutory charge Jan. 7.

Police say Courtney admitted intimacy with Mary Beth Hull, 17, and Betty Totman, 18, in his home in this city. The girls are chums at a local school.

Miss Totman told police she met Courtney in a Hollywood hotel after school one day and went to his room.

"Don showed me ten $1,000 bills and dared me to make a bet of myself against the $1,000. I rolled a pair of dice just for fun three times and I won. Then we played in earnest and I lost.

"He told me I didn't have to pay then, but I said I would have expected to take the $1,000 if I had won, and so was ready to pay my bet. He collected and then I went home in a taxicab."

Miss Hull said she visited Courtney at his home after several months' acquaintance. She said Courtney gave her $50 at various times, "which I used for spending money, besides several pieces of jewelry."

MRS. EDGE HURT AS SEAS BUFFET S. S. LEVIATHAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CHERBOURG, France, Jan. 2.—The Leviathan anchored at roadstead here at 6 o'clock tonight after the worst battering from the seas in her history. Several passengers suffered minor injuries. Among the injured is Mrs. Walter E. Edge, wife of the American ambassador to Paris, who was painfully bruised.

The big ship took a hammering despite the fact that it avoided the worst storm area by taking the southern route, which is 240 miles longer. On New Year's eve a mountainous wave struck the vessel broadside, throwing the celebrating passengers off their feet and smashing the furniture. Mrs. Edge was pinned under a table.

The British liner Olympic, which boldly kept her course on the northern route, was due at 7 p. m., but had not arrived at midnight.

4 RAIL LINES SIGN 8 BILLION MERGER PACT

Divide 60 Miles in East; Up to I. C. C.

New York, Jan. 2.—[Special.]—After five years of negotiation and controversy, the presidents of the eastern trunk lines formally announced today a plan for consolidating the chief railroads in their territories into four great systems. With a mileage of about 60,000, these roads comprise about one-fifth the mileage of the entire country. Each of the four enlarged systems will be worth about two billion dollars.

The announcement was made through the issuance of a copy of a letter which has been sent to the interstate commerce commission. The officials, who met here in the offices of W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania railroad, informed the commission of the contents of the letter by telephone before making it public.

Signed by Four Conferees.

It is signed by Gen. Atterbury; P. E. Crowley, president of the New York Central railroad; Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, and J. J. Bernet, president of the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad.

Each of the railroads whose presidents signed the letter will become a basis for an enlarged trunk line.

While the plan, as announced today, is the culmination of many years of effort, its completion at this time is the result of the influence brought to bear by President Hoover. Important construction by the eastern roads has in many cases been deferred because of the uncertainty as to their future under a plan of general consolidation, which, it was known, eventually must be devised.

Expected to Aid Business.

It was the belief of the Hoover administration that an agreement on consolidation would be of benefit, not only to the railroads but to the country as a whole, by stimulating industry and, hence, general business.

The agreement of the eastern presidents is "interdependent and could not have been reached upon any different basis of allocation," it is stated in the letter, which further relates that "in order to reach a common understanding it has repeatedly been necessary for all of the interests involved to make concessions."

It is pointed out that the plan calls for four systems instead of the five outlined by the commission in its final plan, but the letter suggests that the four party allocation is "in accordance with what we conceive to be the principles followed by the commission in its five party plan."

How Roads Will Fare.

The New York Central will receive the Delaware, Lackawanna, and Western railroad and a direct connection with the Virginian railway.

The Pennsylvania will receive the Wabash, Detroit, Toledo, and Ironton and the Norfolk and Western and certain rights over the Lehigh valley. Rights on the Nickel Plate will go to the Pennsylvania under arbitration.

To the Baltimore and Ohio will go the Ann Arbor, Reading, Central Railroad of New Jersey, Western Maryland, Buffalo, Rochester, and Pittsburgh, Buffalo and Susquehanna, Lehigh and Hudson River, and the Chicago and Alton.

Nickel Plate Lineup.

The Chesapeake and Ohio allocation comprises the Nickel Plate, Hocking Valley, Erie, Bessemer and Lake Erie, Pere Marquette, Wheeling and Lake Erie, Chicago and Eastern Illinois, and the Lehigh Valley.

Allocation of the Ann Arbor to the B. & O. previously had not been indicated. This will give the B. & O. an entrance into Michigan which it would have received if plans it formerly furthered for acquisition of the Wabash had been carried through. The Wabash now controls the Ann Arbor.

While this division of the eastern railroads represents a triumph for the Chesapeake and Ohio and Baltimore and Ohio, the two roads which stood to gain most by consolidation, it also means the collapse of other schemes for consolidation put forward by ambitious railroad heads.

Loree Road Cut Into Four.

The fifth system proposed by the commission in its final plan had previously two proponents. One was L. F. Loree, pugnacious head of the Delaware and Hudson railroad, and the other was William H. Williams, former chief lieutenant of Mr. Loree. First Mr. Loree and then Mr. Williams put forward plans for a fifth trunk system, and both received rebuffs which in the case of Mr. Loree caused him formally to abandon the plan. Frank E. and Charles F. Taplin of Cleveland also have pushed a fifth trunk plan.

Under the scheme announced today Mr. Loree's Delaware and Hudson will be divided among the four trunk lines. The Pittsburgh and West Virginia, which the Taplins formerly controlled but which in a time of financial stress they sold to the Pennsylvania interests, is due for like treatment.

N. Y. Central Enters Dixie.

Through receipt of the Lackawanna, the New York Central gains another first class line between New York and Buffalo. The New York Central already taps the ports of Boston and New York and through the Virginian railway connection it will reach the port of Norfolk.

Through Nickel Plate traffic rights, the Pennsylvania receives what it long desired—a line along the Lake Erie shore. Its present system now reaches points from Toledo to Buffalo by a system of branches which has been likened to a hand with fingers outstretched. The Detroit, Toledo and Ironton will give the Pennsylvania a line into the important manufacturing city of Detroit. The Wabash will provide an additional line running north of Lake Erie connecting Omaha and Kansas City with Buffalo.

B. & O. to Enter New York.

The Baltimore and Ohio will fulfill its chief ambition by receiving the Reading-Jersey Central system and thus for the first time will reach the port of New York over its own rails. The Ann Arbor will give the B. & O. an outlet into Michigan. The Western Maryland provides an important connection between the B. & O. and the Reading.

The Chesapeake and Ohio will obtain a first class high speed line between Buffalo and New York through the Lehigh Valley allocation. At present the C. & O. system reaches New York through the Erie railroad.

The other important roads named in the allocations were not the subjects of serious controversy.

Some Financial Aspects.

Financial plans incident to the new lineup have not yet been perfected but these details became known tonight:

The New York Central owns 26 per cent of the stock in the Reading, which in turn controls the Jersey Central. Sale of the Reading stock to the B. & O. had been agreed upon definitely since last summer. The B. & O. already owns 40 per cent of Reading stock.

The Pennsylvania, at a cost of $106,000,000, bought control of the Lehigh Valley and Wabash about three years ago. Under the agreement, the Pennsylvania sells the Lehigh Valley to the Chesapeake and Ohio, the Van Sweringen system. It also sells to the B. & O., the Ann Arbor, now controlled by the Wabash through stock ownership.

Share Pittsburgh Road.

The Pittsburgh and West Virginia, bought by the Pennroad corporation, investment affiliate of the Pennsylvania railroad, from the Taplins for $37,898,000, will be made available for the use of all the four trunk lines, thus providing them with a mutual entrance into Pittsburgh.

The Baltimore and Ohio had already brought under its control, or arranged for control, most of the roads it was assigned. It brought the Chicago and Alton last month and the Western Maryland some three years ago. On the other hand, it possessed no road seriously desired by another party to the conference.

Aim to Keep Wages Up.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 2.—[Special.]—In advocating the consolidation of eastern railroads into four main systems President Hoover, it was learned today, had in mind chiefly an adjustment of railroad costs which will enable the roads to meet the serious problems raised by increasing competition from motor trucks, waterways, and pipe lines. By grouping the eastern roads into four strong systems the theory is that much will be accomplished toward avoiding a prolonged period of depression of the railroads, a key industry affecting the prosperity of the entire country.

Those who have discussed the consolidation proposals with the administration have taken in account the growing belief that the railroads are facing serious difficulties on account of the competition of motor trucks, waterways, and pipe lines.

The building of pipe lines from the southwest to Chicago and to the east in particular is expected to take a large amount of business away from the railroads.

Economies Held Vital.

The railroads, according to the administration, must either reduce operating costs by mergers, unification of terminals and similar methods, or else cut wages.

The consolidations, it is argued, will make it possible for the railroads to increase their financial stability and ultimately reduce rates to meet the menacing competition.

ALDERMEN O. K. BUDGET FOR 1931 OF $67,000,000

Devise Scheme to Keep Within Revenues.

The council finance committee by a vote of 10 to 1 early this morning recommended to the city council for passage a budget of approximately $67,000,000 for 1931. The dissenting vote was cast by Ald. Jacob M. Arvey [24th], who had protested against a cut of $50,000 in the appropriation for the gas, oil committee of which he is chairman.

The budget figure was arrived at after the aldermen had increased City Controller Schmidt's estimate of miscellaneous revenues and cut some appropriations to take up an earlier overappropriation of $1,200,000.

In order to eliminate the overappropriation the committee added $995,000 to Schmidt's estimates of miscellaneous revenues and cut two council committees and five city departments by $177,000 to make a total of $1,172,070 toward the desired reduction. The paring still left $27,930 to be taken out, which the wearied aldermen left to the committee's staff for accomplishment.

The committee's action was taken after a debate of several hours in the early evening session. At that time the committee considered the possibility of appropriating salvage as a means of escape from cutting out a number of jobs from the budget to make the reduction. The only other alternative advanced was to raise the estimate of miscellaneous revenues.

Set Salvage at $1,100,000.

Salvage is the residue at the end of the year of appropriations that have not been expended by the city department heads. Over a period of 15 years the salvage has averaged 3 per cent of the total appropriations, but for 1930 was only 2 per cent or $1,100,000.

By setting up as revenue an estimated salvage of $1,100,000 as a source of revenue for this year the aldermen figure they will not have to make any cut in the number of jobs.

Harris Keeler of the bureau of public efficiency attacked the scheme of appropriating salvage as revenue. He maintained that the department heads are likely to use every cent given them and the city would have a 1931 deficit on its hands.

"I don't think that the committee will be criticized if we set up a 2½ per cent salvage as an item of revenue and appropriate against it," said Ald. Oscar F. Nelson [46th]. "If we do it will more than cover the $1,200,000 that we are now overappropriated. It is revenue in our possession and it has been set up before. I think that it is the only solution of our difficulties."

"It is not a good way to get a surplus," said John A. Richert, chief of the finance committee staff.

Bowler Suggests Method.

The alternative of hoisting Schmidt's estimate of miscellaneous receipts was suggested by Ald. James B. Bowler [25th]. He said it could be done by adding just a little sum to the estimates of each source of revenue with the understanding that the boost represents the potential salvage.

In answer to Mr. Keeler's question of how much the committee expected to add with safety Richert spoke of restricting transfers of money at the end of the year from unexpended accounts to other accounts in which money is needed. By doing so, he said, the salvage could be retained.

"Well," declared Mr. Keeler, "there is always talk about restricting transfers but when pressure is brought to bear it turns out differently."

One Proposes Saving.

Only one alderman, Ald. John J. Hoellen [47th], urged the committee to pare the various departmental appropriations. Other suggestions included the sale of city lands and the collection of back compensation from the Chicago Tunnel company. The last two ideas were turned down, as they would be items of revenue only for this year and the situation next year would be fully as bad.

In answer to Ald. Hoellen, Richert stated that the $1,200,000 could not be taken out of the budget without interfering with the services rendered by the city police, fire, health, and gas and electricity departments.

Revised figures of revenue and expenditures during 1930 were submitted to the committee by Schmidt showing that the city ended the year with a surplus of $944,662 instead of an earlier estimate of $435,286. The deficit of 1929, however, instead of being carried over into 1930 was taken up by an increased tax rate and a deficiency bond issue which were included in the financial relief legislation last July.

DISPUTED DODGE TAX OF $7,000,000 PAID IN PROTEST

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 2.—[Special.]—The government has just received $12,000,000 in back taxes which have been under dispute ever since sale of Dodge Brothers' plant in 1925.

The trustees admitted $5,000,000 was collectible, but sued concerning $7,000,000.

To avoid further interest payments at 6 per cent, the $12,000,000, including the disputed $7,000,000, has been paid under protest the last sixty days.

KILLED BY TRAIN

CARL DOEMAN.

HENRY BEDMAREK.

Henry Bedmarek, 12 years old, 1939 Webster avenue; Carl Doeman, 13 years old, 2904 North Francisco avenue, and Theodore Jensen, 13 years old, 2849 George street, on leaving the Jensen home last evening, decided to go to the Doeman boy's home to play.

They took a short cut over the Chicago and North Western elevated right of way near the Maplewood avenue station, not far from Diversey parkway. The trio climbed over a fence to the embankment, with Bedmarek and Doeman ahead. They paused as a northbound limited train passed.

Laughing, Henry and Carl signaled to their playmate a few yards behind and ran across the tracks. In another instant both were struck down and killed beneath the wheels of a suburban train, southbound to the loop. Brakeman V. C. Schramm, 3136 Avondale avenue, halted the train within eight coach lengths.

FALLEN PRESIDENT'S TWIN GIRLS, TWO SONS AT SCHOOL IN AMERICA

Convent Station, N. J., Jan. 2.—(AP)—In the somber parlor at the convent of St. Elizabeth the 14 year old twin daughters of Don Florencio Arosemena of Panama heard the news today of the overthrow of his government. They gasped and their black eyes opened wide when told their father had resigned the presidency. Then they smiled gayly as they read he was in no personal danger.

Lina, the taller, more voluble, made it plain she and her sister Inez were unacquainted with the trouble and unrest that had shadowed their father since his disputed election.

"We never talk business with father," she said. "He is so tired from business that we talk to him and mother of other things when he is home at night."

PANAMA REBELS MAKE ENVOY TO U. S. PRESIDENT

Seize Rule in Swift Night Attack; 10 Die, 14 Hurt

capital, has also fallen into rebel hands. A dispatch tonight from Puerto Armuelles in Chiriqui province claims that the natives are staying loyal to the Arosemena government, as is also David, the principal city in the province. At Puerto Armuelles the United Fruit company has established large banana holdings and there are rich American coffee plantations throughout the province. Reports from other provinces tonight indicate that no other resistance is likely to rise up against the new provisional government.

U. S. Attitude Helpful.

An announcement from Washington that the United States will not intervene unless there are disturbances has had a quieting effect on the capital and pleased everybody. The change in government appears popular.

The new government is sending arrested cabinet members and other high officials to their homes under parole after receiving their signed resignations. This is almost unheard of procedure in Latin-American revolutions, but has created a good effect.

The revolt started shortly after midnight when a group of oppositionists raided the Sabanas police station three miles from the capital, overpowering the few police there and capturing 70 rifles and three Thompson machine guns. They then proceeded to the capital, where their friends had prepared the way for the storming of the president's palace.

When the shooting started I hastened in the direction of the Cathedral plaza and found youthful Panamians firing down the street leading to the president's palace. I was then stationed near the Chase bank and the bishop's palace and could see five civilians lying apparently dead in the street. The president's palace faces the waterfront and is one block from the Cathedral plaza, the civic center of Panama and the location of th American legation, the American hotel and several government buildings.

The president's palace guard sounded a fire alarm at 3:30 a. m. in order to get assistance. The call brought out Panama's red bloused firemen and they were given rifles and instructions to fight. These same men are now on the rebel side and patroling the city as emergency police.

Rush Aid to U. S. Legation.

At 4 a. m. American Minister Roy T. Davis, after some delay owing to the disturbed state of the city's telephone service, got in touch with acting Governor Col. Julian L. Schley of the Canal Zone. By 4:20 military police, headed by Gen. Preston Brown, reached the legation. They were fired on by rebels who had seized the police headquarters. This, however, is believed to have been unintentional, as they were firing on all who approached and the military police were in a motor bus. Relief forces which arrived later were also fired on.

The rebels are particularly bitter against former President Rodolfo Chiari, who is the leader of the Liberal party which has been in power. They claim the government as well as the national assembly has been entirely in his hands. Tonight Señor Chiari was found to be in hiding at the Ecuador legation and is nominally under arrest there.

Victor Goytia, former newspaper editor here and a prominent attorney, is head of the "Accion Comunal." He denies that it is a red organization, although red flags have been used at its gatherings, which the fallen administration frequently stopped, imprisoning the leaders. The revolt is largely a protest against the government's recently inaugurated policy of deducting 5 per cent from the salaries of every one on the state's pay roll and paying this into the party funds of the Liberals.

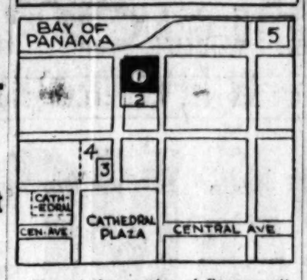
The only resistance that might have arisen was nullified by the Panama railroad when it refused to carry 500 national police which Gov. Galindo of the province of Colon attempted to send to the aid of the government.

HARRY GUZIK CONVINCES U. S. HE IS CITIZEN

Harry Guzik, Capone hoodlum and older brother of Jack and Sam Guzik, appeared at the federal building yesterday to establish his status as an American citizen. Accompanied by Attorney Harry Weisbrod and a sheaf of records, he convinced Naturalization Director Fred J. Schlotfeldt that he was naturalized in 1896 by Superior Judge Farlin Q. Ball.

Jack Guzik, under sentence of five years at Leavenworth penitentiary for income tax evasion, and Sam, under indictment for the same offense, became citizens with the naturalization of their father, Max, in 1898, Mr. Schlotfeldt said. Immigration and naturalization authorities have been investigating public enemies and other gangsters.

HOW REBELS WON



Plan of the quarter of Panama city in which rebels overthrew the government after a few hours of fighting yesterday. Key to the plan: [1] Presidential palace, which was entered into by rebels from a second floor balcony in house [2] adjoining. [3] Chase bank, at the corner of which Tribune correspondent watched the battle. [4] Home of George Arias, relative of revolt leader, on second floor above Chase bank. [5] House owned by Domingo Diaz, cousin of fallen president, but another revolt leader; Señor Diaz married into the Arias family and Señora Diaz' sister married Dr. J. J. Vallarino, new secretary of state. It can be seen that the houses of the Arias partisans were strategically placed for an attack on the presidential palace. Details of the plat were supplied by H. H. Evans, assistant superintendent of the mechanical division of the Canal Zone and brother of Dr. W. A. Evans, Tribune health editor.

WOMAN TARRED AND FEATHERED BY MASKED MEN

Climax of California Land Dispute.

Riverside, Cal., Jan. 2.—(AP)—Mrs. Anna Wood, a homesteader in the San Jacinto foothills, was in a serious condition today from being tarred and feathered New Year's day by two masked men.

Deputy Sheriff Carl Rayburn, who went to her ranch forty miles east of here, reported the tarring apparently followed Mrs. Wood's defiance of cattlemen's orders to move out.

Mrs. Wood was found in a hysterical and semi-conscious condition at her isolated ranch last night by friends. They reported to the sheriff, who said arrests were imminent.

Rayburn said the woman had accused neighboring cattlemen of demanding she quit her homestead and mining claims, located on valuable grazing lands.

"They told me to move out or I would wish I had," she told the deputy.

A commotion in the barn among her goats, Mrs. Wood said, drew her to the building. A masked man grabbed her, removed her clothing, and a second masked man helped in applying the tar and feathers.

Big Plane Pilot Arrested on 2 Year Old Rum Charge

Miami, Fla., Jan. 2.—(AP)—Federal officers announced tonight that W. B. Atwater, New York, pilot of a 17 passenger seaplane which stopped here Dec. 31 en route from Long Island to Vera Cruz, Mexico, was arrested New Year's day on a two year old charge of importing liquor by airplane from Bimini, British island near here. Atwater gained release on $2,000 bond, the officials said, prior to departure today for Havana.

PLAN LOAN OF BILLION TO PUT CHINA ON FEET

VANCOUVER, B. C., Jan. 2.—[Canadian Press.]—The Vancouver Province publishes the following today:

"Herbert M. Marler, head of Canada's embassy to the orient, has been sent to China on a great diplomatic and commercial mission. It is entirely possible that, arising from his visit, Canada will sell 100,000,000 bushels of wheat. But that may be only an incidental of his conferences. If plans being worked out in London and Ottawa come into being. Behind the wheat deal is a great project, initiated by H. H. Stevens, Canada's minister of trade and commerce, for the granting of a billion dollar loan to China, designed to reinstate the values of silver all through the orient and finally to place China on her feet so completely that she will become a huge and profitable market for British, Canadian, and American goods.

Aim to Sell Wheat.

"Prime Minister R. B. Bennett merely hinted at the grand plan in hand when he addressed a large gathering at Regina on Tuesday evening. He intimated that some credit arrangement might have to be made to enable China to buy Canadian wheat in large quantities. He did not attempt to outline the very interesting and stupendous plan which is now being discussed in London, New York, Washington and Ottawa for the rehabilitation of silver and the general reorganization of oriental trade and markets.

"Generally the plan is to call together the five or six leading war lords of China, who presently are fighting amongst themselves and maintaining armies totaling three million men, living by pillage of the population. The project is to sell the Chinese leaders with the idea that every one would be infinitely better off if the Chinese armies were turned into industrial units, carrying out great public works.

Plan Loan of a Billion.

"If a semblance of peace can thus be attained, then Britain and the United States would jointly arrange a loan of a thousand million dollars to be spent in opening China by railways and highways and by lending support to various schemes to bring about an era of orderly civilization throughout the nation.

"For several years H. H. Stevens has been a close student of the silver question, especially in the aspects which have brought depression and disaster in China, India, and other oriental countries. From a top price of $1.40 per ounce silver has fallen practically to 30 cents in the world's markets. Oriental people have their wealth largely in whatever hoards they have of silver metal and the virtual collapse of silver has meant stupendous loss and disaster and has helped in bringing about a great unsettlement of trade and of the actual business of living in these oriental lands."

2 OF KIDNAPER'S FAMILY HELD IN BUSCH HEIR CASE

Father and Wife of Negro Quizzed.

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 2.—[Special.]—Two members of the family of Charles V. Abernathy, Negro suspected of kidnaping Adolphus Busch Orthwein, are under arrest, but Charles has not yet been seized.

The father of the 28 year old Negro was questioned all day today and the fugitive's wife, Eugenia, 27, was arrested late this afternoon. Other members of the family may be arrested.

The father, Pearl, a well to do dealer in realty among Negroes, was the one who negotiated for the return of the 13 year old heir to the brewery millions, who was kidnaped Wednesday and returned yesterday.

Families Are Silent.

The Orthwein and Busch families continued to refuse to divulge details concerning the arrangements which culminated yesterday in the Orthwein boy being left on a county road near the Orthwein estate after the elder Abernathy had telephoned the family the boy was safe and had conferred with Mr. Orthwein, August A. Busch jr., and Harry Troll, the Orthweins' lawyer.

Members of the two families declared they are standing on their promise to tell nothing if the boy was returned to them unharmed, and repeated that they did not wish to prosecute the abductor.

Troll explained that the younger Abernathy was the father of seven children. He indicated that if it developed that the pinch of poverty was the motive back of the kidnaping the Orthwein family might find work for the young Negro.

Father Arranged for Return.

The elder Abernathy first entered the case when he got in touch with the Orthweins, admitted his son was the kidnaper, and arranged for the son's freedom in payment for return of the boy. No ransom money was asked or paid, officers now believe.

It developed today that Charles Abernathy had traded back the Orthwein boy to his parents after assurances that he would be permitted to go free.

Nevertheless officers insisted that the kidnaper of the grandson of August A. Busch, president of Anheuser-Busch, Inc., and great-grandson of Adolphus Busch, late multi-millionaire brewer, would be prosecuted if he is captured.

Father's Story Told.

Sheriff Lill described the questioning of the real estate man.

"Abernathy said that on New Year's morning his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Charles Abernathy, came to the real estate office and told him Charley was acting very strangely," the sheriff said. "She asked Pearl Abernathy if he would come with her to their home.

"Abernathy went with his daughter-in-law. When he got to the Abernathy cottage, he saw a white boy there. He told us he recognized the boy from descriptions of him in the newspapers.

"He then got in touch with Mr. Orthwein by telephone and the return of the boy was brought about.

Plan to Prosecute.

"I will take Abernathy to Clayton with me and hold him incommunicado and without bond on charges of being an accessory to the kidnaping, and we will prosecute this case, if it is at all possible. I am quite certain now that no ransom was paid."

Harry W. Castlen, prosecuting attorney of St. Louis county, declared he would prosecute the case against the kidnaper if officers supply him with sufficient evidence on which to base a case.

"My ability to make a case," Castlen said, "depends on testimony of all witnesses involved in the case before the grand jury, which would meet this month. I feel prosecution is vital to public welfare in the county and even throughout the state."

Says He'll Demand Help.

"I intend to tell Mr. Orthwein and his attorney, Mr. Troll, that I expect their assistance in locating the kidnaper," he declared. "I realized before the return of the boy that further attempts on the part of officers would be futile because we were not receiving coöperation from members of the family. Now we have something to work on and I will follow it through."

DENIES HABEAS WRITS FOR NINE SEIZED IN RAID

CRIMINAL COURT.

Alexander Pope, robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life in the penitentiary by Judge Philip Finnegan.

Writs of habeas corpus for nine men, most of them members of the Saltis beer running gang, according to the police, were dismissed yesterday in Judge Philip L. Finnegan's Criminal court when the police promised to place charges against some of the prisoners. Five pistols, a quantity of dum-dum bullets, and some shotgun slugs were found by the police when they arrested the men in a raid on an apartment at 7845 South Ashland avenue on Tuesday night.

George Larson, who the police say, has a record, walked into the flat while the raid was in progress. He is to be charged with disorderly conduct, vagrancy and carrying concealed weapons. Ray Kane and Thomas Larkin, who also have police records, will be charged with vagrancy and taken before Judge Lyle in the Felony court. The others will be charged with disorderly conduct and will appear before Judge Jonas.

FIND BOTTLE WITH MESSAGE FROM SINKING LUSITANIA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 2.—Fifteen years and eight months after their death, the last message of ten victims of the sinking liner Lusitania, contained in a bottle encrusted with seagrowths and shells, has been washed ashore on the German North sea island of Langeness, which is uninhabited because a daily tide sweeps over it.

The message was a hastily scribbled farewell, telling of the torpedoing of the Lusitania, which, the note said, could not keep afloat more than ten minutes longer. This was followed by the names of ten passengers with the numbers of the cabins they occupied.

The authorities believe the message is genuine. They forwarded it immediately to the Cunard line in London for confirmation.

Village Trustee Causes Arrest of Wife and Man

The marital difficulties of William E. Stielow, village trustee of Niles Center, and Mrs. Helen Stielow were taken once more to a police station last night when Mrs. Stielow and William Shields of 5154 North Clark street were arrested in her apartment at 5301 North Ashland avenue. Stielow, who led the police to the apartment, signed complaints charging a serious offense. A divorce action between the Stielows is pending. Late last September Stielow caused his wife's arrest in an Evanston hotel. With her was Shields.

HOLD 2 DRIVERS TO GRAND JURY IN FIVE DEATHS

Mother of One Dies as Result of Tragedy.

Tragedy they had inflicted on four other families struck back yesterday at two reckless motorists, Timothy Dwyer, 34 years old, a city employé, and Bart Horan, 27 years old, a butcher. Both were held to the grand jury after coronor's inquests into five deaths they caused New Year's eve, in which police blame the combination of holiday hootch and speeding automobilez. Five separate manslaughter verdicts were returned, three against Dwyer and two against Horan.

Dwyer walked from the Holy Cross hospital, where he had sat with bowed head and trembling hands, as the sobbing relatives of his victime gave details of their life histories, to learn that news of his disaster had caused the death of his own mother, Mrs. Mary Dwyer, 65, of 5409 South Carpenter street.

Mother Wishes Him Dead.

Horan sat in the inquest room at the Jackson Park hospital and heard his own aged mother, Mrs. Katherine Horan, 70, say of him: "I wish it was he had been killed—I feel so terribly sorry for those people."

She referred to Mrs. Frances Peterson, 33, and her daughter, Esther, 6 years old, who were struck down at 72d street and Woodlawn avenue by Horan, driving a friend's car. Another child, Anna May, 9, told the story of the accident from a wheel chair, where she lay propped up on pillows.

Hans Peterson, her father, seemed dazed as he gave necessary information to Deputy Coroner Dennis J. Carroll. He sat twisting his hat and appearing to see no one.

Mrs. Mary Dwyer had been ill with pneumonia and heart trouble for some time. Wednesday night she learned of the accident at 63d street and Western avenue in which the automobile driven by her son struck a group of people waiting for a street car, killing three and injuring another. Immediately she insisted on leaving the home of her son, Sylvester, with whom she had been staying, to go to the residence of Timothy Dwyer at 3639 South Ada street.

Refuses to Take Stand.

The strain proved too great and her death occurred yesterday shortly before the inquest in which the trio of manslaughter verdicts was returned. On the advice of his attorney, Dwyer refused to take the stand.

Testimony as to whether or not Dwyer was intoxicated at the time of the accident proved widely at variance among the witnesses called. James Frecka, 6711 Maplewood avenue, a coal weigher, said he appeared to have been drinking. Patrolman George Keeling and Sergt. Harry Burns of the Chicago Lawn station both declared they believed he had been imbibing. A contrary opinion was expressed by Patrolman Michael French, and Dr. John Meade, 419 West 65th street, who saw Dwyer and examined him at the station two hours and twenty minutes after the collision, said he "was unable to determine" if the prisoner was drunk or sober.

Victim Support of Family.

Louis Cohen, father of Nathan Cohen, 17 years old and one of the three victims, told the jury his son had been the main support of his parents and his three brothers and sisters, on his salary of $17 a week earned in a dental laboratory. The father had been unable to find work.

Eleanor Schultz, 18, gave details of the life of her brother, John, 16, also killed. He was returning home from the Lindblom High school, where he took a special examination to enable him to graduate this year. Mrs. Joseph Giraitis, widow of the insurance salesman who was the third person killed, stated that her husband had left to attend to some business and was on his way to his home at 2536 West 68th street when he was struck.

N. Y. STATE ISSUES 25,000 THEIR FIRST OLD AGE PENSIONS

New York, Jan. 2.—(AP)—New York's aged poor went on a charity wage today—more than 25,000 of them receiving their first monthly check from city and state.

The average sum paid each aged person was $26.50. In New York City, where most of the beneficiaries of the new law are, the average was $30.

Payments under the old age pension law, which Gov. Roosevelt signed last year, are provided in equal ratio by state and city. All beneficiaries are 70 years of age or older.

Relief agencies in New York City said the pensions have come to most of the beneficiaries as a "virtual salvation."

SHOCHTIM CHIEF IS ARRESTED ON ASSAULT CHARGES

Joe Etkins, business manager of the Shochtim, the organization of Kosher poultry killers, was arrested yesterday by the Shakespeare avenue police on charges of assault and battery and assault with a deadly weapon. He was held in bonds of $10,000 and will appear before Judge Lyle in the Felony court on Monday.

Both warrants were signed by the family of Noah Greenberg, a shochtet, or member of the Shochtim, alleged to have been slugged on Etkins' orders because of refusal to pay union officials for his job. Greenberg was slugged on Dec. 16 and spent three days in a hospital. The Greenberg home is at 1142 South Albany avenue.

The ban against kosher poultry, declared by the council of rabbis in an effort to drive racketeering from the union, continues in effect. A special meeting of the rabbinical board will be held tonight at 3600 Roosevelt road.

Officers of the Shochtim yesterday suggested that the dispute be placed before Judge Joseph B. David, Max Schulman, and Rabbi A. Abramovitch, but the rabbinate refused to treat with any but a committee chosen from the membership of the Shochtim.

Ten Chicago policemen from the detective bureau will be relieved of routine duty today to become students at the University of Chicago, where for the next 30 days they will take a course in crime detection under Prof. August Vollmer.

Prof. Vollmer recently sent the invitation to acting Commissioner Alcock, who instructed Chief of Detectives John Norton to detail ten men from his bureau who wished to take the course.

Late last night seven men had accepted. They are Michael Shannon, Merrill Ciros, Phillips Brietzke, Robert Hunt, Frank Kehoe, James Caplis, and James Connolly. The other three will be chosen today.

Find Greek Temple on Sea Bottom; Drag Up Statues

ATHENS, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Dredgers at the port of Piræus apparently have stumbled upon an ancient temple, hidden by the water. They brought up from the sea bottom marble plaques bearing bas reliefs and columns of the "golden age" epoch. One of the plaques represents Phœbe, the moon goddess. Another article found is a statuette of a girl, a perfect specimen of the art of the period.

AVIATION LEADER HURT, ONE KILLED IN AUTO CRASH

Car Rams Truck as Driver Makes Repairs.

Lying beneath his truck to make repairs, Harry Hamann, 29 years old, 112 North Racine avenue, was instantly killed at Southwest highway and 78th street, Chicago Lawn, last night when the truck was struck from the rear by the sedan of William Laird, superintendent of the E. M. Laird Airplane company at Ashburn field.

Laird, who is 40 years old, and lives at 7121 Aberdeen street, was seriously injured and taken to Holy Cross hospital. His legs, and several ribs were fractured. He is well known in aviation.

Hamann, driving southwest in the highway, halted to repair a defective fuel line. He crawled under the truck and lay on his back. A moment later Laird hit the truck and jolted a rear wheel over Hamann's head. Laird told Chicago Lawn police the rear lights of the truck were out and he did not see the obstruction. According to John Novak, 1415 Walton place, Hamann's helper, four signal lights, three green and one red, were burning at the time the accident occurred.

One Other Death in Day.

Hamann's death and one other raised Cook county's motor toll for 1931 to 19.

Fred W. Vassmer, 50 years old, 1908 Cornelia avenue, was fatally injured when he was struck by the auto of Robert Uhlman, 4344 North Claremont avenue, while crossing Addison street at Lincoln street. He died at the Alexian Brothers' hospital. Uhlman was held.

Find Baby Is Injured.

Elaine Margaret Olason, 4 months' old, the sole survivor of the grade crossing accident Thursday night in Harvey, which took the lives of nine persons, was reported last night to be in a serious condition at the Ingalls Memorial hospital.

The baby was thrown 200 feet into a snow filled ditch when the small sedan which her father was driving was struck and demolished by a Grand Trunk passenger train at 147th street and Page avenue, Harvey. When picked up by rescuers it was believed that she had escaped injury. An X-ray examination yesterday morning revealed that the baby's skull had been fractured and physicians said she may die.

The inquest into the deaths of the families, was continued until Jan. 21, to await the outcome of the baby's injuries. The nine were Matthew Olason, 27 years old, a clerk, of Elmhurst, his wife and three of their four children, and Frank Nowak, 35 years old, a phonograph salesman, 2232 West 18th place, and his wife and two children.

LUNG MACHINE WINS FIGHT FOR LIFE OF NURSE

Miss Frances McGann, 24 year old nurse, who since earl last September has been battling death with the help of the respirator machine at St. Luke's hospital, apparently has won her fight, hospital attendants said yesterday. They said that henceforth she may be able to breathe without the help of the machine.

Miss McGann's treatments in the respirator began after she had been attacked by infantile paralysis which affected the chest muscles, making it impossible for her to breathe without artificial aid.

At first Miss McGann had to spend all of the time in the machine. In the last few weeks, however, she has been able to breathe outside the respirator for all but a few hours a day. However, paralysis still exists in the young woman's arms and legs.

No more headaches are wanted at the Research and Educational hospital of the University of Illinois, where a search for a perfect case of a migraine was begun last Tuesday. Forty dollars a month and free room and board were offered to an unemployed man with migraine who would offer himself for laboratory experiment for three months in an effort to find a cause and cure. Mrs. John Johnson, laboratory technician, said a decision would be made Monday as to the winning candidate for the job. Meanwhile no more applicants are invited.

JOFFRE, FAMOUS FRENCH SOLDIER, TAKEN BY DEATH

Hero of Marne Loses in Long Fight for Life.

Germans in the west took to the trenches and dug themselves in and then began four years of a new type of warfare in which every death dealing device and artifice of human ingenuity was employed. Reconnoisance showed that at one time the trenches in the western front consisted of 32 parallel lines which with the communication trenches, aggregated 25,000 miles.

Joffre remarked: "We have only to keep to the path that we are now following to be sure of victory."

From October, 1914, to July, 1918, however, the long entrenched battle line from the coast to Switzerland remained almost stationary, although numerous terrific attempts to break through were made by the Germans, notably in Flanders, at Ypres, in the Argonne, at Verdun, between St. Quentin and La Fero toward Amiens, at Chemin des Dames, between Rheims and Soissons, and again at the Marne.

Crisis in 1918.

Five of the greatest German drives failing, the allies found themselves in a position again to take the offensive in July, 1918, and the following October they smashed the so-called "Hindenburg line," cleared the Belgian coast, and advanced along the River Meuse, threatening all German communications and compelling the enemy to ask for the armistice which was granted on Nov. 11, 1918.

Meanwhile, Joffre had retired from active command and had been created a marshal of France. After the first battle of the Marne, occasional allied reserves cast a shadow upon the glory of the great French soldier.

His theory of trench warfare was attacked. When the Germans nearly swept the Verdun line away he was compelled to give way to a new commander. He had also aroused enmities in the chamber of deputies by his dismissal of fourteen generals and his replacement of them by younger commanders. Paris papers criticized him, notably for his transfer of Gen. M. P. E. Sarrail from the Argonne to a minor command in the near east. Joffre himself was 63, and late in 1915 rumors arose regarding the plans to relieve him.

Clemenceau's Comment.

Georges Clemenceau, who later became premier, declared in his paper, l'Homme Enchaine, that the politicians were going to give Joffre "a high sounding nominal appointment which would have the practical result of installing a new commander in chief on the western front." He asked: "Is the proposed new appointment a favor given because the French front affords insufficient scope to Gen. Joffre's abilities or is it a disgrace which hides under the flowers a bowstring to paralyze our great strategist in the niche of honor?"

In 1916 Gen. Robert Nivelle succeeded Joffre, after Premier Briand had announced the latter's appointment as commander in chief of all the French armies except those in Africa. Briand explained: "The sole object of the extended powers of Gen. Joffre is to insure singleness of direction in military operations and at the same time to establish closer coördination between the commander of our armies and the technical councils of the allies."

Attends Allied Conferences.

Accepting from the government the baton and sword of honor of a marshal of France, the victor of the Marne relinquished active military service and attended various allied conferences in London and Paris. Gen. Nivelle, failing in a 25 mile offensive against the Germans between Soissons and Rheims, was succeeded in 1916 by Gen. Henri Philippe Petain, who in turn became chief of staff when Foch was made generalissimo in command of all the allied armies. Petain, like Foch, was created a marshal at the close of the war.

In 1917, a few weeks prior to the entry of the United States into the struggle, Marshal Joffre and former Premier Viviani, as heads of the French war mission, came to this country and discussed with President Wilson and other officials America's participation in the war. "Papa" Joffre, as he was popularly known, and M. Viviani were enthusiastically greeted everywhere in their tour of cities in the east and middle west and in Canada, and before returning to France the "Hero of the Marne" placed wreaths upon the tombs of Washington and Lincoln.

One of the "Immortals."

In 1918 Joffre was elected a member of the French academy, thus becoming one of the "forty immortals." He was chosen on his literary record. His work was written on Sept. 5, 1914, on the eve of the battle of the Marne in a general order to his army, and read: "At this moment when a battle is about to commence upon the result of which the salvation of our country depends, no one must look behind. All must unite to attack and repel the enemy. Any troop finding itself unable to advance further must hold the ground at all cost and must fight until death. No retreat."

Joffre's only other literary effort was written in 1895, when, after a French detachment had been annihilated by hostile tribesmen in Africa, he led a punitive expedition from the coast to the interior and described his experiences in a pamphlet entitled: "My March to Timbuctoo."

Born Near the Pyrenees.

Born at Rivesaltes on Jan. 12, 1852, close to the Pyrenees, the son of a cooper, Joffre was educated at the College of Perpignan and the Ecole Polytechnic, the "West Point of France." At 19 he entered the French army as a second lieutenant during the Franco-Prussian war, 1870-71, and commanded a battery at the siege of Paris. He became a captain in 1876, a major in 1889, a lieutenant colonel in 1894, a colonel in 1897, a brigadier general in 1901, and a major general in 1905. He served with distinction in China and Tonkin and organized the defenses of Formosa. At the beginning of the great war he was chief of the French general staff.

Marshal Joffre was a brilliant mathematician and military engineer and correctly predicted in 1912 that "the next war will be a long one, waged along immense fronts and in it patience will be worth more than audacity and calculation will count more than dash." He was not a dress parade commander and was rarely seen in the saddle.

Bereft of his wife early in his military career, twenty years later he married Mme. Lozes, the mother of two children, with whom he enjoyed for years the quiet of a home at Auteuil. After the battle of the Marne, a friend remarked: "General, you have won the battle of the ages." Joffre replied: "What I hope I have won is an early rest in my little home in the Pyrenees."

Cartersville, Ga., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Corra Harris has a mule for sale.

Georgia's distinguished woman writer inserted the following advertisement in the Cartersville Tribune-News, describing the animal:

"For sale—One black mare mule, hair on, as is. Weight 1,300 pounds. Sound in mind, health. Fond of radishes. Will bite when urged to do so. Can kick but not swinnied. Safe in pasture with cattle.

"Balks only twice a year, at the beginning of each work season. Small dose pepper sauce administered makes her go like a house afire. Never has told her age, but reckoned 13 years old. Work anywhere.

"Highly recommended by Mr. Warren Tinsle when purchased from him three years ago; in better condition now. Reason for selling, present owner retiring from agricultural profession. Thirty-five dollars asked, but will take thirty for quick sale. Corra Harris, in the valley, Rydal, Ga."

LAY GUN FIGHT IN CABARET TO ROBBERS' RAID

Police Give Alcock the Story of Shooting.

All evidence in the hands of Capt. Richard Gill of the East Chicago avenue station convinces him, he said yesterday, that the shooting on New Year's morning in the C. & O. cabaret, 509 North Clark street, in which two policemen were badly wounded, was only a holdup. Because of circumstances, witnesses' stories were closely compared to determine if a fist fight, instead of a robbery, had been the spark that started the gunfire.

Reports on Shooting.

After listening to six patrons who were in the place at the time, Capt. Gill forwarded a report to Acting Commissioner Alcock in which he related the stories of these persons. They were to this effect:

About 3 a. m. Eugene Brooks, manager of the cabaret, phoned the East Chicago station and said a suspicious looking man was loitering near the doorway. Brooks asked that guards be sent. Sergt. Joseph Hoban's squad car went to the place, leaving Patrolman Martin Joyce to investigate.

Joyce went inside and shortly afterwards three men entered the darkened vestibule. Joyce stepped into the doorway to ask their business and the three put revolvers to his side.

They searched him and found his gun and star, whereupon the leader, Sam Battaglia, notorious "42" gangster, snarled.

"He's a copper, give him what they give me when I get in the [detective] bureau."

Battaglia swung Joyce's pistol against the policeman's jaw, flooring him. The others kicked him several times and shot him twice. His jaw was broken. Leaving him on the floor the trio charged into the cabaret and ordered the patrons in the first room to move into the adjoining room.

Policeman Is Wounded.

In the second room, Policeman John Maier of the Rogers Park station was eating with a woman companion. He jumped up as he saw the robbers, drew his own pistol and fired, but was wounded by a bullet in his side. The bandits had by this time taken $1,500 from the safe and had robbed several of the patrons.

At this juncture Sergt. Hoban's squad returned. They exchanged shots with the robbers, and Battaglia and George Bousk, alias Bush and Guida, 464 North Morgan street, another of the gunmen, fell wounded. The third man escaped. John Rupert, 2854 North Clark street, was shot in the stomach and was in a serious condition last night at the Henrotin hospital. The others are expected to recover. Battaglia and Bousk are in the Bridewell hospital.

Plan Murder Charge.

Fillmore street police announced last night that they intended to charge Michael [Mickey] Marcurio, 24 years old, 719 Aberdeen street, with the murder of Policeman John Vondruska, who was shot by robbers in a holdup of the Yellow Cab garage at Leamington avenue and Flournoy street early Thursday morning. According to Sergt. Garrett Fleming, one witness has said that Marcurio resembles one of the slayers. Marcurio was arrested on Thursday afternoon at the Mother Cabrini hospital, when he was taken there suffering from gun wounds in the leg. He asserted he was shot while walking on the street.

MILAN, Italy, Jan. 2.—(AP)—The failure of Emilio Giani, principal broker in the Milan stock exchange, was announced officially today. His liabilities were said to exceed his assets by more than $1,000,000. It was expected that financial interests would come to the rescue and no serious results were anticipated.

TO DEFEND SELF

MRS. REBECCA S. WEBB.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Mrs. Rebecca Stillman Webb, daughter of J. A. Campbell, chairman of the board of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company, today will be given an opportunity to reply to charges made on Dec. 27 by her former husband, Elijah H. Stillman, who is seeking the custody of their 5 year old son, James Campbell Stillman. She is expected to take the witness stand in the courtroom of Superior Judge Harry A. Lewis. Testimony for the plaintiff was completed on Dec. 27 and the hearing was continued until today.

From a suite in the Bismarck hotel, where she is staying with her husband, Jack Webb of Los Angeles, and her son, Mrs. Webb, kept to her bed by a cold, said she would make a blanket denial of Stillman's charges. Three witnesses for Stillman, a former chauffeur, maid, and houseman in the Stillman home, testified they had seen Mrs. Webb intoxicated for days at a time and unconscious from sleep inducing drugs.

"All those witnesses swore to perjury. The charges were framed. There is not a word of truth in them," Mrs. Webb said last night. "I've been on the wagon for eight years. As for drugs, I never took any in my life except twice, when I did so under a doctor's orders."

She said Stillman did not in reality want the custody of the child, but merely wanted to harass her.

WIND HELPS MAIL FLYERS TO HANG UP NEW RECORDS

Swept on by a high westerly wind blowing at a velocity that sometimes reached gale force, two Chicago pilots flying mail and passengers between here and eastern cities yesterday established two new speed records for multi-motored transport planes.

Two shifts of flyers piloting the regular air express over the National Air Transport line to New York took six travelers and 975 pounds of mail into New York at 3:45 o'clock yesterday afternoon, setting a record of four hours and 16 minutes of actual flying time between the two cities. The plane left here on schedule at 9:30 a. m. yesterday.

Pilot J. O. Johnson piloted the ship on the Chicago-Cleveland run, setting a record of two hours and six minutes over the 318 miles between the two cities. S. J. Samson flew the plane from Cleveland to New York in two hours and ten minutes.

The afternoon plane, flying only as far as Cleveland, found the same strong tail wind between 8,000 and 10,000 feet aloft and bettered the record of the morning pilot. The trimotored Ford transport plane, piloted by W. E. Larned, reached Cleveland an hour and 41 minutes after leaving the Municipal airport.

FALL FATAL TO WORKER.

Oscar Mire, 31 years old, 10 West Huron street, an electrician, died yesterday in the Jefferson Park hospital of injuries incurred on Monday when he fell 40 feet while working on an outer wall of a plant of Wilson & Co., at 4100 South Ashland avenue.

TRANSIT LINES ASK MORE TIME ON FRANCHISE

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The surface and elevated lines asked the city council yesterday for an extension of time—from Jan. 31 to May 22—in which to accept the indeterminate franchise ordinance approved by the voters in a referendum last July 1.

The application was referred to the council committee on local transportation, which will meet on Jan. 9. Ald. James B. Bowler, chairman of the committee, said yesterday that the sentiment among the members forecasts the granting of the extension.

In support of the request, Halsey, Stuart & Co., managers of the consolidation of the transit lines, submitted a statement telling of the progress of the financial plan. President Britton I. Budd of the "L" roads and Guy A. Richardson of the surface lines presented another report, showing the physical improvements made in transit facilities in the last half year.

Report on Financial Plan.

Regarding the agreement on the financial apects of a merger, the statement of Halsey, Stuart & Co. says that all the protective committees for all of the securities have approved the plan except the committees representing the participation certificates of the west and north side surface lines.

Federal Judge Wilkerson gave an adverse decision on the claims of these certificate holders on Nov. 26 and denied a rehearing on Dec. 17. The certificate holders have 90 days in which to perfect an appeal to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

All the other committees, which favor the financial plan of consolidation, published notices on Dec. 28 of their intention to accept the program. The security holders have 30 days in which to withdraw their securities from the committees if they wish.

Sale Application to Follow.

Then will follow an application to the federal court to sell the surface lines now in receivership. This and other proceedings prerequisite to a consolidation, will take until May 22, in the opinion of Halsey, Stuart & Co.

Other contingencies, which the lawyers deem probable but which were not mentioned by Halsey, Stuart & Co., will probably cause the companies to ask for another extension, after May 22, to Aug. 1 or a later date, it was said.

Under a supplemental ordinance, passed last July 16, the companies were granted permission to make extensions of surface lines and bus routes and other transportation improvements to the extent of $12,000,000. The joint letter of Messrs. Budd and Richardson reported that they had spent $5,870,706 and that the surface lines last year, before July 16, had spent $1,279,032 for trolley bus extensions.

AKERSON, SECRETARY TO HOOVER, RESIGNS FOR FILM POSITION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 2.—[Special.]—The lure of a larger pay envelope was responsible today for the first vacancy in President Hoover's executive staff of assistants.

George Akerson, secretary to the President, today announced his resignation to accept a position with the Paramount Publix corporation.

"Mr. Akerson is leaving the White House service," Mr. Hoover said in a statement. "Some one has offered him two or three times the pay the government can afford, and he has responsibilities to his family that I cannot deny. I greatly regret to lose an old friend out of my personal service."

Thus far no successor for Mr. Akerson has been selected by the President. Reports that former Senator Henry J. Allen of Kansas would fill the secretarial vacancy were denied at the White House. Reports are in circulation to the effect that A. H. Kirchhofer, Buffalo newspaper man and former Washington correspondent, would be selected, but these have lacked confirmation.

"It has been my exceptional privilege," Mr. Akerson said, in announcing his resignation, "to have been associated with the President for a number of years. It is with a feeling of deep regret that I sever this connection.

"However, such an opportunity to assure the financial security of my family may not soon again offer itself, especially in so congenial a field as service."

ALTITUDE MARK FOR WOMEN GOES TO ELINOR SMITH

Freeport, N. Y., Jan. 2.—(AP)—Elinor Smith received official recognition today as holder of the world altitude record for women pilots.

On March 10, 1930, she attained in a heavy cabin monoplane an altitude of 27,418 feet. She was informed today by the National Aeronautic Association of the United States that her record had been homologated and accepted by the Federation Aeronautic Internationale.

The late Ruth Alexander held the only other altitude record for a woman accepted by the Federation Aeronautic Internationale. Miss Smith said she climbed 15,000 feet in a light ship.

RAPE WARRANT IS ORDERED FOR YOUNG ELOPER

A warrant charging rape was ordered issued yesterday by State's Attorney A. V. Smith of Lake county, against Charles Tabbert, 17 years old, of Waukegan, who disappeared eight days ago with June Racine, 14 years old, also of Waukegan, and returned with her Thursday night. Both are students at the Waukegan High school. When deputy sheriffs called at Tabbert's home last night after Col. Smith's action, they were told by his mother, Mrs. Mary Tabbert, that the youth had left the state.

VAIL, VETERAN DENEEN LEADER, INDORSES LYLE

German Group Organizes for Barrett.

BY PARKE BROWN.

While Ald. Arthur F. Albert, Deneen entry, was delivering a short speech in appreciation of the indorsement of his group on the mezzanine floor of the Hotel La Salle, reporters found that Charles W. Vail, clerk of the Supreme court, and veteran Deneen leader, was on the third floor of the hotel declaring himself for Judge Lyle.

At about the same time it developed that Lyle was receiving assurances of strong support in the Negro wards. William L. Dawson, candidate for congress against the late Martin B. Madden two years ago, offered his services in the Third ward, and James T. Brewington, secretary of the colored voters' bureau of the Emmerson headquarters two years ago, was volunteering for work in the Second ward.

Organize for Barrett.

During the day the Charles V. Barrett headquarters completed the organization of a German-American group in support of Barrett's candidacy. The committee appointed included Herman Wollenberger, Otto F. Reich, William A. Schelling, Carl Von Hermann, Louis Wittbold, Dr. G. A. Goebel, Dr. Hans Gutzmann, Rudy Koenig, Max Betold, and Emil Pausee.

"German-Americans who have supported Thompson in the past," read statement by Schelling, "are through with him. He can no longer continue to place the blame for the misdeeds of his administration on others."

So far as known, Thompson's only activity consisted of continuing the use of patronage to build up his organization. During the day he placed Hamlet Ridgeway, former aid of County Chairman B. W. Snow, in a $6,000 spot as purchasing agent of the school board, as a reward for leading his fight in Snow's ward.

Vail Issues Statement.

The public declaration of Vail for Lyle was considered of significance. He has been clerk of the Supreme court for sixteen years, and before that was clerk of the Superior court for eight years. Until two years ago, when he determined to run as an independent Republican for secretary of state, he was the Deneen chief in the Town of Lake wards, including his own, the Eighteenth. Mr. Vail issued a statement in which he said:

"The whole country seems overridden with crime and criminals. It is a serious reflection on officials in general that the small number of actual criminals should have the whole country apparently in its grip.

"Judge Lyle, who has been my neighbor for many years, is the outstanding man of the city who already has demonstrated that the gangsters, racksteers, and murderers can be either driven from Chicago or put behind the bars.

"Of course I am for Lyle and I cannot understand why every law-abiding citizen who is in a position to act on his own judgment can be for any one else in this very important campaign.

"The great exposition of 1933 is to be held in Chicago. We are to welcome into our midst the people of the entire world. Let's remove from our midst the Capones, Saltises, Aiellos, announce to the world that John Homer Lyle is to be mayor of the second city of the country and that the law of our country is supreme!"

Vigorous Talk by Albert.

Since it had been published in advance Ald. Albert did not read to the Deneen meeting the statement of his platform, but he spoke informally and peppily for 10 minutes, during which he christened himself the "Twentieth Century Paul Revere" who would carry "the alarm into every precinct and home before Feb. 24.

"We will give the city my ten years of experience, my energy, and my youth," he said, to the plaudits of his hearers.

Albert also painted himself into the anti-crime picture by saying the fight against crime really began last June with his council resolution for an investigation, which he said had forced the resignations of Police Commissioners Russell and Chief Stege of the detective bureau.

Senator Deneen, who presided at the meeting, announced that headquarters had been leased in the Morrison hotel, that Roy O. West, national committeeman, had been chosen chairman of the campaign committee, and that the Albert campaign will be opened on Monday; Jacob D. Allen, executive in previous Deneen group campaigns, will be in active charge of operations.

The first violence of the campaign was reported at Barrett mayoralty headquarters in the Hotel Sherman when Howard Reddy, leader for the Fourteenth ward, was notified that a twenty pound rock had been thrown through a window in the ward headquarters.

"Last night I opened a new headquarters at 5000 South State street," said Reddy. "During the night a crash was heard. And this morning they found one of those big stones such as are used in abutments and breakwaters had been tossed through the plate glass."

HEIRESS GETS RENO DIVORCE

Ends Second Marriage

Mrs. Catherine Crerar Otis Koehn, 22 years old, who was married last April in Harrison, N. Y., to Frederick Koehn, 29 years old, of Wilmette, obtained a divorce decree yesterday from Koehn in Reno, according to dispatches received here. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Crerar, live at 209 Lake Shore drive. Mr. Crerar is ill, it was said at the home.

Mrs. Koehn is the granddaughter of the founder of the Crerar library. Mr. Koehn is the son of Howard J. Koehn of 923 Main street, Wilmette. Their marriage was a surprise to her family and other members of Chicago society.

The marriage of Catherine Crerar to Ralph C. Otis Jr. in January, 1927, was a society event. She was divorced from him on July 6, 1929, on charges of cruelty.

U.S. CLOSES BANK TO PROBE STORY OF KIDNAPING

$12,000 Taken by Robbers, Official Says.

The Lawrence Avenue National bank, 3222 Lawrence avenue, was closed by federal bank examiners yesterday pending an investigation of the reported kidnaping and robbing of John C. Malloy, assistant cashier of the bank.

Malloy appeared at a police station in Milwaukee late Thursday night and reported that he had been held up while at work in the bank during the afternoon. He said four robbers held him captive in the bank for several hours while they looted the vault and safety deposit boxes and then, after forcing him to set the time locks ahead 72 hours, fled with him to Milwaukee, where they released him.

Held Pending Inquiry.

The young assistant cashier was returned to Chicago in the custody of police and is held pending a complete examination of the bank. The vaults can not be opened for a thorough investigation until the time lock operates, and, according to Malloy's story, the time will not expire until tomorrow.

The Lawrence Avenue bank had completed negotiations for a merger. Federal banking authorities, under the direction of A. P. Leyburn, chief federal bank examiner, had participated in the merger negotiations."

Malloy said he had gone to the bank to prepare for a further meeting of the bankers and examiners on New Year's day. He asserted that the time lock had been set to work at 1 p. m. New Year's day, so that the vaults could be opened in case any of the records were needed. Other officers of the bank said they knew of no meeting to have been held at the bank and Malloy did not explain who had instructed him to set the time lock for 1 p. m. on Thursday.

His Story of Bandits.

While he was in the bank, Malloy said, the telephone rang and a man who said he was one of the examiners told him he and his aide would reach the bank shortly. A little later, Malloy said, the men appeared at the bank and he let them in. They drew pistols, according to his story, took his keys and spent the afternoon looting the vaults.

The federal examiners indicated that there were some discrepancies in Malloy's story and instructed that he be held for investigation. The bank had deposits of about $750,000. Malloy said he knew the robbers obtained at least $12,000 in cash in one of the valuts.

Darby Day, insurance and investment broker, is chairman of the board of the Lawrence Avenue National bank. George I. Pfiat is president. John H. Jeffries is vice president and cashier.

As a result of the closing of the Lawrence Avenue bank, a run was started on the Albany Park National Bank and Trust company, two blocks away. This bank, with deposits of between $3,000,000 and $3,500,000, met each demand for withdrawals and was said to be in excellent condition. Many depositors, when they found out they could have their money, left their funds in the bank.

3 STATE BANKS ARE CLOSED IN ILLINOIS TOWNS

Alma, Hecker, Brocton Are Affected.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 2.—(AP)—Three state banks were closed for examination and adjustment in connection with the first of the year checkup, State Auditor Oscar Nelson announced today. Deposits of approximately $300,000 are affected.

The three are the Alma State bank in Marion county, the Brocton bank in Edgar county and the State Bank of Hecker in Monroe county.

Deposits in the Alma bank totaled more than $460,000 at the last bank call. The bank listed capital stock in the amount of $15,000 and a surplus of $1,500.

The Brocton bank had deposits of $116,571 at the last report and capital stock of $25,000.

The State Bank of Hecker was closed Wednesday but the suspension was not announced here until today. The bank had deposits of $130,845 and capital stock of $50,000.

Indianapolis Bank Closed.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 2.—(AP)—The Fort Wayne Avenue State bank of Indianapolis, a $25,000 institution, failed to open this morning, Luther F. Symons, state banking commissioner, announced. Symons said indications were that all depositors will be paid in full.

The Garrett Savings and Loan association of Garrett, Ind., also failed to open.

AMY JOHNSON IN GERMANY ON SOLO FLIGHT TO CHINA

COLOGNE, Germany, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Miss Amy Johnson, British aviatrix, on a flight to Peiping, China, landed here from Liege, Belgium at 2:30 p. m. today. She plans to fly to Berlin tomorrow.

Moscow Frowns on Flight.

MOSCOW, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Amy Johnson's solo flight across Russia to Peiping is arousing little interest but considerable disapproval here. The soviet government has extended permission for passage over the country, but aviation officials say she has picked the wrong time of year for so difficult a flight.

Intense cold and deep snow in Siberia will make the journey hazardous, they pointed out, but apparently there will be no official move to halt the flight.

MYSTERY "KING" IS FOUND DEAD IN JUNGLE PALACE

Fever Claims Man Who Tried to Set Up Empire.

THARAWADDY, India, Jan. 2.—(AP)—That fantastic figure of actual or assumed princely rank, who dreamed a mad dream of creating an empire of his own in the fever ridden jungles of Burma, remains a man of mystery in death as he was in life.

British soldiers, crawling through the tropical growth which lies like a spider's web about the palace of the man who would be king, came upon a detachment of rebels which they routed in a sharp engagement, killing thirty of the enemy. But when they burst into the stronghold they found the master mind of the last month's reign of terror dead.

Dressed Like a King.

The soldiers were sure this was the mysterious leader of the recent raids on jungle villages, in which many peaceful natives and several white officials had been killed. Though the rebel soldiery wore uniforms which looked like plain blue pajamas, this man wore rich raiment bearing various symbols of high rank, and on his fair head was wound a royal turban.

It was not the might of the British empire alone which had defeated him, for it was discovered that already he had fallen victim to jungle fever, and even if the soldiers had not penetrated to his last retreat, he was doomed by the very land which he had hoped to subjugate to his single fanatic rule.

Troops Burn Palace.

The soldiers burned the palace, drove the remaining rebels deep into the jungle and returned here to the edge of civilization in the belief that to all intents their task had been completed and outlawry practically stamped opt.

If the rebellion was quelled, it did not end, however, without another skirmish. A report received here said government troops were fired on at a village east of Sitkwin and the soldiers opened fire in turn, killing fifteen rebels.

AGENCIES REPORT HELP GIVEN TO 14,000 JOBLESS

Tell Work Done to Aid City's Homeless.

A picture of what Chicago charitable agencies, aided by funds collected and disbursed by Gov. Emmerson's commission on unemployment, are doing to alleviate suffering among the city's army of jobless, homeless, and hungry unfortunates during the winter is contained in a periodical report issued yesterday by the Chicago council of social agencies.

Obligations totaling more than $2,000,000 have been contracted for by these agencies which apply in needed cases the money turned over to them by the governor's commission. The relief fund now being raised by the commission is still $1,819,000 short of the goal—$5,000,000.

Subscriptions Fall Off.

Collections made yesterday amounted to only $15,000, a decided decrease from the average daily subscriptions. Philip R. Clarke, chairman of the drive committee, scanning the figures, deplored the fact that Chicago's spirit of benevolence, which has made possible the collection of $3,181,000 so far, is apparently waning since the holidays.

The various agencies reported that 10,000 homeless men were given Christmas dinners last Thursday in five of the authorized shelters for men. The social service exchange reported 14,713 cases cleared by the settlements, newspapers, business firms, schools, health agencies and family welfare agencies. After duplications in this report are eliminated it is estimated that the figure will show 14,000 families received Christmas baskets from these different sources.

The council's bulletin indicates that unemployment and distress among the city's women is not serious. The service bureau for jobless women continues to show a slight falling off in registrations, but a steady increase in cases of need of relief lodgings. During the last week the bureau reported 47 women sent to lodgings paid for by the commission, 58 sent to free lodgings, 59 registrations and 75 women in need of immediate relief cared for. In the month since the bureau opened there have been 1,257 registrations.

Three New Offices Opened.

Because of the growing number of destitute the council has established seven new offices at the request of the governor's commission. Three of these, located in the Kinzie, Mosely, and Dore schools, are handling relief cases referred to them through the unemployment census. The others have been established to handle only those families which are new to relief agencies.

In the Milwaukee avenue district, the bulletin points out, numbers of workmen skilled in the building trades and usually well paid are beginning to feel the pinch of unemployment. For them an office has been established at 2150 West North avenue. The Indiana avenue district office at 5039 Indiana avenue is an apartment building, the gift of a group of colored people who felt the need of a center of service in their locality.

In South Chicago the shutting down of the steel mills has made necessary a new relief unit at the Phil Sheridan school, 90th street and Escanaba avenue. Another office has been opened at 1716 Monterey avenue in the Morgan Park district.

The United Charities, Jewish Social Service bureau and the Catholic Charities all report that the number of evictions from homes has been fewer in the last few months, an indication, the bulletin states, that landlords are assuming some of the responsibility in the unemployment emergency.

Train Social Workers.

Because of the increasing need for social workers a special training course will be given by the graduate school of social service administration of the University of Chicago at 18 South Michigan avenue. Registration of volunteers for this work is now under way.

Five census supervisors who directed the federal census of 1930 will meet this afternoon to lay plans for the government census of unemployed to be started on Jan. 15. At the meeting, which will be held in the office of Ralph L. Goodman, former vice president of the census supervisory board, will be H. L. Rockhill, John R. Malmquist, David A. McGilvray, and Clark Tibbits.

The census takers plan to cover all rooming houses in Chicago in one day in order to get accurate data on Chicago's floating population, Mr. Goodman stated.

Frances Clow Seized in Evanston as a Speeder

Miss Frances Clow, 17 years old, 900 North Green Bay road, Lake Forest, was arrested yesterday for speeding 42 miles an hour in Forest avenue, Evanston. She was taken to the Evanston police station, where she was detained for two hours until her father, William R. Clow, president of the James B. Clow & Son company, telegraphed $25 for her release. Miss Clow, who gave her occupation as "idling," will appear today before Police Magistrate H. H. Porter.

MUSSOLINI'S SPEECH TO AMERICA SEEN AS BID FOR SYMPATHY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Jan. 2.—The Italian press today expressed great satisfaction with the favorable reaction in America to Premier Mussolini's radio address yesterday, as evidenced from cabled excerpts from American newspaper comments, which made a big impression here.

Observers here were not surprised at the strong sentiments of cordiality toward America which were expressed by Il Duce, as the Italian dictator has always made a strong bid for America's friendship.

It is also thought that Premier Mussolini's unequivocal statement expressing a desire for peace was sincere and was merely a very forcible expression of a policy to which he has always adhered, despite his occasional sword rattling, which is chiefly intended for home consumption.

It is also generally felt that his speech was a very clever move to gain American sympathy and to bring public opinion in America to bear against the French stand in the naval parity dispute.

DOWN AND OUTER COMES BACK AND HELPS JOBLESS

"Mr. Glad" Dispenses Broadway Charity.

New York, Jan. 2.—(AP)—He is a man of mystery, a man of charity without glory, once a down-and-outer he passes out sandwiches and coffee to the unemployed. He passes out nickels that they may have carfare in their unceasing search for work. He advertises for people to send him old gloves at 346 Broadway that he may pass them on to warm the hands of the unfortunates. Who is he? The Broadway address is just a place where he calls for his mail.

"It really doesn't matter whether my name is Jones, Cohen, Murphy or Smith, or whether I am in the insurance business or dry goods or banking or what not," is his answer, by letter, to a request for an interview.

Arouses Spirit of Charity.

"I am just an ordinary business man who does not want his identity revealed. If it were, people would think perhaps that what I am doing was being done with some ulterior purpose, which I assure you is not the case.

"There is a mystery and a kick in 'Mr. Glad' that arouses a spirit of charity in the minds of those who have for those who have not. This would not be so if I revealed my identity. Even the sisters of St. Vincent's hospital, to whom I gave 3,000 sandwiches and 3,000 cups of coffee last week to serve to their bread line, do not know who I am. They promised not to tell, but I convinced them, I think, that it is better that they not know."

Printed Slip with Nickels.

With each sandwich, with each nickel, with each pair of gloves, Mr. Glad dispenses cheer in the form of a small printed slip.

"Cheer up, brother," it says. "Every cloud has a silver lining. Keep up your nerve and everything will come out all right. Six years ago every one thought I was down and out except myself.

"I had a two year siege of illness, which included four operations, and dropped from 180 pounds to 98 pounds. My business, which had taken fifteen years to build up, was smashed to smithereens, and I had to start all over at 52 years of age.

"I came back. So will you—if you have the heart and will to do. My business is again a success—enough so, at least, so that I can do this little to help others less fortunate.

Gratitude to His Maker.

"I am glad to do this little bit because my heart is filled with gratitude to my maker for all the blessings he has bestowed upon me after everything looked so black—to every one but me. I never lost hope. I want you to do likewise.

"Have the will to do, have patience, have hope, place your faith in God, and you will come out on top."

In his letter, Mr. Glad told the Associated Press: "You would do me a great favor if you could have some sort of a reading notice published in various papers asking the 'fellows with a job' to send in to me the half-worn gloves which they are now wearing."

It's "Mr. Glad, 346 Broadway."

Chairs and Tables Made of Aluminum on Show

Featuring newest styles in furniture, among them chairs and tables made of aluminum, the semi-annual furniture style show will open at the American Furniture Mart, 666 Lake Shore drive, Monday.

The aluminum pieces are designed for use in sun parlors or porches, and some for service in living rooms. They are similar to steel furniture which made its debut two years ago, but are considerably lighter.

It is expected the furniture show will attract 10,000 furniture men from all parts of the country. The display will last two weeks.

FIRST 1931 AUTO SHOW OPENS IN NEW YORK TODAY

Ease of Control Features New Designs.

BY TOM PETTEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 2.—[Special.]—The automobiles of 1931 will have their coming out party tomorrow at Grand Central palace. Almost two hundred sleek, shiny pleasure cars, a score of glistening commercial vehicles and more than a mile of accessories filled four floors on the eve of the opening of the thirty-first national automobile show.

The first motor show was held in old Madison Square Garden in November, 1900, with thirty-one "horseless carriages" exhibited. That year less than 5,000 automobiles were manufactured. Today the exhibits of motor vehicles, parts and accessories represents an industry annually turning out products with a value in access of five billions of dollars.

Speed Not the Keynote.

A check of the thirty-six makes of passenger cars, the twenty makes of trucks and taxicabs and the new shop equipment section reveals the customer is going to pay less for his automobile this year and get more for his money particularly in smartness and comfort. Speed is not to be the keynote of this year's show—the feature will be style and ease of control in traffic.

Eight cylinder models will predominate and there will be fewer sixes and a minimum of fours. The first sixteen cylinder motor made its appearance at the show last January and this season there will be two along with a couple of new twelves.

Many Improvements Seen.

However, there will be plenty of sixes and they will offer many improvements and engineering advances making for a smoother, quieter and at the same time more powerful engine for rapid acceleration and of control. Bodies have been made roomier and more comfortable and there is no doubt but that 1931 is a streamline year.

There will be refinements and improvements to be seen in all engines. Minor refinements will be noted in balancing and crankshaft and in devices to reduce vibration to the minimum. The new power plants will have better provisions for the distribution of the mixture to the various cylinders and exit of the exhaust gases.

The comfort and smartness of the 1931 models is striking. Wheelbases are longer and there are remarkable examples of closed coachwork made to open and open coachwork made to close.

KILLING OF 8 U. S. MARINES STIRS UP STORM IN SENATE

Demand Withdrawal of Forces.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 2.—[Special.]—Another bitter senatorial debate on the American policy of sending marines to Central American countries loomed today following the killing yesterday of eight marines by Nicaraguan bandits.

Criticism of the use of marines in Nicaragua came today from the radical camp in the senate and from Senator William H. King [Dem., Utah]. Chairman William E. Borah [Rep., Idaho] of the senate foreign relations committee stated his opinion that the marines never should have been sent to Nicaragua. Senator King announced that on Monday he will introduce a resolution asking for the immediate withdrawal of the 1,235 marines now in the Central American republic.

"A Political Tragedy."

"The casualties were a political and military tragedy," Senator King, long an opponent of the administration policy of using marines to maintain stability in the Caribbean, said. "It is not fair that we should put ourselves in a position where such catastrophes will occur. It is a bad thing to support American investments with bayonets. We interfere too much in other countries' affairs and have thus incurred the ill will of the Latin American peoples."

Late today the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom dispatched a letter to President Hoover urging that a definite date be set for withdrawing American forces from Nicaragua.

Marines Hunt Rebels.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Jan. 2.—(AP)—A strong United States marine patrol under command of Capt. Ernest Russell today scoured the hills adjacent to Achuapa in an effort to meet the Sandino followers who ambushed a marine patrol Wednesday, killing eight and wounding two.

MOTHER LOCATED HERE.

In an apartment hotel at 5517 Kenmore avenue yesterday the youthful looking mother of Edward Elliott, 17 year old marine who was among eight American marines killed in Nicaragua, wept over his fate as she packed her bags preparatory to leaving for her old home at Des Moines.

"While he hadn't lived with me since he was 4 years old, I had always kept in touch with Edward," Mrs. Doughty said. "He was a spirited and restless boy, always imaginative and looking for adventure. So when he ran away from home last May and joined the marines I determined not to insist on his returning home, which I could have done, since he was under age, because I believed the experience might do him good. I had not heard from him since he went to Nicaragua."

COUNTY REJECTS MILK BIDS; AWAIT WORD OF ARBITER

Dealers, Producers Want Ruling on Price Cut.

Cook county commissioners yesterday for the second time rejected bids for supplying milk to county institutions, because of the reduction of one cent per quart in Chicago, announced Thursday. The action was taken as milk dealers and farmers were anxiously waiting word from Dr. Clyde King, price arbiter, of Philadelphia, who has been asked to determine how the daily loss of $15,000 caused by the price reduction shall be distributed in the milk industry.

D. N. Geyer, manager of the Pure Milk association, declared last night that Dr. King had not replied to the request that he come to Chicago at the earliest possible date to make the arbitration. In the meantime, farmers will continue to deliver their milk, since the January production is not paid for by dealers until early in February.

Consumers generally expressed approval of the drop from 14 to 13 cents on a quart of milk. Notification of this reduction accompanied bills left with yesterday morning's milk. Dairymen expressed the hope that more milk would be consumed at the lowered price.

See Bread Price Cut.

That bread prices may also reflect the general food price declines was a belief expressed in several meetings of bakers here yesterday. The Independent Bakers' Club of Chicago, meeting at the Stevens hotel, drew up tentative contracts for the delivery men, whose present contracts expire Feb. 1.

Everett Wilshire of Gordon Baking company presided at the meeting. He asserted that, although it had been necessary to cut working hours of drivers, there had been no unemployment caused in the baking industry this season.

Bakers Start Own Plant.

A price war on Jewish bread that has been going on for a week in Lawndale reached a climax yesterday when 150 bakers employed by members of the Hebrew Master Bakers' club, 3211 West Roosevelt road, started their own bakery at 3713 West 16th street. The locked out bakers are selling bread in the district at 2 cents a pound, forcing the master bakers to reduce their price to 5 cents. The price war was caused by efforts of employers to reduce the union wage scale in 24 shops, according to Harry Berkens, a club official. He predicted it might involve Jewish bakers of the north side, making a total of 350 bakers to be locked out because they would not take a 25 per cent reduction in wages.

BEAT CLERK, STEAL $50.

Two armed men stole $50 from the Leblaw Groceteria till at 5643 West North avenue yesterday, after slugging Roy Roti, 2701 North Merrimac avenue, manager, because he was unable to open the store safe.

PREPARE BRIEF TO FIGHT APPEAL OF RALPH CAPONE

Special Assistant Attorney General Alfred Page, government brief expert, began work at the United States attorney's office yesterday on a brief to combat the appeal of Ralph J. Capone, who is under sentence of three years at Leavenworth penitentiary for income tax evasion.

The government prosecutors who obtained the conviction of Capone are preparing a case against Terry Druggan, whose income tax trial is set for Jan. 12. Capone's appeal is expected to be heard by the United States Court of Appeals early in February.

Federal authorities yesterday disclosed sworn testimony of Al Capone refuting stories of his valor under fire with the American Expeditionary Forces. Capone testified, it was learned, that he was registered for the draft in Brooklyn, but the armistice was declared before he was called. The statement was taken when Capone was questioned concerning bootlegging activities in Chicago Heights.

THE OUTLOOK FOR THE RAILROADS.

The president of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad, Mr. F. E. Williamson, says railroad executives can view their present difficulty philosophically, but they are genuinely alarmed for the future. At present the transportation business is depressed like all others; but Mr. Williamson fears that, when other business picks up, the railroads will continue to show poor earnings which can only be reflected in the long run in inferior equipment and service and heavy loss to investors.

We do not think that Mr. Williamson's views can be dismissed as the outgrowth of a temporary dejection. The railroads for the most part did fairly well in '28 and '29, but at the top of the boom their earnings were comparatively modest. In the main they enjoyed only a moderate prosperity. Meanwhile competitive forces have been gathering strength and the gradual improvement in general business anticipated in 1931 may work no corresponding improvement in the situation of the railroads.

Looking ahead, Mr. Williamson advocates less restriction on railroad initiative. He cites such matters as the refusal of the interstate commerce commission to permit the establishment of rates which would enable the transcontinental railroads to compete with shipping companies using the Panama canal. In this contention we are heartily in agreement with him. The commission today is seeking to perform a task that no commission can expect to accomplish satisfactorily: it is seeking to superintend the policies and make the rates of all the railroads in the country. By its nature, rate making is not a matter to be dealt with in wholesale quantities. Rates should be the product of a number of factors, not least important of which is the delicate competitive situation of industries using the railroads. To expect a commission to pass intelligent judgment each year on thousands and tens of thousands of such matters is to expect the impossible.

A student of railway economics recently summarized the matter as follows in a letter to the editor:

"A railway has a traffic department, the duties of which are supposed to consist of developing traffic for the rails of that carrier. Under government regulation the traffic manager has lost his job and has degenerated into a cigar passing solicitor whose only remaining resource or excuse for existence is to devise ways and means of increasing the gross of his own line by taking business away from another rail carrier. The initiative to create business has been taken away from him by regulation.

"Restore the creation of business to the carrier and watch results. Somebody will answer that such action will restore old conditions. It won't if the commission acts as a judicial body instead of assuming to 'traffic manage' the whole country."

Agreeing as we do with Mr. Williamson in his desire to free the railroads from galling restrictions, we cannot indorse his demand for imposing similar restrictions on the trucking companies. If regulation resulted in material benefit to the railroads it could only come through the imposition of higher rates by the trucks. Higher rates for common carrier trucks would result in the creation of privately owned fleets of trucks, free of regulation. Many industries operate such fleets now; many more would do so if the rates of the trucking companies were advanced. Regulating trucking companies cannot kill the competition of trucks.

Railroad men are justified in their opposition to present regulations restricting them. The remedy does not lie in imposing similarly deadening regulation on competitors, but in freeing the railroads.

UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF.

Chairman Clarke, the very able head of the governor's commission on unemployment relief, makes an appeal for substantial contributions from men and women of means. The small giver is contributing with a generosity highly creditable to the general spirit of our citizenship. His sacrifices must be supplemented by those who have in fact ample means and fully as much if not greater reason for meeting present conditions.

The situation of the commission and similar bodies, doubtless, throughout the country is especially difficult because it is recognized that aggressive propaganda is susceptible of misinterpretation and might raise unjustifiable fears or add unnecessarily to the psychological depression which is perhaps the chief obstruction to our progress back to normalcy. It is therefore especially the duty of the class from which the larger contributions may be sought and expected to do their own thinking, to face their own responsibility, and to act promptly without exhortation. The methods used so effectively in wartime ought not to be used now, but they will be if the situation requires it. To avoid this, more spontaneous giving from individuals who can best afford to give is a matter not only of good citizenship and humanity but of common sense and self-interest. The unemployed at this time are in the vast majority people who are in every respect deserving, who represent the solid character of our nation. To help them is to help ourselves and to save the nation from the very gravest social, political, and economic consequences. It is the homemaker, the worker of all classes, the industrious and law abiding builder of national prosperity who is in need today, and his need must be met promptly and substantially.

A GOOD BEGINNING.

The record of accomplishment reported by State's Attorney Swanson is one of which he and his aids may well be proud. Justice has been accelerated. Funds from fines and forfeitures have been recovered in substantially increased amounts to the public treasury. Leaders of underworld activities have been brought to book and a wholesome fear of the law has been spread among those not yet punished. Racketeering has had its first sharp rebuff and on the whole a substantial advance in the war against crime has been accomplished.

The public will be grateful and heartened to continue its support, not only of the state's attorney but of those members of the judiciary and the police officials who have been assisting in our rehabilitation as a community in which the law has its proper authority and decent citizenship the protection it pays for. We enter the new year with good reason for encouragement and optimism.

Our task is not yet accomplished. Far from it. But we have made an excellent beginning. There is no doubt of eventual success, but the war against corrupt politics, graft and lawlessness must be vigilantly and relentlessly waged. Good citizens have the essential part to play in supporting honest officials and public spirited organizations engaged, and above all else in intelligent voting. The key of the whole situation is corrupt politics. The most essential factor is the defeat of the loud mouthed demagogue and the secret pullers of wires who have demoralized government, wasted public money, and supported the system of underworld crime and exploitation.

ALL AROUND THE MULBERRY BUSH.

Senator Walsh of Montana evidently has persuaded himself that the Republican row over Senator Norris is not a private fight. He says that Robert H. Lucas, executive director of the Republican national committee, behaved reprehensibly and contemptibly in trying to defeat the Nebraskan. Senator Walsh made his comments in Florida, where, with Senator Nye, Republican, he seems to be studying the everglades from Miami Beach. The senators are on a park mission to see if something should be done in the way of a national contribution to Florida attractions.

Senator Nye may be relied upon for high grade investigations, and the holiday war in Washington found him taking the air and the sunshine in the country's most favored region. The radical life is not an unhappy one. It gets the earliest strawberries.

Senator Walsh as a Democrat resents the action of Mr. Lucas as a Republican campaign manager in his efforts to defeat Senator Norris, a Republican, and to elect Mr. Hitchcock, a Democrat. Mr. Lucas' objection as a Republican to Mr. Norris as a Republican is that Mr. Norris worked for Al Smith, a Democrat, against Herbert Hoover, a Republican. Mr. Walsh was for Mr. Smith and against Mr. Hoover, but for Mr. Norris and against Mr. Hitchock.

There is much production of newspaper copy, but none of it tends to a real clarification. Mr. Norris ran against a Democrat. Mr. Lucas worked for a Democrat. Mr. Norris isn't a Republican. Mr. Lucas is. Party lines in Washington look like hay wire. The senate's response to the third party movement could be the showing of thirty of them. Wherever there's a hat there's a party.

CANADIAN LIQUOR CONTROL.

A Canadian visitor to the city notices "a marked tendency on the part of the prohibitionist press and prohibitionist organizations to claim dire results for the liquor laws in Canada. According to these reports we are consuming hard liquor and beer in alarmingly increasing amounts. A Chicago organization of young prohibitionists has very recently made public such misrepresentations." Our correspondent calls attention to the annual report of the liquor control board of Alberta as summarized in a dispatch from the capital, Edmonton. The report shows a reduction of $723,000 in the sales at venders' stores for the six months ending Sept. 30 as compared with the same period of 1929. Sales of beer in all authorized places also declined to the extent of about 400,000 gallons. From the standpoint of the bone dry any consumption of alcoholic beverages is a sign of the failure of the system under which it takes place—except, of course, under prohibition.

Editorial of the Day

LOOKING FORWARD.

[New York World.]

There are many reasons to support the conclusion that we are at the end of the long downward trail.

1. There is evidence that the surpluses from past overproduction are being cleared out and, as Julius H. Barnes states in his latest report on business conditions, many industries have at last succeeded in balancing production and market consumption.

2. Money is easy and promises to remain so in the near future. This will be a very substantial help to recovery as other influences likewise become increasingly favorable.

3. The prices of some commodities are still receding, but the declines are slight and no longer general and drastic.

4. The prevailing opinion among industrialists is still opposed to wage reductions. There have been some downward revisions and there is still talk of deflating labor, but it does not come from representative employers. The maintenance of the wage earners' purchasing power at a high level is one of the best measures for speeding the recovery, once it begins.

Past experience shows that recovery from depression usually begins not while the professional sunshine spreaders are pointing out imaginary rainbows but after they have lapsed into silence and business men are becoming discouraged at the lack of signs of improvement. A few months ago Henry Ford remarked that "business will become better, but we will not know when it does." When business last year began to grow worse some time elapsed before we were aware of the change, and the same thing will happen as business begins to improve. If we are now at the bottom of the valley of depression, that is no cause for discouragement, for the next move will be upward.

HOW TO FOIL HEAT.

If the white man succeeds in mastering the insects which carry disease in the tropics he will still have before him the task of overcoming the effect of heat and humidity on his vital organs. Dr. C. J. Martin writes: "In my experience the obstacle to work in hot climates, for the European, is as much social as physiological. It is clothing.

"The coolie works with the brown, wet skin of his back wholly uncovered. He is happy and comfortable. The white man insists on covering his skin with clothing. In consequence he must maintain a refrigerating plant within himself or suffer from heat stroke. The bare, wet skin of the native spares him the need of a wearing, exhausting, self-contained, physiologic refrigeration plant."

If one must wear clothing it is well to select the fabric with wisdom. The different division of heat and light, as between that reflected and that absorbed by different fabrics, is as follows: White cotton shirt, two thicknesses, unstarched, 71 per cent reflected and 29 per cent absorbed; a khaki cotton shirt is warmer, the percentage reflected being 43 and that absorbed 57; dark gray flannel suiting is much warmer, 88 per cent of the heat to which it is exposed being absorbed; dress suiting is warmer still, 95 per cent being absorbed.

The percentages absorbed by different types and colors of skin were as follows: Fine white skin, 55 per cent absorbed; average blonde skin, 57 per cent; dark brunette, Semitic type, 65 per cent; dark complexion (some Negro crossing), 70 per cent; Hindu, 78 per cent; Negro, 84 per cent.

According to this research if the Negro stands exposure to sunlight better than the white man it is because of some factor besides his color. His simpler dress, better suited to the climate, is one factor; his simpler diet is another.

Dr. Martin found that the skin will absorb from the sunlight about as much heat as is made by walking at the rate of 3½ miles an hour.

DIET PROBABLY TOO RICH.

Mrs. M. S. writes: I would like you to tell me what the trouble with my baby's face can be. It appears to be a sort of rash, appearing first in red blotches and then water oozes out of what seem to be blisters. These itch very much and he is always scratching. I have used pastes and they relieve only temporarily. The rash appears on the cheeks near the ears and on the forehead. He is 1½ years old. He drinks a quart of milk daily and also a bowl of cereal mornings and vegetables at 1 o'clock. Also bread, butter, and fruit between times. His urine has a very strong odor, especially mornings. His bowels are regular. His only vegetables are carrots and cauliflower. I have tried every other vegetable, but they seem to nauseate him after the first or second spoonful.

REPLY.

Plainly, your child has eczema or tetter for which something in the diet is responsible. Probably his diet is too rich. You may need to use some substitute for milk. Your physician can solve your problem.

ROUND SHOULDERS.

M. H. writes: Our 2½ year old boy is round shouldered.

1. Could this be caused by sleeping on a pillow? In the summer he sleeps without one, but we find it keeps him warmer in winter. [Ordinary size pillow.]

2. Could it be caused by too violent exercise of the arms? He and his dad have great times together.

3. Please give proper exercise or other suggestions for remedy.

REPLY.

1. A deep, narrow chest is the probable cause.
2. I don't think so.
3. Does your physician think he needs cod liver oil or viosterol? Sunlight and open air help.

Children that are somewhat disposed to rickets are likely to have deep chests and to be stoop shouldered.

DRAWING YOUR WILL.

Chicago, Dec. 30.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. When a will is drawn up, must it be recorded at once? 2. Does this have to be done after death? 3. Also, what is meant by having a will drawn without bonds, or any further payments in regard to the money left by the deceased? 4. Are there any yearly taxes on money that will be due? 5. Can this be avoided and how? This will contains property with a clear title, money in the bank, building loan association, and also lodges. V. D.

1. No.
2. Probate proceedings are necessary—in order to produce merchantable title to real estate, for example.
3. Most wills provide that the executor shall not be required to give surety on his official bond. This is probably what you had in mind.
4. There are inheritance taxes on property passing by descent or by will.
5. Such an arrangement is practicable, but is too technical to be handled to advantage without the services of an attorney.

SALE OF UNDIVIDED INTERESTS.

Chicago, Dec. 30.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Five sisters were willed a home worth about $6,000 seven years ago by their mother, the father having died some time before. I am in need of funds and wish to know how I can secure my share even though the others do not wish to sell. Please advise me the best way to proceed. M. H.

Where owners of undivided interests in real estate cannot agree any one of them is entitled to force a public sale by partition proceedings. The cost of such proceedings, including the complainant's solicitor's fees, is chargeable against the proceeds of sale.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

MATRIMONIALLY INCLINED.

Chicago, Dec. 30.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Can a couple get married the same day they take out their marriage license anywhere in Indiana or must they go to Crown Point? 2. I understand that there are no requirements of residence in Indiana in order to get married there by a justice of the peace. 3. What are the fees? J. M.

1. Yes.
2. Correct.
3. They are small.

THE NEW YEAR STARTED HAPPILY—BUT—

look at the darned thing now! Yesterday we were still happy, it was the second day of the happy New Year, and the happiness had lasted over and was fairly oozing all over the place. And what happened? The first mail of the New Year brought—what! Ah, we need not tell you; you got 'em, too. We were still saying "Happy New Year" to all and sundry when it was put into our hands. At once happiness fled, the sky turned from a bright, beautiful blue to a dirty gray; faces that before had seemed to beam only sweetness and joy turned to malevolence and hate. "Happy New Year" seemed to sing from every corner, and then the sinister envelope was given us and right away strange, weird voices began to whisper—"Lykell, lykell, lykell!" We had thought, oh so hopefully, so confidently, that 1931 was going to be full of roses and sunshine; it was to be so different from 1930! And then came the income tax blank. Away went all our dreams! Grim, stern reality stared us in the face. Happy New Year! And the income tax notice in our hand. Happy New Year! Well, if we could only have met dear, laughing little 1931 at about that moment we'd have given him a swift kick in the pants.

STAR-DUST AND REALITY.

"Moonlight made vocable," some poet said,
With careless laugh I tossed away the phrase,
And yet the words have lingered in my head,
Persisting on through dark and sunlit days,
Through all the wasted years I've struggled to Imprison beauty on a printed page,
Seeing far down the colonnade of yew
The dying embers of a bitter age.

This beauty will be dust . . . I cannot say
Whether the dust be gold or whether gray,
But this I know, the fairest things of life
Slip somehow from us in the daily strife;
"Moonlight made vocable," runs the refrain,

E. LESLIE SPAULDING.

PEACE ON EARTH, good will to men! "With the naval peace treaty now in full effect," said the news from Washington yesterday, "the United States navy general board is concentrating on plans for development of an efficient six inch gun cruiser." Sometimes we wonder if military and navy people have any sense of humor. Or, maybe six inch guns do not kill quite as thoroughly as eight or ten inch guns.

TO SHOW how extremely quiet the New Year is, one of the most important of the telegraph stories in the papers yet was the sad tale of a bantam hen in Loz Onglaize who starved herself to death because her husband was made into a stew when his early and persistent crowing annoyed the neighbors. Not much of a story, although it contains a tender little bit of pathos, much tenderer probably than the rooster was. However, news is more or less scarce when the papers pay telegraph tolls on a heart-broken hen.

TCK! TCK! TCK! Likewise tut, tut! The Alabama football outfit goes out to California to play Washington State, champions of the Pacific coast, in the Rose bowl at Pasadena on New Year's day. And Alabama beats the champions of the Pacific slope, 24 to 0. Do you know, some day we're going to commence and believe that the climate out there has changed or something. Anyhow, it isn't what it used to be. How sad, how truly sad!

THE P. O. P.

Splintered old holder,
Rusty old point,
Wibby and wobbly
And weak in the joint.
Corroded, and cursed at
Again and again,
Sputtering, scribbling
Old postoffice pen.

Inky and dinky
With one tooth gone,
Stubby and groggy,
You write on and on.
Some day they'll change you,
But goodness knows when,
Rusty, old trusty
Old postoffice pen.

Stroking you downward,
You work like a charm,
But when we go upward
God shield you from harm,
For many's the mortal
Holding you then
Would splutter still worse than
Our postoffice pen.

Worn out but working,
Still at it hard,
Mostly for Roebuck's
Or Montgomery Ward.
Orders and love notes
From women and men—
"Excuse all the splutters,
It's the postoffice pen!"

IT SEEMS just as though we never get out of one big election mess before we're into another. The freer the people under a Republican form of government become the more eager they grow to elect a lot of people to boss 'em.

OH, WELL! We've feared it was going to happen for a long time! And now it has! This is the machine-gun age and we're getting afraid to poke our nose out of doors any more. And now somebody has kidnaped our last line for this morning!

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JANUARY 3, 1915.

LONDON.—Fifty more men from the British battleship Formidable, sunk by a German submarine off Dartmouth, reached safety after riding out a fierce gale for upwards of 20 hours in an open cutter. This brings the number of survivors to 201 out of a crew of 780. The survivors say that all officers of the Formidable stuck to their posts to the last and went down with their ship.

VIENNA.—There is now no doubt that the main Russian attack is being directed against Hungary instead of Germany or western Galicia. Official dispatches say that the Russians in enormous numbers have driven their way through the Carpathians, advancing in four columns from Nysykow, Skyl, Turka, and Gorlice. The vanguard of the invaders is the crack 8th Russian corps, and behind it are the first line Russian troops, apparently withdrawn from the Polish front.

LONDON.—Fighting which increases in volume and intensity, and which is believed to indicate the beginning of a battle that will equal if not exceed those of the Marne and Aisne, is in progress in France. The Germans have renewed their efforts to break through the French lines in the Argonne region, and between the Meuse and the Meuse, as well as along the heights of the Meuse. Berlin reports that French attacks near Nieuport have failed and claims gains at other points.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

JANUARY 3, 1901.

CAPE TOWN.—The alarm over the prospect of a Dutch revolt in Cape Colony is rapidly approaching a panic. The battleship Monarch will land a number of rapid fire and heavy guns to protect the city of Cape Town from possible attack. Martial law has been proclaimed in several districts and recruiting is going on at a lively rate. The Boer invaders are working toward Graaf Reinet. Seven hundred have broken through the cordon at Zuurburg and are advancing on Richmond. The Boers have reoccupied Jagersfontein, which the British evacuated on Christmas day.

CHICAGO.—A story of self-sacrifice came to light last night when Robert Halcott's "Brown from Boston" theatrical company returned to Chicago, accompanying the body of the youngest member of the cast, 12 year old Hattie Florette Farley. The girl died on Jan. 1 at Hartford City, Ind., after a week's illness of tonsillitis and diphtheria, during which time she kept her illness a secret and persisted in her part, which could not be performed by an understudy. Miss Farley was the daughter of E. V. Farley, 269 Bissell street, who is well known as an old time theatrical manager.

LONDON.—Under an agreement made public today Russia virtually assumes a protectorate over the Chinese province of Manchuria, contrary to the assurances heretofore made to the powers. The text of the agreement as cabled from Peking provides for a Russian political resident, the disarming of the Chinese soldiers, and the dismantling of all Chinese forts and arsenals.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

NEW YORK.—Central park suffered a severe calamity in the destruction by fire of the park museum, situated on what is known as Mount St. Vincent.

COLUMBUS, O. — A prominent attorney from New York is now in Columbus collecting evidence calculated to reflect upon the character of Mrs. Kate Chase Sprague before her marriage. The details of all the affairs are being collected with scrupulous care, and if the lady ever did anything which the laws of good society forbid it is quite safe to say the world will know it.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A report is current that the navy portfolio was tendered by President Hayes to Levi P. Morton, the New York banker, with the understanding that he was to be continued in the position by President Garfield. The report further has it that Morton declined the appointment and said that unless he could be Garfield's secretary of the treasury he would accept no position in the new administration, whereupon he was notified that he could not have the treasury appointment.

A REALLY NOBLE EXPERIMENT.

Chicago, Dec. 31.—Why not try an experiment to start the new year?

Amend the Volstead act to allow the importation, manufacture and sale of light wines and beer. Provide that importations of these articles only be allowed on condition that an equal in value of our grains to be bought by the exporter abroad of the wines, etc. Fix the ad valorem rate of duty here on the importations at a rate equal to the ad valorem rate of duty abroad on the grain. Fix the maximum alcoholic content of the wines, beer, etc., to be imported or manufactured.

Anticipated results:

Employment for over 1,000,000 people here in the beer and wine industry.

Death to the bootlegging industry.

An immediate solution of our surplus wheat problem.

Large revenue to the U. S. treasury from the duties on imported wines, etc.

ARE THESE THE ASHES?

Chicago, Dec. 29.—In today's TRIBUNE a request was made for a poem entitled "Ashes of Love." The letter was signed by Gertrude J. F. Ellingham of Sandwich, Ontario. I have a poem entitled "Ashes." It begins:

I opened the book at random
And ashes from your pipe
Came fluttering from the pages
And danced about the type.

Tokens of those golden hours
When you read aloud to me,
And smoked beside the hearth fire,
While I prepared the tea.

E. G. J.

YOUNG AT 45.

Chicago, Dec. 31.—I cannot supply the desired poem, "Ashes of Love," to Gertrude Ellingham of Sandwich, Ont., but I can supply her with the valuable information that a lady of "almost 46" is not regarded as old—anyway, not in this part of the country."

If she will just read up on the new present day theories she will find that the women of today are not old, unless they personally feel that way. Numbers mean absolutely nothing. I am a woman of 45, look less, and I dare any one to call me an "old lady." I love poetry and am just as romantic as I was 20 years ago. This is no complex, either. Aren't we entitled to enjoy just a little poetry and romance at this age without being ashamed of it? C. S.

FAIR WEATHER SAILORS.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 1.—Business would come back faster in 1931 if all who are between the ages of 21 and 31 could be eliminated. They came into the business world in a period of expansion and easy money and are as helpless now as a land turtle on its back. They can't get a toehold. Business will come back largely through the younger and older people in business.

THE BONUS.

Riverside, Ill., Dec. 31.—In [illegible] issue of THE TRIBUNE you [illegible] statement by the director of the [illegible] ans' bureau to the effect that three [illegible] dred millions or so are available [illegible] to the ex-service men. What could [illegible] you wish to draw therefrom is [illegible] plainly stated, though it is probably [illegible] tended to quash any pleas for [illegible] ment of the bonus now. Inasmuch [illegible] the director has said that 1,600,000 [illegible] have already made loans on their [illegible] cates, it is quite apparent that the [illegible] due available can benefit only [illegible] veterans who are not in financial [illegible] Inasmuch as only 3,395,000 [illegible] certificates and that their average [illegible] value is probably about $450, the [illegible] cellation of these papers would [illegible] greatly exceed 2 billions and [illegible] better arranged for the government [illegible] the present moment than on a [illegible] market. The only argument [illegible] such a policy appears to be that [illegible] Mellon "don't wantta," as the [illegible] treasurer desires to chop a few [illegible] million from the debt each year.

C. G.

CHILDREN'S READING.

Chicago, Dec. 30.—Recently my [illegible] er assigned me to read Galsworthy's "Forsyte Saga." I went to the [illegible] picked out the book, and went to my [illegible] desk to check the book, where I was [illegible] informed that I couldn't take it [illegible] because I did not have an adult card. [illegible] It is an outrage to compel a person [illegible] be in their third year of high school [illegible] in order to get an adult card. Why [illegible] a person of 17 or 18 has sufficient [illegible] telligence to read a so-called adult book [illegible] If he hasn't he surely would not after [illegible] of reading books by such authors as [illegible] Hardy, Galsworthy, Tolstoy, Conrad, [illegible] It is a shame that a person who [illegible] has a right to read good books is compelled to read baby books.

FRANCIS KANE.

CROWDED BUSES.

Chicago, Dec. 30.—It is an [illegible] impossibility to extricate oneself from the mass of humanity packed in front of the motor coach company's [illegible] deck buses on arrival at his [illegible] destination, and when there is a [illegible] less driver at the wheel who has [illegible] scruples or conscience in regard to [illegible] plying the brakes, one jar and you are then comfortably or uncomfortably [illegible] whichever the case may be, either on the floor or upon some of your disconcerted bus mates.

Let's see that the officials of the company take immediate action, or if necessary have the city council ordain that there shall be allowed in each bus but five standing passengers in addition to the full seating capacity.

TO TRY AGAIN

MARCIA MASTERS.

Miss Marcia Masters, 21 years old, daughter of Edgar Lee Masters, the poet, and her former husband, Malcomb A. Jennings, 1250 Stone street, whom she divorced four weeks ago, have obtained a license to remarry, it was revealed yesterday in the records of the county clerk. Their marriage license, the last to be issued in 1930, was procured late New Year's eve, a few minutes after the county clerk's office had been closed.

Miss Masters won a divorce from Jennings, an artist, on Dec. 4, before Circuit Judge Trude. She charged cruelty and was awarded alimony of $7,200 and her maiden name. The couple had been married on July 7, 1930, at Keokuk, Ia., and separated on Aug. 25.

Miss Masters won fame at the age of 10 by writing a novel and since that time she has written poetry. She attended the University of Chicago and was a member of the Mortarboard society. She is an active member of the Junior league and the Service club.

M'NARY AGAIN PROPHESIES: "NO EXTRA SESSION"

Three Other Senators Differ with Him.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 2.—[Special.]—In the face of a growing determination on the part of radical and independent Republicans and some Democrats, Senator Charles L. McNary [Rep., Ore.], assistant majority leader of the senate, announced confidently today that the appropriation bills were going to go through and that there would not be any extra session of congress.

Talking against him he had Senators Smith W. Brookhart [Rep., Ia.], radical Republican; James Couzens of Michigan, independent Republican, and Thaddeus H. Caraway of Arkansas, Democrat.

He still insisted that no extra session would be necessary. And those who remembered how he predicted that congress would recess for Christmas on Dec. 21, when all signs pointed to Dec. 23 or 24, and how congress did recess only six minutes past midnight on the 21st, were inclined to wonder whether he was going to be right this time.

Hoover's Stand Rumored.

To lend official support to his optimism is the report that President Hoover is ready to make it an open issue with congress and that, perhaps as early as next Tuesday, he will issue a statement declaring that he does not desire to call an extra session, and will not unless congress assumes the responsibility by forcing an extra session through a holdup of the appropriation bills.

Senator Brookhart was particularly irate over the proposed four system merger of eastern railroad lines and he did not flinch at the mention of a filibuster.

"The merger is financial rather than in the people's interest," he declared. "If they are going ahead with big grabs like that, there is going to be an extra session. I wouldn't mind all the railroads in one system, but would not want Pierpont Morgan as manager."

May Look Into Rail Merger.

Though not so definite concerning his stand on an extra session, Senator Couzens sustained the report that the interstate commerce committee of the senate was ready to look into the rail merger. The committee already has power to investigate such consolidations through a resolution passed last June.

"There are fellows who say congress ought not to be in session because of the harm it does to the country and to business," said Senator Caraway. "Well, either those fellows ought not to belong to a body that's so harmful and in which they haven't any faith, or else they're just hypocrites talking for political effect, and on that basis are unfit to be members of congress."

He produced a letter from an Arkansas farmer who for thirty years had voted the Republican ticket.

Keeps Caraway on Job.

"This fellow," said Senator Caraway, "has changed his mind and his politics now, and he says for me to watch out that the Republicans don't steal the capitol. So, you see, I have a duty to stay here for an extra session—so government property won't disappear."

The latest report on the Muscle Shoals resolution is that it may go over until next December. It is now in joint conference, and, rather than have the conference deadlocked, it is reported that supporters of government ownership are willing to have the delay.

BOOKS

Author Gains History While Charm Lessens

Hergesheimer's New Book Reflects Changes.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"The Limestone Tree," by Joseph Hergesheimer. [Knopf.]

Joseph Hergesheimer has for several years been gradually eliminating from his writing the quality which made his first books incomparably beautiful, that five sensed sensitiveness.

JOSEPH HERGESHEIMER.

In the early novels, "Java Head," for the best example, every one of the five senses made the pages brilliant. You, the reader, actually touched a piece of jade, felt its cold, velvet smoothness, you actually smelt the strange, almost mystic scent of the heroine's fan, you actually saw, in its intricate and exquisite design, the pattern of the material which fashioned her gown, you tasted the tart sharpness of a fruit, you heard as if she were actually speaking to you the lilt of the heroine's voice.

The reader was moved by his senses, just as one often is moved by one of them, hearing most often, by fine music. Mr. Hergesheimer gave to American literature a richness, an almost oriental extravagance of the senses.

Now, those days are all past. Perhaps they seemed childish to him, and he has put childish things behind him. He has turned lately to the facts of history, as far removed from the emotions of the senses as anything could be. I, for one, preferred him as a sensualist in words. He writes with skill now. He does not write with surpassing beauty.

"The Limestone Tree" is the long chronicle of a Kentucky family, carried through from the earliest days of settlement to an indefinite present. It is told in episodes—high points in the lives of the various generations, with a general theme that for the clan troubles always came out of the south. The trouble begins with the murder of the beautiful New Orleans wife of her uncle by a woman who suspects the indolent lovely one of casting a spell upon her child.

There follow other killings, murders, duels, dramatic shootings. Once the head of the family was shot down by the husband of his sister for some casual political difference, and the whole male branch of the family vied with one another for the privilege of shooting the murderer.

Another time a brother killed his brother. The culmination of the killings was when a woman of thirty-odd shot her uncle, because she loved him and couldn't bear that he should go on living unhappily. Two wars used its men, 1812 and the civil war.

The civil war tore its branches from the parent bole. Some it scattered to the north, some to the south. But always there lived through everything a deeply rooted passion for Kentucky. Even a boy born in Paris, with a famous French actress as mother, of Paris body and soul, felt, when he visited Kentucky for the first time, the powerful pull of those roots.

The first part of the book is inevitably to be compared with Elizabeth Madox Roberts' "The Great Meadow." "The Limestone Tree" is a much less fine piece of work than Miss Roberts' epic of early Kentucky. It lacks the flavor of the language (although it, too, employs at times the vernacular), and there is absent that indescribable deep passion in the writing. Its canvas, however, is wider and deeper than "The Great Meadow's." It is the saga of generation after generation, and by its very sweep it has power.

It is as unpleasing in theme as its title would suggest, and by many readers will be regarded as morbid. It is thus not for all tastes. But the author has much power. She has the gift of imagining a scene very intensely and of presenting it with great impressionist vigor. She can describe the hot sun and the color of Italy, or the love of a little girl for her father, as if she were herself at the moment feeling that sun or that love. She can suggest the emotions of hatred and fear, or horror and distaste, in such a way that the reader [though not sympathetic] is fully aware of the strength of the emotion and responds to the printed description of it as he would respond to actual contact with it. And on a larger scale than this Miss Moore will do very fine work indeed. At present, in spite of courage and great gifts, she is hindered by that poetic quality which causes some of her writing to be obscure in meaning. "Spleen," accordingly, will hardly achieve great popularity, even with those to whom the character of the brooding heroine is not distasteful; but the book is extremely interesting work, and the author is one whose mature performances should be awaited with confidence.

Miss Moore's husband long has been known in London as a draughtsman and caricaturist, but his reputation as a bold and original sculptor also is very great. He is to hold in London in the near future an exhibition of sculpture and he will show a number of bust portraits of famous writers. Just lately he has been making a bust of Mr. Hugh Walpole, which will be included in the exhibition.

A late 1930 book which should be borne in mind by students is A. C. Ward's "The Nineteen Twenties," a lively survey of current English literature which is entirely free from perfunctoriness, platitude, and the mere urge to make books.

"MEN HATE WOMEN," NEW ARLEN BOOK FOR COMING SPRING

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—With the passing of the old year and the coming of the new, publishers already are sending out advance copies of those books which are to make the spring of 1931 notable in the realm of literature. Every year there is a smaller pause between the seasons of autumn and spring.

MICHAEL ARLEN. [Gallo Photo.]

Among the earliest volumes of fiction to appear in London in the new year will be Michael Arlen's novel, "Men Hate Women." It is a short book, but provocative. It will be quickly followed by the new long novel which Aldous Huxley has finished within the last few weeks. The season promises to be a busy one.

But we are not yet done with the old year, and a novel of 1930 which has been making gradual progress with those who take an interest in distinguished new products is still being much talked about. This bears the not especially attractive title of "Spleen." The author, Olive Moore, a very young woman, the wife of Sava Botzaris, Greek sculptor [though she herself is English by birth], already has published one book, a tale of convent life called "Celestial Seraglio." And "Spleen," which is far from easy to comprehend, owing to the illusiveness and poetical compression of the style in which it is written, promises much for the future.

Royal Russian Woman Tells Story in Book

She Also Ornaments a Publisher's Tea.

BY ALTA MAY COLEMAN.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Marie, grand duchess of Russia, one of the last surviving Romanoffs, granddaughter of the Czar Alexander II, and cousin of the ill-fated Nicholas II., was guest of honor at the Viking Press tea last Monday.

The party was held in the Hotel Chatham in a charming room ranged with deep mirrors which reflected the groups clustered about low tea tables decked with bouquets of spring flowers. The room wasn't overheated, nor overcrowded, and the punch didn't need the addition from a pocket flask to which we observed one experienced tea party male treat it before tasting. If this be the Russian influence in literature, we're for it.

Her Highness Marie, as you probably have guessed, now adds the thrills of being an author to the experiences of a life crowded with dramatic contrasts. She is getitng a real kick out of her first book; you know it from her genuine enthusiasm over its typography and jacket.

There is nothing of the wan aristocrat, wistful for lost grandeur, about the grand duchess, nor any romantic claim for dangers passed. She is wholesomely human and unaffected. This quality permeates her memoir, "Education of a Princess," which is released to the public next week. In the gently ironic vein of the title she tells of what she learned from courtly magnificence, banishment, loveless marriage to a prince, revolution, fellow conspirators, hidden jewels, divorce, war service as a nurse at the front, true love, black bread and perils in the chaotic days of the commune, flight and escape.

The grand duchess is in her middle thirties, lives in New York, earns her living in one of the swank 5th avenue dress shops. She has long blue-gray eyes, brown hair, a ready smile. From her appearance, you might mistake her for an American—a smartly groomed American, to be sure. She speaks English fluently, but with definite accent; speaks French, of course; and Russian, which she had not learned until after she was six years old. For she had English nurses.

The man who chatted with her in her native tongue while we were hovering round was, we discovered through a later introduction, Alexander Kaun of the University of California. He came east for the modern languages conference to be held in Washington next week. Princess Radziwill and Prince Matchabelli—I hope I spelled that right—were other titles at the party. George Kaufman and Heywood Broun were there; Mr. and Mrs. Condé Nast, William Rose Benet, and Lewis Browne, author of "This Believing World."

Alec Waugh, who has taken an apartment in New York for the winter, we heard discussing with Blair Niles the joys of Haitian history and the difficulties of being serialized. "I'm not moral enough to be serialized," observed Blair. "I've been once," declared Waugh, "but they cut out two characters."

At the Hotel Astor on Saturday the Pond bureau gave a luncheon, at which the eighty notables included many authors who go in for that by-product of literature, lecturing. George Russell (AE) was present, Joseph Auslander, William Beebe, Will Cuppy, the only remaining specimen of the talking or chattering hermit of the north temperate zone, and John Mason Brown, the young dramatic critic of the New York Evening Post. His new book "Upstage," is a lively discussion of playwrights, actors, and movie stars of today.

"Glorified" Is Novel About and by Ex-Follies Girl

"Glorified," by Dorothy Wegman [Brentanos], is a novel about a Follies chorus girl by one of them, Mr. Ziegfeld proclaims. "I wish every young girl who has aspirations to go on the stage could read this honest and delightful story of one of the most charming of my own Follies girls." The heroine gets ahead without giving up anything but a little sleep. The author is the wife of Samson Raphaelson, dramatist and Hollywood scenario writer.

MIDLAND AUTHORS TO DEDICATE NEW ROOM ON WEDNESDAY

When the Society of Midland Authors meets for luncheon on Wednesday it will be attending its own housewarming. A Midland Authors room has just been hewn out of the solid rock of the Hotel Sherman, dressed up with dashing wall paper and bookshelves from the floor to the ceiling and has been presented to the society by Mr. Byfield, owner of the hotel.

It is fitting that the oldest hostelry in Chicago, where many of the midland authors of another day have been bedded and boarded luxuriously, should be the spot where—when they have finished filling the shelves—the Midland Authors will find a library of their own and other books from the midland. Each author is contributing a copy of his book, or books, and midland works of other days will gradually be assembled. After it has housewarmed itself the Society of Midland Authors will receive its friends for tea. And they will dine en famille, making Wednesday, Jan. 7 a good all around Midland Author day.

The Thirty club, which is composed of thirty souls dedicated to the business of writing and publishing and editing, in the house on the roof, will meet on Monday for luncheon and a special pre-view of the Midland Author home has been promised them. After the home has been properly "warmed" luncheon will be served there any day for any members of the society. It looks as if Chicago were finally going to achieve a meeting place of the literati.

Meetings and Lectures

"Staying with Relations," by Rose Macaulay, will be reviewed this evening at the meeting of the Bookfellows, 19 South La Salle street, at 6 o'clock.

The Chicago Drama league will have a distinguished guest luncheon on Monday in the red lacquer room of the Palmer house, at which Lee Simonson of New York will be the speaker.

Rabbi Hillel Silver will talk on "Present Day Literature of Despair" at the Emil G. Hirsch center on Monday at 8:15 p. m.

Friends of American Writers will meet at the Knickerbocker hotel on Wednesday at 1:30 p. m.

"Mr. and Mrs. John Quincy Adams," by Dorothy Bobbé; "Lone Cowboy," by Will James; "Philippa," by Anne Douglas Sedgwick, and "The Edwardians," by Vita Sackville-West, will be the books discussed.

SCIENCE WEIGHS A WORLD; PRIES INTO BABY'S NAP

After Which Cleveland Conclave Ends.

Cleveland, O., Jan. 2.—(AP)—The fine tungsten filament in your electric lamp is the spring of the scale with which science has weighed the earth's 6,000,000,000,000,000,000,000 tons.

If your baby needs more sleep it is not so good to put him to bed earlier at night. An afternoon nap is better.

With these extremes illustrating the scope of its researches, the American Association for the Advancement of Science today closed its eighty-seventh annual meeting.

The babies who performed their sleeping tricks for science lived in Chicago—the sons and daughters of college professors. They were studied by Doctors H. M. Johnson, Marion M. Jacobsen and Carlyle F. Jacobsen of the Mellon institute of the University of Pittsburgh.

What Scientists Found.

"It has already been shown," this report stated, "that the afternoon nap does not tend to retard or shorten the sleep of the night, or to render it more restless.

"If a child is judged to be in need of more rest than it is getting, the ideal way of gaining it is by means of the afternoon nap. Experimental evidence exists which indicates that it is much harder to gain more rest by lengthening the child's stay in bed at night."

This stay in bed at night is quite a circus. From 60 to 90 times a night the youngster will change his sleeping posture, this is twice as often as an adult shifts. But this does the children no harm.

Weighing the Earth.

To weigh the earth more accurately than has been done before science merely had to send to the nearest electrical supply house in Washington to get some tungsten filament and then do six years' intensive work at measuring and calculating.

The ordinary commercial filament was the heart of the scales, as described by Dr. Paul R. Heyl of the United States bureau of standards, Washington.

A wire one-thousandth of an inch thick, suspended a tiny bar made to resembled a dumbbell by having a two ounce glass ball attached to each end. This feathery dumbbell would move slowly when two steel cylinders, each weighing 140 pounds, were placed close to the balls.

Pull Is Calculated.

The rotational movement, Dr. Heyl said, was caused by the gravitational pull of the big weights upon the glass balls.

The apparatus differed from previous designs in obtaining a very slow swing of the dumbbell, so that the scientists could measure the effect of a swing lasting five minutes, instead of one taking but about half a minute. This also made for greater accuracy.

As a result the pull of gravitation was found slightly larger than previously believed. Knowing this pull, called the gravitation constant, the earth's weight was obtained by mathematical computation.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Teacher!

Federal, county and city civil service examinations were taken by 36,966 persons in Chicago during 1930, substantial increases over the previous year being shown in the number of applicants for all classes of service. Examiners attributed the increased demand for civil service jobs to the business depression and consequent unemployment.

The greatest number of applicants and the highest percentage of increase over 1929 were registered by the city civil service commission, which has far more employes on its lists than the county and federal government departments here combined. Examinations for the competitive civil service were taken by 15,344; for unskilled labor, 17,000, and for promotion, 2,692. The percentage of increase over the applications of 1929 was between 75 and 80.

City Civil Service Figures.

There were 13,000 certifications for entrance to the city civil service during the year, 6,000 promotions and 1,840 reinstatements.

A total of 1,611 persons took the examination for truant officers, for which there were only 40 vacancies. An examination for bus attendants, who assist crippled children to and from school, was taken by 404 persons, there being only a few vacancies. A total of 2,317 took the examination for bathroom attendants, who care for neglected children in school, and there were less than a score of vacancies. An examination for police sergeant was taken by 1,828 patrolmen. A total of 1,528 were examined for firemen and between five and six thousand are waiting for the next examination for police patrolman.

1,930 Seek County Jobs.

Applications for the county civil service, which is limited to the county charitable institutions and the highway and forest preserve forces, totaled 1,930, an increase of about 40 per cent over 1929.

Examinations for federal civil service were given to 21,697, as compared with 18,329 in the previous year, an increase of 18 per cent. The number of examinations held decreased 7 per cent, due to a reduction in the personnel turnover.

Clothes Bring Out the Versatility of Woman's Character

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

A noted artist recently announced that clothes can make a woman many-charactered—a high born lady, a street girl, a madonna or a witch, or a what-do-you-want-to-be? Not actually many-charactered, but looking different rôles in different frocks.

Woman's instinctive talent for self-dramatizing the artist claimed to be the force motivating the seeming character changes. He said that he could take any quiet little homebody, give her an Oriental headdress and a gilded robe and she'd take on some of the Oriental spirit. Or the costume of any country would transpose her to a spirit of that country. Fancy dress balls the artist used to prove his point.

And there's more to it than greets the eye in its printed version of an artist's thoughts. Joseph Hergesheimer fashioned a brilliant novel on the theme of a gorgeous party dress that had so revivifying an effect on its wearer that it and the 40 year old woman in it nearly shot the whole domestic works into divorce's kingdom come.

We don't recommend that kind of a dress, as divorce seems to come easily enough as is. But, truly, certain clothes that we wear change us into a bright and reasonably care free person, whereas others that have gotten into our wardrobes have a most dampening effect. It more often is color that is at fault than line. It may be both, however. And it may be only the line.

The beauty effect of clothes is just one of the most important angles we have to conjure with. Women, to be sure, are perfectly aware of the fact, since when they're wanting to look their very best for an especial social function a dress bill is bound to come into the picture.

Housewives sensed the value of dress in connection with their duties when they transformed themselves from homely ginghamed ducklings into gay little humming birds with charming chintzed plumage.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

D. L.: FOR CHAPPED HANDS A simple lotion of equal parts of spirits of camphor and glycerine is excellent. Apply it several times during the day.

MRS. G. McM.: RAPID EATING will cause red, blotchy rashes on the face. The food isn't properly masticated and more food is taken than required. Digestion is overtaxed, and skin disturbances result.

F. P.: FOR AN UNDERARM bleach use a teaspoonful of peroxide to which has been added a couple of drops of household ammonia.

This Suit Wears Its Vest on Its Skirt

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.] Waistcoats of all kinds are appearing in the new sports clothes designed for Riviera, Palm Beach and early spring wear. Lelong is making separate vests of wool velours or duvetyne in contrasting colors—often darker than the costume—to wear with his new flannel sports suits. Maggy Rouff's vests often match the jacket and contrast with the skirt. Patou has some amusingly boyish, sleeveless vests of crêpe de chine or fine jersey. Jane Regny gives hers sleeves and little round collars and uses them instead of blouses to wear under suits as waist length jackets to wear over sports frocks.

This Lucile sports suit wears its vest on its skirt. Really, what looks like a vest is a tight hip yoke that buttons up the front and has real, honest to goodness, vest pockets.

M. Rossi makes this girlish suit of thick, black, wool jersey flecked with white. The skirt is box plaited all round, and, by the way, the vogue for Scotch plaids, turning the couturiers' attention toward kilts, has brought back a lot of plaited skirts for both sports and tailored wear. There's a simple blouse of the black and white jersey and a little sleeveless blouse jacket for extra warmth; both of these being worn tucked inside the gilet skirt top. The cuffs, round collar and the little choir boy's jabot are of fine, white silk jersey. The buttons that trim it, as well as the buttons on the skirt, are of jet.

8 WORLD'S FAIR BUILDINGS WILL RISE THIS YEAR

The coming year will see the construction of eight World's Fair buildings, it was announced yesterday by Rufus C. Dawes, president of the fair. The buildings will cost nearly $15,000,000. To be built in four major building units, the group will be comprised of the electrical group, including a radio building, a communications building and an electrical building, which will rise on the south end of the island now occupied by the Adler planetarium; three large buildings, designed by Paul Cret, to go up south of Soldiers' field; an example of Mayan architecture to be located at 36th street and the lake and an exhibition hall to be built by the federal government.

How French Women Make Up Their Lips to Last All Day

—And Avoid Making Up Every Hour As American Women Do

Louis Philippe, temperamental French colourist, who has made make-up an art—and about whom all Paris is talking. Shown here with one of his famous clients, Betty Compton, of movie fame.

You use it on your cheeks, too—just a touch with the finger-tips—and thus have the color of your cheeks blend perfectly with the color of your lips.

A French Discovery that Takes the Bother Out of Make-up. No Caking, No Drying, No Unsightly "Lipstick Line"

AWAY has been found that not only gives a perfect lip make-up quicker and easier than any way known before, but that HOLDS perfectly all day long. Instead of making up every hour, you make up only once or twice a day!

It's a French idea, of course. And in both France and America it is rapidly changing present ways of make-up.

The creation of Louis Philippe, temperamental colourist, whom all of Paris follows in the art of make-up, it banishes all smearing, all caking and drying and ends completely the unsightly "lipstick line" most women complain of a few minutes after making up.

WHAT IT IS

It is called Angelus Rouge Incarnat and comes as probably the nearest thing to a permanent make-up yet discovered. It is different from any American rouge you have ever seen, though its form is the same.

You can use it, too, on BOTH LIPS AND CHEEKS. And thus gain a color harmony that's amazing in contrast to using separate lipstick and rouge—both, invariably, of different color. (Note picture above.)

Thus you gain the PERFECT Parisian make-up of today. And—it lasts for hours.

No more annoyance of constant making up. No uneven make-up. No caking, no smearing—and so exquisitely smooth that you cannot even feel it.

COMES IN TWO FORMS

All department and drug stores have it now under the name of Angelus Rouge Incarnat in two forms: Ordinary lipstick form, and in the charming "Little Red Box." Most women prefer the box form. 9 different colors. Same price as American rouges.

SYNOPSIS.

Richard Chandos and his wife, Leonie, former grand duchess of Reichtenburg, are visiting at their estate near Littai, in Austria, by George Hanbury, companion of Chandos in many adventures. Marya Salm, countess of Dresden, an expected guest, wires that she dare not come.

Prince Paul, ruler of Reichtenburg, had hoped to marry Leonie and swore revenge. Fearing for Marya's safety, because of her friendship for Leonie, Chandos and Hanbury, with their servants Bell and Rowley, go secretly to Virgil, capital city of Reichtenburg, where Marya resides. A peasant, named Ramon, whom they befriend, leads them through a secret border passage.

Marya tells them that she sent no message. Realizing the telegram was a ruse to lure them to Virgil, they are preparing to flee with Marya, when the prince appears. The border is so closely guarded that crossing is impossible.

Ramon is sought and he hides Marya and Carol, her trusted servant, in his house. Chandos and Rowley join a traveling circus. Marya sends them a message saying she is waiting for them in Bariche, across the border, where Carol is to take them in a car he has waiting. They recognize the car as Grieg's, the chief of police. Arrived at the inn in Bariche they receive another message from Marya, stating that she is to be pursued, but she must remain in Reichtenburg and not communicate with them.

Knowing that Marya, endeavoring to save them, has made some impossible arrangement with Grieg, they return to the border. Hanbury and Rowley pass, but Chandos is captured. He proves to the inspector that Grieg has betrayed his trust. Grieg, who has learned of the arrest, arrives and leaves with the prisoner for Virgil. Hanbury and Rowley, knowing their friend's plight, hold up and capture the chief's car. They drive to the estate of Baron Sabre, where they find Marya. Grieg they left tied to a post along the roadside.

Marya tells them that she was married that morning to Grieg—her price for their freedom. Hanbury, who is in love with Marya, is stunned at this news. Chandos sets out to find Grieg and kill him, to free Marya—but Grieg has escaped. Chandos returns to Baron Sabre's and sees Prince Paul arrive. Hiding nearby, Chandos hears the prince and Grieg arguing. Grieg is forgiven when he tells the prince he has a trap set to catch his prey that evening at the secret border pass, as well as Leonie, who is to meet them there. The prince departs. Chandos escapes with Rowley, after narrowly missing a bullet fired by Grieg. He meets a young peasant girl, Lelia, who tells him she will lead him to his friends. He intercepts a telegram to Grieg, from Littai—one of many which the girl has delivered. Lelia leaves Chandos at a mill where his friends are hiding. Rowley he finds asleep. Marya implores him not to kill Grieg. When Chandos returns from bathing in the mill pond there is no trace of Marya. He starts out to search for her, but a bridge which he is crossing gives way and he is saved from drowning by Lelia's cousin. She rouses George and Rowley. Chandos sends the two men to follow Marya. Lelia has fallen in love with Chandos, although he has told her that he loves Leonie. Lelia returns with Chandos to Grieg's car from which he had taken a part so that no one else could use it. Lelia drives with Chandos to Gola, where he leaves her, and finds Ramon, who leads him to the border pass.

INSTALLMENT XXXVI.

A WOMAN'S DEVOTION.

After two or three minutes we reached the side of the cliff.

All speech was now out of the question, so I shook the smith's hand again and hoisted myself to the ledge.

An instant later I was passing beneath the water with my face to the wall.

I have not dwelt upon this passage, because for the whole of that day I ought to put it out of my mind. There was little danger about it, but much to make it more frightful than death itself. Though the ledge was so rough and narrow I cannot pretend that it was easy to fall, but the penalty of falling was so monstrous that it obsessed the mind and I seemed to be bearding Nature in her very own lair, and she to be in a passion at my audacity.

Still, if the passage was shocking, it was not long—no more, I should say than twelve paces from end to end; and of these I had covered half when my hand encountered something which made me jump as though I had touched a snake. In a word, I touched the arm of another man. What was worse, I knew in a flash to whom it belonged, so long and so thick was the hair which covered the limb, like a close fitting sleeve.

This was the man who had betrayed us. No doubt he had been found by the guards before he had recovered from the buffet with which I had laid him low; and no doubt he had told them of the strangers who had used him so ill. And now he was in Grieg's service, only too ready and willing to help to gain his revenge. Had he known that it was I that touched him I have no doubt that in a twinkling his knife would have been in my back.

And then bent down and kissed it.

Hardly knowing what I did, I began to drag myself back the way I had come, but my knees were loose and my steps were so uncertain that no progress was ever so labored or deadly slow. Every instant I was expecting to feel that man's hand upon me, and when at last I staggered down from the ledge I felt as though I was emerging from the very closet of death.

This new ally of Grieg's was as formidable as Grieg himself. He was violent and ruthless and bore me a bitter grudge.

He had plainly retired, as I had, because he could not tell who I was, but my failure to follow him over must have shown him that I was no friend, and I had no doubt that he was now waiting, as I was.

If Leonie came she and Bell would walk clean into his arms. And I could do nothing to stop them, because he was waiting for me.

I sought to take comfort in reflecting that if Leonie was coming indeed she would not arrive for at least two hours and a half, but I knew in my heart that if by that time the smuggler had not come across I must myself go over and take my chance.

And now came a period of waiting which I can only hope that the wretch beyond the water found as distasteful as I. All vigilance was so much embarrassed by the darkness and the roar of the fall as to seem utterly useless and waste of time. Indeed, I had early perceived that my only chance of becoming aware of some presence was to watch the great sheaf of foam, for that would act as a screen against which anybody that passed between it and my eyes was bound to appear. To this end I drew back a little against the rock, so that at least no one could leave or approach the ledge without my seeing their movement against the white of the fall.

So for two mortal hours I waited.

I had just determined that if five more minutes went by but my man did not come I must essay the passage, come what might, when I saw a definite movement three paces away.

It was not that of the smuggler, for whosoever it was was approaching the ledge, and it seemed less thickset than Grieg's, though I could hardly believe that he had sent one of the police. Still, I cared not whose it was, if only they mounted the ledge, for once they were there I would instantly follow them up and let them serve as my buffer and meet the smuggler's knife.

So I stood waiting and watching for him to take the path.

Though now and again he stooped, he did not advance, and the better to observe his outline I fell on one knee. As I did so he turned to the ledge and I saw that he was not alone. Somebody—something was with him, crouching upon the ground. He had gone on and left it and it was coming my way.

The next instant Lelia's wolf hound was licking my face.

I was just in time to catch hold of her slim, bare leg. Even so she did her utmost to shake me off, till I put up my other hand to let her feel the steel ring which still was about my wrist. At once she ceased to struggle and when I put up my arms she let me lift her down.

As I drew her back to the rock she set her lips to my ear.

"I came to seek you. Listen. I have overheard the police by the side of the bridle path. Her highness came in by Elsa an hour ago."

Had Lelia been able to hear me I do not know what I should have said. Her tidings were electric, but for that moment the messenger had my thoughts. She had come alone with her wolf hound into this mouth of hell to share my dangerous vigil. She had passed the police and had started that nightmare passage to bring me news of my wife. Here was no sense of duty. Rowley or Bell would have done it, because they would have deemed it "their job." But Lelia had done it because she cared for me. I had no words that were equal to the occasion and was thankful for an excuse to hold my peace. But I found her small hand and held it in both of mine and then bent down and kissed it, in the hope and belief that she would know what I meant. After a little I put my lips to her ear.

"We will go now," I said, "but not by the bridle path. There is another way. It is so dark you must keep your hand in mine."

Now when Ramon and I had arrived it was not pitch dark and we had the fall to guide us up to the ledge. But now there was nothing to help me retrace my steps, and I could not see my own hand when I stretched out an arm.

Whilst I stood peering and trying to remember the angle at which we had made for the fall Lelia started slightly and stooped to the dog. The next moment she drew down my head.

"He is growling," she said. "I think there is some one beside us we cannot see."

I was round in an instant with my eyes on the screen of foam, but I could see no movement and nobody's shape. If the smuggler had crossed the water by now he was out of my ken. The obvious thing to do was to make ourselves scarce.

I found Lelia's hand again and we started off.

Though the spur lay but three minutes' walk, a quarter of an hour went by before I was touching its flank, and, to my great relief, the deafening roar of the water began to fade. A moment later the blessed miracle of silence was an accomplished fact.

A step or so further I stumbled upon a tussock and there, after standing so long, I was glad to sit down.

Good Morning!

The film, an adaptation of Susan Glaspell's "Brook Evans," is rather stereotyped stuff. Its lines are old-fashionedly melodramatic, as are many of the situations, and, while Miss Chatterton plays two rôles commendably, she is not at her best in either one of them. It seems to me that you can see her calculate each undeniably artistic move; can see her think. Thus—"Now, as I say this, I must let my eyelids droop—just a little—don't forget, Ruth, NOT too much!" . . . "I must say this line VERY SLOWLY, with emphasis on the 'the'"—and so on.

Naturally every player thinks—or ought to—but the observer should not be conscious of any busy mental processes.

In the present offering Naomi Kellogg—of an earlier day—is forbidden by her father to marry the man she loves and is ordered to wed another. She commits an indiscretion one evening (by a brook), which results in the girl later known as Brook Evans. Miss Chatterton impersonates both Naomi and Brook.

The father of Brook is tragically killed shortly after her conception. The other man offers to marry Naomi, and, as we say, "make an honest woman of her."

So is it. Mr. and Mrs. Evans go out west, where, on a prairie farm, Brook comes into being and in due time falls in love with a man of whom her stepfather disapproves.

The mother, determined her daughter shall not go through an experience similar to her own, tells Brook she needn't obey this man—who is NOT her father, though she has always believed him to be.

The girl's reaction to the revelation is a peculiar one—and I guess I'd better let the picture tell you the story from here on.

"The Right to Love" is nicely produced and some of the double exposure scenes are unusual. Paul Lukas, the only one in the supporting cast I cared a whoop for, lends tone to the production. Unfortunately he doesn't enter the action till along toward the end. Here is a man who has looks, ability, polish, and a decided "feel" for the subtly dramatic. Why on earth Paramount fails to play him up more is beyond this sinner's ken.

KIND: Railroad melodrama.
QUALITY: Fair.
DIRECTION: Quite good.
PHOTOGRAPHY: Ditto.
ACTING: Excellent.
SOUND: Eccentric when I viewed the picture. Something may have been done about it by now.
DIALOGUE: Plenty. Mediocre.
STORY: About a fireman who falls in love with the wife of an engineer who is his best friend. Developments are hectic, and far, far from convincing.
AUDIENCE APPEAL: Some.
REMARKS: Mary Astor looks perfectly beautiful. I would rather have seen the fireman killed than the engineer—but who am I?

SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA TO HONOR FOUNDER, THEODORE THOMAS

BY EDWARD MOORE.

On one program of the year, that of the Friday-Saturday series that falls nearest to Jan. 4, the Chicago Symphony orchestra presents itself in its stateliest and most dignified mood. For on Jan. 4, 1905, Theodore Thomas, the founder and first conductor of the orchestra, laid down his baton forever, and every years since that date Mr. Stock has conducted a concert to his memory.

Not only is the program a memorial to a famous figure in the history of American music, but it is invariably made up of music with which Thomas was intimately concerned, the finest that had been written up to the end of his active career. Thomas was ever a fighter for good music. He used to declare that if his patrons did not like the music he presented to them they must be made to hear it until they did like it—in other words, until they had become well acquainted with it. There is no other rule for learning how to like music. Who can say, then, that Thomas' aggressive campaigns were not in the highest degree educational?

So yesterday's program consisted of only three compositions, but they were all works upon which he had put his stamp as interpreter. The first was the overture to Gluck's opera, "Iphigénie en Aulide," which fell into the list of the orchestra's first season in 1891, and which he conducted four more times before the end of his life. The second was the third symphony by Brahms, which he introduced to Chicago before Chicago could claim its own orchestra, as far back as 1885 in one of the Exposition concerts on the lake front, not to mention the fact that it, too, was played during the 1891 season and several times afterward.

The second part of the program after the intermission was devoted to a work with which he was even more closely connected, "Ein Heldenleben," by Richard Strauss. On March 9-10, 1900, he gave this famous composition the first performance that it received in America, almost exactly a year after it had had its first performance in the world, which happened to be in Frankfurt, Germany, under the baton of the composer.

A concert such as this is more important than it sounds in the telling. Its reminiscent historical value is great, but it also serves to point out with special emphasis that Chicago has a great orchestra, an organization that is one of the city's glories. By no means the least point is the other reminder that Frederick Stock took up the work where Theodore Thomas laid it down, and carried it on to other continuing and unfailing glories.

$200 Will Aid Family Till Spring.

With only two more months of winter, the average cost of adopting a destitute family for this season so cruel to the poor has dropped to $200. A donation of $200 to the Good Fellow fund will provide food, clothing, heat and shelter until spring to some home that is now without these necessities.

The needy family awaiting your contribution has been recommended for Good Fellow assistance by social investigators of one of the larger relief organizations, the United Charities, the Central Charity bureau [Catholic], the Jewish Social Service bureau, or the Salvation Army. No part of your donation will be spent for overhead. The charity organizations contribute service and THE TRIBUNE pays the expenses of administrating the fund.

If you can't afford to adopt a family by yourself, maybe your friends in your office, or in church, or at your club would welcome the suggestion that you combine your donations to carry a cold and hungry family through the winter. Or, if this is asking too much, a contribution of even $1 will be appreciated by the family for whom it will help provide necessities now lacking.

If you decide to adopt a family your only obligation is to cover the monthly budget in payments to the Good Fellow headquarters, in THE TRIBUNE offices at Dearborn and Madison streets. Your family will receive expert supervision from trained welfare workers in its struggle to become self-supporting.

However, if you wish you can make a personal contact with those you are helping, visiting the home with one of the welfare workers. Appointments for these visits can be made through the Good Fellow headquarters.

De Paul university is helping the Good Fellow fund this afternoon with a benefit performance of "Alice in Wonderland," presented at the Civic theater in the Opera building, by the school's department of music.

British Cabinet Member Tells Princess' Good-Night

NEWPORT, Monmouthshire, England, Jan. 2.—(AP)—A story of how state affairs of the British empire were held up by little Princess Elizabeth, daughter of the duke and duchess of York, was told tonight by J. H. Thomas, secretary for the dominions. Mr. Thomas has just returned from a Christmas visit to the royal family at Sandringham.

"I was welcoming in the new year with the king and queen," he said, "but the feature that impressed me most was that when I was in audience with the king on state matters the queen entered with the little princess, who interrupted us long enough to wish grandpa good-night."

JOBS FOR MEN DECLINE, SO SALLY ISSUES NEW APPEAL

Sally Joy Brown of THE TRIBUNE'S bureau for the unemployed reported last night that her quest for jobs for the unemployed in the first working day of the new year had met with discouraging results. Yesterday saw the smallest number of offers of work for men in many a day.

"We simply must have jobs for men," Sally said. "There is plenty of work to be done around a house, and there is plenty of room for beautifying premises in Chicago. The majority of home owners, if they look around, will find at least a day's work for a man with a family."

The few jobs that came yesterday to Sally's department were turned over to the Illinois Free Employment service, 116 North Dearborn street, to be given to some of the men among hundreds waiting for jobs.

Mrs. D. H., on North Spaulding avenue, asked for a man to wash windows.

A place was offered for a married couple as caretakers of a home and cottage in Michigan. A salary is offered and expenses will be paid.

A company in Washington boulevard called for an errand boy. He must be a high school graduate. The job is permanent.

Sally Joy Brown again reminded the public that the worst part of the winter is ahead, and the worst of the suffering among the unemployed is yet to come. If you can find a job for a man or a woman call Sally at Superior 0100.

U. of Ill. Officials Resent U. S. Criticism of Frats, Sororities

Champaign, Ill., Jan. 2.—(AP)—University of Illinois officials, commenting today on the recent federal report concerning co-educational colleges, said there was no unchaperoned visiting in fraternity and sorority houses on the Illinois campus.

The report of the federal office of education said the presence of both fraternity and sorority houses on the same campus was a serious problem and listed "loosely regulated visiting" as one of the bad features.

University officials asserted today that all visiting is chaperoned. Every sorority has a chaperon who lives in the house, it was pointed out, and while fraternities do not have house mothers, unchaperoned women are not allowed on the premises at any time.

The regulations are not of the university's making, but have existed for years as a result of action on the part of the Greek letter organizations themselves.

Mount Vernon Replica U. S. Exhibit During French Colonial Fair

PARIS, Jan. 2.—(AP)—C. Bascom Slemp, American commissioner to the French International Colonial exposition, was host today at a dinner for Governor General Marcel Olivier of Madagascar, head of the organizing committee of the exposition.

The dinner was attended by Brig. Gen. Charles G. Dawes, United States ambassador at London; Norman Armour, American chargé d'affaires of the embassy, and others.

Mr. Slemp said the United States was erecting a reproduction of Mount Vernon for the exposition, because the house of Washington was not only a sanctuary of American history where La Fayette and other French leaders who fought in the war of independence were received but also as an indestructible monument to Franco-American friendship.

Einstein Ideas Called True, but Paradox

Naval Planet Gazer Gives Own Theories.

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 2.—[Special.]—Dr. Glen D. Draper, a naval astronomer of Washington, D. C., told the delegates to the American Astronomical association's 45th annual convention here today that the theory of relativity falls "far short of anything outside the exact quantatitve statement which it asserts."

Dr. Draper declared that a qualitative explanation of matter is needed. He advanced what he termed a mechanical explanation of the theory which he claimed would have satisfied the late William Thompson, Baron Kelvin, who died in 1907 when a world famous mathematician.

"Einstein's theory is perfectly true," said Dr. Draper, "as any exact statement, but not a single theory has been advanced which is free of having same inconsistency, mystery, or paradox, requiring that test of experience."

Dr. Draper advanced, as his qualitative theory, the following seven assertions:

1. Every material body is a center of a field of force.

2. For space to exist between two material bodies there must be a mutual disturbances flowing between them.

3. The flow of this field of force is the meaning of the flow of time; that is, time is measured by flow of space, which must always be measured indirectly.

4. Every material body is permanently at rest in its proper space, or every material body is an independent center of the universe.

5. In the space of any material body every other material body moves in an orbit, which, excepting for third and other bodies, is a rotating eclipse, having the given body at one of the foci. The space here considered is Euclidean except for distortions caused by the presence of other space center, material bodies. This is the mechanical explanation of Einstein's success in correlating phenomena of actuality without explaining them.

6—Since knowable time is but the measurement of relative motions produced among the material bodies by their proper spaces, the totality is timeless. Hence, nature is conserved, the law of compensation is a physical rtuth and "proper times" is retarded with distance.

7. Light, then, is the transverse vibrations of the space proper to a material body.

Miss Margaret Harwood, who is the only woman director of a research astronomical observatory in the world, the station at Nantucket, showed lantern slides which have the photographic light curve of Eros in 1930 which disclosed the researches in progress in the effort to measure the solar system by the small planet Eros, which this month makes its closest approach to the earth.

The body, only about 15 miles in diameter, shining with its reflected light of the sun, goes through its variation of brightness in 2 hours 10 minutes

Einstein Explains Trip.

Pasadena, Cal., Jan. 2.—(AP)—Dr. Albert Einstein disclosed today why he came to California.

He expects help from the scientists at Mount Wilson observatory and California Institute of Technology to solve the major problem of his mind. This is whether gravitation, light, electricity, and electro-magnetism are not different forms of the same thing.

"This question is the main problem of the present relativity theory. Interesting possibilities have been found to solve the question, but it is still uncertain if the ways being tried will be successful," he said.

Simple Life Seems Fashion for New Year

BY THALIA

ALTHOUGH prophecy is a pretty presumptuous business at best, it seems safe to predict that 1931 will mark an era of unostentatiousness, with the prevailing attitude a chastened but cheerful one.

There are numerous indications that society, as well as the rest of the world, is going about its business in a simpler and more unpretentious manner than that which has flourished for the last few years. Everybody is making the best of broken bubbles, and, whereas travel, entertainment, clothes, and all manner of expenditures are noticeably curtailed, there is little complaining going on at the realization that "life is real, life is earnest."

More fashionable women are joining the ranks of the wage earners and are working hard on their jobs. Parties don't last so late. Games, such as backgammon, Russian rummy, ping-pong, indoor golf, contract, and some of the other modest forms of gambling, are played with spirited interest.

A friendly spirit of camaraderie seems to be apparent at almost all fashionable gatherings, and everybody is exceedingly willing to be helpful. The charities, 'tis true, are not getting such large donations as formerly, but that isn't because of inclination on the part of the donors.

The outlook doesn't seem to me to be gloomy at all, but merely tempered to a state of moderation in which everybody is determined to enjoy things as much as possible.

Mrs. F. T. A. Junkin and Guests Plan for Tour.

Mrs. Francis T. A. Junkin departs today for Washington. There she will assemble several of the eleven guests she is to take on a month's cruise in the West Indies. The party will sail from New York next Thursday on the Rotterdam. The guests, to whom the trip really is a Christmas present from Mrs. Junkin, will include the Episcopal Bishop and Mrs. Freeman of Washington, D. C.; Dr. and Mrs. John H. Latane of Baltimore, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent M. Miles of Fort Smith, Ark.; Miss Rosalie Hollyday of Baltimore; Dr. and Mrs. Ze Barney Phillips and their daughter, Miss Sally Rowe Phillips of Washington, and Capt. Arnaud Ruemann. The captain's wife, Princess Victoria Louise of Schleswig-Holstein, is to go to Florida next week and will be joined there by her husband at the end of the cruise.

The Ralph C. Otis apartment was all abloom with roses and orchids yesterday for the formal debut tea for Miss Florence, who was paradoxically, the last bud of the season, and the first one this year. The debutante wore a frock of black velvet with a deep fitted bertha collar of white fur, and Mrs. Otis was in ciel blue crêpe. The married daughter of the family, Mrs. Robert Burns [Sarane Otis] here from her new home in Los Angeles, greeted the guests as they entered the drawing room and directed them to where her mother and sister were receiving. She wore black chiffon trimmed with shiny steel at the neck and wrists.

Miss Anna Morgan, who can entertain in royal fashion in the tiniest of kitchenettes, will have a tea party a week from this afternoon for Mrs. William J. Calhoun, and has invited 11 people.

Kathleen Lord's Verses Are Presents to Friends.

The poems contained in Miss Kathleen Lord's first volume of verse, published in a limited edition of 25 copies and given by the author as Christmas gifts, are herewith reprinted with the reluctant and modest permission of Miss Lord, who is nearly all of seven years of age.

Some Echoes from Bells of the New Year's Fete.

New Year's eve and the first day of 1931 in retrospect . . . Some of the people at the Cliff Dwellers' New Year's eve party leaving about 3 o'clock to go home and play backgammon until 6 in the morning . . . Connie Fairbanks looking very pretty in pale blue satin and a white fur coat and Jake Hamlet dashing from Rudy Knepper's cocktail party to the opera, then to the Aircraft party at the Blackstone, and on to other places . . . guests at the "Ashcan" party [called as such because of the irresistible phonetics of the hosts' names, and in no wise descriptive of them or the party which everybody agreed was one of the very smartest] having great fun busting the balloons in the décor . . . Gene McSwiggin's New Year's party on the Gold Coast, attended by the Ad Daweys, Frazier Jelke, his son, and the new Mrs. Jelke [she has been busy since her arrival here a few days after their marriage on Dec. 19, meeting the Jelkes and their friends and renewing acquaintances that she made several years ago when, as Nini Woodward, she visited Sarah Brewster.]

Mrs. Lytton Benello, looking even more than usually stunning in black velvet trimmed with ermine and with a little ermine muff with a spray of gardenias on it, escorted by the opera tenor, Mr. Colcaire, the Burt A. Massons, Helen Rend, and Eugenie Besserabo's husband [he directed the unrehearsed group in the singing of two of those little Russian ditties that sound something like one, two, three, four, and a brummph ending in a blood curdling yelp] . . . Johnny Lock's always clever and effervescent foolishness was missed from various local celebrations, as he and the Harlan Eldreds went down to the Hegelers' party in Danville, an annual and famed festivity . . . there was such a crowd at the William S. Monroes' party that the men had to leave their coats and hats downstairs.

There were several father and son box parties at the hockey match at the Stadium, also the Farwell Winstons with their own youngsters and two other little girls, the Harold Strotzes, who had with them Judge Lyle, and the Lester Armours . . . Laura Sprague, home from Foxcroft, seeing the old year out at the Tavern party, wearing an appropriately holidayish frock of bright green and one of the gold paper tiaras provided as favors . . . Col. Hackett having the energy and good spirits on the "morning after" to start out bright and early to go calling.

Latest Society Notes by Special Courier.

Recently learned . . . That Virginia Collins has, because of ill health, been persuaded to defer her wedding date, first set for February, until after Lent, and so she and Paul McNulty will plight their troth about the middle of April.

That admission cards are included in the wedding invitations for the marriage at the Church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel of Miss Helen Hurley, the Edward N. Hurleys' daughter, to William Andrew Ryan, to take place on Saturday, the 17th of this month.

That Louise Prussing and the Nicolas Remisoffs are to be among those at the speakers' table at the Drama league's distinguished guest luncheon on Monday.

That Mrs. Bryan Lathrop sails back to Europe today on the Bremen, and that Mrs. Ernest L. Ives, Adlai Stevenson's sister, who has been here for some weeks, and Frederick A. Poole Jr. are also sailing on the Bremen.

That the John Hertzes had a dinner party last Saturday for Senator and Mrs. Henrik Shipstead of Minneapolis at their ocean front residence at Miami Beach.

That Mrs. Stuyvesant Peabody, Mrs. Kim Salisbury, Mrs. Valentine Bartlett, Peggy Hambleton, Didi Schuttler, Beatrice Kirk, Beatrice Burnet Hersey, Mrs. John Ames, Mrs. Bruce Thorne, and Mrs. Press Hodgkins are to model things from Marjorie Letts' and Harriet McLaughlin's shop on Walton place at the tea dance at the Lake Shore Drive hotel this afternoon.

That about 500 people are expected to attend Miss Herma Clark's lecture and pictures of Oldtime Chicago at the Drake tomorrow afternoon.

That Miss Florence Taylor is home for the holidays from Rosemary hall, where she is teaching, and her parents, the Samuel Gale Taylors, have a most attractive week-end house guest, Mathis Burkhardt, a young Frenchman who is visiting in this country.

Insull Denies Charges Opera Fights German Singers in California

Blunt accusations of unethical and highly competitive practices hurled yesterday at the Chicago Civic Opera company by H. Joseph Kertz, president of the Pacific Sängerbund, were characterized by Samuel Insull, head of the local opera, as both amazing and absurd.

In a telegram to the Chicago impresario, Kertz declared that representatives of the opera here were employing pressure upon musical bodies and individual managers "in arranging appearances in San Francisco and Los Angeles which conflict with the dates of the German opera there.

"Do not understand your telegram or your charges. Shall await letter which you say has been mailed for further enlightenment of your complaint," read a message sent back to Kertz by Insull. Commenting further on the matter, Mr. Insull pointed out that the tour of the Chicago company will take it to the western cities almost a month after the dates scheduled there by the Pacific singers. That the Chicago company has been visiting San Francisco and Los Angeles at intervals for almost twenty years, and that the advantage, if any, lies with the sängerbund.

Italian Plot, Sung in German, Full of Tricks, Wins Applause

New York, Jan. 2.—(AP)—What appeared prospectively as a very trifle of opera turned out in performance at the Metropolitan tonight to be a musical nifty—probably one of the brightest novelties that staid stage ever saw.

"Boccaccio," by Franz von Suppe, was once a piece to delight Viennese audiences, but it never did very well anywhere else; never until tonight, when, under a Bodansky baton and with a hoydenish Jeritza in the name rôle, it caused white shirt bosoms to bob with unexpected laughter and dainty hands to crimson from the vigor of applause.

In the second act—doubtless to the horror of opera lovers who take their music straight—Maria Jeritza departed from the German text and sang a tinkly ditty—it was a ditty—in English, one verse of which invited Mr. Bodansky to come up on the stage and join in the fun. The maestro seemed surprised, although he may not have been; but a broad smile came to his face.

The characterizations were strongly reminiscent of burlesque—and the ladies in ermine and fox and the gentlemen in evening clothes seemed to like it a lot. The curtain calls after the first and second acts seemed interminable, with Mme. Jeritza receiving particular emphasis.

There was a joyous cast, with the comedians flopping from the German into slapstick English frequently for the sake of laughs; and there was a dog; he was led by a beggar; and round the dog's neck was a sign reading: "Blind."

"Nein," he replied, "das hundt ist blind."

The Von Suppe score sounded almost 1931 in its liveliness; and it was very well sung.

James Simpson Jr. to Wed Boston Girl During This Month

James Simpson Jr., son of the president of Marshall Field & Co., will be married some time this month to Miss Ella De Treville Snelling of Boston, it was learned yesterday.

Mr. Simpson Sr., asked to verify the reported engagement of his son to Miss Snelling, yesterday said: "I do not want to say anything about it."

The wedding will take place in Aiken, S. C., it was learned. Miss Snelling is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rodman Paul Snelling of Boston and Beverly, Mass. On the visit of the prince of Wales to this country in 1924 he danced with Miss Snelling several times when he attended the John St. Lawrence party in Topsfield.

Miss Snelling is a steeplechase enthusiast, seldom missing hunt race meets in Myopia, Norfolk, Raceland, and the Country club in Brookline. She has attended many meets in Aqueduct, L. I., and in the south. Mr. Simpson is known for his riding, having won the Culcheth handicap steeplechase at Haydock Park Jan. 5, 1928. He was a leader in developing Arlington Park.

Mr. Simpson was married Sept. 28, 1927, to Miss Alicia Patterson, daughter of Joseph Medill Patterson, Chicago and New York publisher, in the Patterson country place at Libertyville. Mrs. Simpson obtained a divorce from him in October, 1930, in the courtroom of Superior Judge John J. Sullivan. She testified her husband deserted her on Sept. 29, 1928, one year after their marriage.

Universal's Branch in Austria Closed as Film Is Banned

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

VIENNA, Jan. 2.—[Special.]—The Universal Pictures corporation has given notice of the dismissal of the whole staff of its Austrian branch, twenty-five persons. It announced today that action was taken as the result of the ban in Germany and in many parts of Austria on the Universal film "All Quiet on the Western Front."

The manager of the branch said today the firm would make no further films in German and would close down its Austrian branch, keeping only a small branch office in Berlin. Asked whether, if the Austrian provincial governments decided after all to allow the film to be shown, it would affect the decision to close the company's Austrian branch, the manager intimated it might.

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

WOMAN'S OR MISS' DRESS.

This lovely dress shows a slender silhouette with a wrapped bodice and nipped in waistline. The unusual treatment of the circular skirt, tapering from the waistline at the left side to a point well below the hips at the right side, contributes further to the idea of slenderness. Canton crêpe, wool crêpe, and velvet are suggestions for this model.

The pattern, 2822, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 39 inch material with ⅞ yard of 35 inch contrasting and 2¼ yards of lace.

Child's Thoughts Sometimes Leave No Surface Ripples

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

A mothers' and fathers' litany for the New Year, signed by Mrs. Bevans, will be sent on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

"When I was a little girl," said a young woman I know, "I longed for a doll's trunk. Sometimes it seemed as though it was all I needed to make me happy—a doll's trunk with a key, and a flowered lining and a tray and compartments, and that nice funny smell that trunks have."

"Wouldn't any one buy it for you?" I questioned, knowing her mother had died when she was quite little.

"I never asked," she answered, "and I don't know why either. My grandmother gave me everything I wanted. I didn't like to ask for things. I wanted so many things I wouldn't ask for."

"O, dear," said a small boy the other day, "are the Smiths coming for dinner again? Why do they come so much?"

This remark caused great surprise to his mother after it had been made several times, because the Smiths were great favorites of his.

'Well, you know you said the other day that you were so short of money and then the meat bill came and it was e-nor-mous and it costs you a lot to feed two more people all the time—and that's why I didn't want them to come."

They were in a toy store. The little girl's face beamed with joy.

"O, mother, could I really have it? That's the kind of a doll I've wanted ever since last Christmas!"

"But why didn't you ask me for one?" the mother told me she said to her small daughter.

"I don't know . . . you give me so many things . . . I don't like to keep asking . . . and I heard you say you wanted those lovely red slippers you tried on one day but you supposed you could never pay $18 for slippers . . . and . . . and . . . O, look at her, mother," and she held the doll against her shoulder. "She's just like a real baby."

Who says things they hear don't make an impression on children? Who says children don't think and feel just because it doesn't always show on the surface?

These are only three of a hundred of instances I could give.

Lewis Memorial Hospital Will Care for Mothers

The Lewis Memorial hospital, recently completed at Michigan avenue and 30th street, will be dedicated formally at 3 o'clock tomorrow with Cardinal Mundelein officiating. He will be assisted by many of the local clergy and Jesuit fathers representing Loyola university.

The hospital will specialize in maternity cases, and infant care. F. J. Lewis, wealthy Chicagoan, endowed the hospital as a memorial to his wife, and offered it to Cardinal Mundelein. The offer was accepted, and the hospital was designated as a unit of the Loyola School of Medicine. The hospital will be under charge of the Sisters of Providence of Montreal.

The hospital building formerly was the Lakota hotel and was transformed at a cost of approximately $600,000.

Food Talk.

Jerusalem artichokes are a most unusual vegetable. In no way do they resemble the French or globe artichoke. They have a texture closely resembling water chestnuts and because of this quality may be substituted for water chestnuts in chop suey and chow mein. The flavor of this variety of artichoke is often described as "earthy." Some people enjoy it while others loathe it. With the proper treatment, however, Jerusalem artichokes make very delightful foods. One way of counteracting the peculiar flavor is to combine them with vegetables of contrasting flavor.

For the last decade Jerusalem artichokes have been attracting the interest of the medical profession, especially of the specialists in diabetes. Instead of the ordinary starch which is found abundantly in most tubers, inulin, a substance closely related to starch, is found in artichokes. This inulin seems to be of a character that permits it to be eaten by those who are restricted in starchy and sweet foods.

Jerusalem artichokes may be boiled in their skins and peeled afterwards. This is one of the best ways of preserving the sweetness. If pared before boiling, the vegetable should be thinly sliced, little water should be used, and it should be boiled down almost dry at the close. Small tubers cook tender in 15 to 20 minutes. Season with butter or cream, salt, pepper, and a little lemon juice or nutmeg, if liked. The flavor is much enhanced by cooking in milk or in a good meat broth or boiled with 1 tablespoon minced carrot and 1 teaspoon minced onion to each pound of tubers. Or use minced chives, leeks, or celery. It may be baked with cheese in cream sauce or it may be fried.

In salads they may be combined with water cress, tomatoes, cucumbers, onions, peppers, and radishes. Serve with French dressing.

STEWED JERUSALEM ARTICHOKES.

3 cups cubed boiled artichokes
3 leeks or
1 onion
2 tbsp. butter
¾ cup veal or chicken stock
¾ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
1 tbsp. lemon juice
1 chopped green pepper or
½ tbsp. minced parsley
Parmesan or grated American cheese

Chop the leeks or onion and green pepper and fry until soft in the butter. Add the artichokes and remaining ingredients and stew until the stock is almost evaporated. Serve plain or sprinkled with cheese.

JERUSALEM ARTICHOKE SALAD.

On a bed of lettuce place equal quantities of thinly sliced raw artichoke tubers and cucumbers. Sprinkle with chopped parsley or chives and serve with French dressing.

ASPARAGUS SHRIMP RAMEKINS.

1 minced green pepper
1 tbsp. butter
1¼ cups medium white sauce
1½ cups diced cooked asparagus
¾ cup canned shrimps
1 tsp. lemon juice
Few drops onion juice
Salt
Paprika
¾ cup dried bread crumbs mixed with
1 tbsp. melted butter

Cook the pepper until soft in the butter, add the white sauce with the asparagus, shrimps, lemon and onion juice. Season highly with salt and paprika. Transfer to buttered ramekins, cover with crumbs and bake until brown in a moderate oven [350 degrees F.].

MEXICAN FRIJOLES.

1 pint red kidney beans
3 tbsp. butter or oil
2 good sized onions, sliced
Salt and pepper to taste
Chili sauce

Soak the beans over night and boil as usual in salted water until tender. Then drain, saving the liquor for soup. Melt the butter in a frying pan. Add the onions, salt and pepper and cook until yellowed. Stir in the beans and fry until they begin to crisp. Serve with chili sauce. A minced sweet pepper may be added with the onions.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Jan. 2.—[Special.]—The secretary of state and Mrs. Stimson gave a dinner tonight in honor of the retiring Belgian ambassador and Princess de Ligne who soon will leave to take up similar duties in Rome. The guests included the Japanese ambassador and Mme. Debuchi, the Hungarian minister and Countess Szechenyi, the Netherlands minister and Mme. Van Royen, the secretary of war and Mrs. Patrick J. Hurley, the assistant secretary of state and Mrs. Wilbur J. Carr, Mrs. Peter Augustus Jay, Mr. and Mrs. Chandler Anderson, Capt. and Mrs. John H. Gibbons, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Langhorne, and Capt. Regnier.

Rear admiral and Mrs. H. I. Cone, the latter formerly Miss Julia Mattis, niece of the late Senator William B. McKinley of Champaign, Ill., returned today from their honeymoon. They went south immediately after their marriage and then made a visit to the bride's parents in Champaign. They are in the Massachuettts avenue home which the bride has occupied since the death of her uncle. Mr. and Mrs. George Mattis of Champaign, brother and sister-in-law of Mrs. Cone, who were here for the wedding, returned to their home for the holidays and are expected here again next week for a visit.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

He's Lost Interest.

"Dear Miss Blake: They boy I love got angry with me for no reason at all. How can I win him back?

"STELLA W."

To leave without any apparent reason indicates loss of interest. Your efforts to rewin him would be useless.

Younger Friends Are Best.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am 17 and I am deeply in love with a man of 33. He says he loves me and he even acts like it. Please advise.

"HANDSOME."

Don't mistake the feeling for love, dear, and don't let it interfere with your friendships with boys of your own age.

Men More Fickle Than Girls, Say Five Out of Six Persons

BY DORIS BLAKE.

The vote stands five to one in favor of the girl as being less fickle than the man. Only six persons were interviewed by the Inquiring Reporter, three men and three women, so maybe that's not a fair test. But if you want a topic for light argument tonight when the boys come home, or around, you might introduce this one: "Who is more fickle—a man or a woman?"

With these cues, now, you can go ahead and have it out in an argument. But don't expect to get anywhere. You may as well use your religious or political beliefs and expect concurrence of opinion. And each is as fully entitled to his and her own opinion. But the fact that out of six persons picked at random, five should award the "jade" diploma to the man intrigues our interest, possibly yours.

If it is true, we women had better look to our laurels. Presently we will have no distinctions left. Just a short while ago men were awarded the palm as the marathon talkers. The conclusion was based on the finals in the marathon talker contest at a radio show. Only men survived the marathon talking test, the girl entrants dropping out before the contest got well under way.

A noted psychologist, however, recently pointed out that baby girls are more given to babbling than baby boys. Some one suggests that girls have to get in their talking early because their later training is bent to make listeners of them.

But to get back to the fickle charge. Would it not have been a more timely theme for argument, in the old days, when man proposed and disposed and the girl couldn't do much about it?

THOUSANDS RACE FOR SILVER SKATES JAN. 25

C. A. A. MERGER 'DEAD ISSUE,' OFFICIALS SAY

New Ticket Against Consolidation.

Plans for a merger of the Chicago Athletic association and the Chicago Yacht club have become a dead issue, according to officials of the C. A. A. The special meeting scheduled for next Tuesday at which the proposal was to have been put to a vote has been recalled by the board of directors.

A nominating committee, made up of 11 former presidents, has submitted an entire new slate of officers. The election will be held Jan. 27. No opposition ticket has been placed in the field, but nominations may be made up to Jan. 12.

Harmony Ticket New Lineup.

The committee's candidates are called the "harmony ticket." It is understood they are solidly against consolidation with the Yacht club. The list:

President—David B. Gann.
Vice president—Sidney S. Gorham.

The following have been nominated directors for three years: Conrad E. Spens, George J. Williams, James E. Bennett, Charles Heggie, and George D. Wilkinson. Peter F. Reynolds is a candidate for a two year term and Jos. A. McKenna and Dr. Frank Billings are one year candidates.

While these officials have not individually stated their views on club projects, it is understood that they have agreed upon the following program:

1. Rejection of the plan for a merger with the yacht club.

2. Rejection of a proposal to wreck the present building and erect a new one on the same site.

3. Rehabilitation of the present structure as far as necessary.

The only old official to be returned in the nominating list is George Williams. He is the present vice president. Mr. Williams was the only officer who fought the proposed merger with the yacht club when the plan came before the membership last September. The meeting ended in disorder, 700 in attendance refusing to hear the report of their directors. The board was known to favor the merger. A deafening roar of approval followed a suggestion to adjourn the session.

Board Members to Quit.

It was revealed last night that four members of the board have asked to be relieved of their duties. They are Charles R. Crane II., Frederick D. Corley, Judge Denis E. Sullivan, and R. Arthur Wood. The terms of Sheldon Clark, George C. Davis, Alex McKay, and Robert E. Peacock have expired.

David Gann, the nominating committee's choice for the presidency, was the club's chief executive in 1913. He said last night that, while he had not discussed the organization's program with his colleagues, he believed they were opposed to a merger with the yacht club.

"I presume they understand the sentiment of the members," he stated. "If the proposal to consolidate has any further support it probably will be put to a vote at the meeting on Jan. 27. In my opinion it is a dead issue."

The men who comprised the nominating committee were: Everett C. Brown, chairman; Hobart P. Young, secretary; George B. Dryden, William E. Dickey, John H. Wood, David M. Kerr, W. B. Simpson, William H. Powell, C. F. Thompson, Harold N. Hunt, Harold Dyrenforth, W. J. Mohr, Samuel N. Hastings, W. Rufus Abbott, J. Mayo Lenz, D. F. Kelly, Lucius Teter, Oliver M. Caldwell.

U. S. OLYMPIC ICE BODY TO ADOPT EUROPEAN STYLE

New York, Jan. 2.—[Special.]—Virtually abandoning all hope that the American style of speed skating will be adopted for the winter Olympic games at Lake Placid from Feb. 4 to 15, 1931, the speed skating committee of the American Olympic association has ordered that preliminary trials for the selection of an American team be held before Jan. 20 of this year in various sections of the country in the European fashion of two men racing in heats against time. This was learned today through the January number of Winter Sports, the official publication of the Amateur Skating Union of the United States.

Pitcher Henry Meine Asks Pirates for Reinstatement

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 2.—(AP)—Pitcher Harry Meine, who was placed on the voluntary retired list last season when he left the Pittsburgh Pirates on account of illness, will ask for reinstatement at once, he advised club officials here in St. Louis today. Meine said he has undergone a tonsil operation and is feeling more like his old self.

De Paul Basket Team Repulses Rice, 45 to 28

De Paul took the Texans in hand from the outset, holding Rice basketless for the first eight minutes while piling up a 10 to 3 lead. At half time De Paul was in front, 24 to 12.

The O'Connor boys, Bud and Joe, stole the scoring for the evening. Together they made 23 points.

The victory was De Paul's fifth out of six games this season. The Blue Demons will be at home again Monday evening, playing North Dakota State. Lineup:

LOYOLA, 27; MILLIKIN, 19

Loyola university's basketball team handed Millikin a 27 to 19 trimming at Loyola gym last night. The Ramblers led from the start, and at no time did Millikin threaten to overtake them.

Dick Butzen, one of the mainstays of last season's quintet, carried off the scoring honors with four field goals and three free throws. Schuhmann and Wagner each accounted for five points. Red Smith, diminutive forward, was high man for Millikin.

As the second half started, Millikin made a strong bid with three baskets in succession by Merkleback, Smith, and Holmes, while Wagner sank a free throw for Loyola. That made the score 21 to 15 for Loyola. Thereafter the teams battled on even terms.

Washington Prep Team Beats Horace Mann, 16-14

Gary, Ind., Jan. 2.—[Special.]—Washington High school, 1930 Indiana high school basketball champion, defeated Horace Mann of Gary tonight, 16 to 14. Horace Mann came out of a slum which cost it two games against minor foes last week to play the state champions almost point for point right down to the final gun.

MR. CURLEY PENS A SOCIAL NOTE TO MR. PEGLER

It's About Butlers' Ears and Beer Wells.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 2.—Mr. Jack Curley, the promoter of wrestling matches, who is aranging to take William T. Tilden II. around the country on an all comers' tour, takes advantage of a minor error of mine to strut his refinement and tell the story of his life.

"Dear sir, you bum," Mr. Curley writes, "in a recent article you described my butler as having cauliflower ears. That is a contemptible falsehood. My butler has not got any cauliflower ears. My butler is one of the most refined butlers on Long Island, and it would not surprise me if any day he should walk in on you and bust you one, as he is no mugg and will not take anything off muggs of your type.

Mr. Curley Goes On.

"You also stated that I started my professional career as a waiter in a beer cellar in St. Louis. That is, I think, what you were trying to say. You start off a sentence all right, but you run on and on like a hack driver's dream and it is very hard to make out what you are trying to say. Did you ever try setting pins in a bowling alley? There must be something you can do.

"If that is what you meant, however, you are not only a contemptible falsifier, dear sir, and if you want to known what else you are, come and see me. Or see my butler.

"The fact is that I was born in San Francisco in 1876. In 1893 everybody was talking about going to Chicago for the world's fair, so I got on a train and started for Chicago myself. A party had told me that if you bought a short ride ticket and pretended to be asleep whenever the conductor came around, you could ride all the way to New York. I didn't see how the railroads could make any money if the news of this got around generally, but that was not my worry and I bought a ticket to Sacramento.

Sells Beer on Scales.

"At Sacramento the conductor threw me off and I got a job in a grocery store which had an artesian beer well in the back room. People would bring their pitchers into the store and you would set the pitchers on the scales, turn on the pump and sell beer by weight. Well, for six weeks——"

Here there will be an intermission denoting the lapse of 8,000 words, resuming at the point where Mr. Curley arrived in St. Louis after the Chicago Fair.

"Since leaving Sacramento I had ridden many hundreds of miles higher than the uppers and lower than the lowers, but never in a berth," he writes. "Arriving in St. Louis, I crawled out from under and started walking into stores to look for employment. But I was very bashful and after I would get inside a store I would generally ask if Mrs. Brown lived there and walk out. But finally I came to a place named Tony Faust's, a big restaurant and catering place, where there was a sign reading 'Man Wanted.'

Makes a Slight Error.

"They put me to work running a dishwashing machine, but before starting I had a good meal. This machine was very complicated and I forgot to latch the door before turning on the steam. So when I turned on the steam the door popped open and the room was full of plates, teacups, and gravy boats, and I was unemployed again.

"But Mr. Faust said I could have a job hoisting barrels of oysters into his delivery wagons and in this work I met a boy named Gus Fredericks, who belonged to an Athletic club and was learning to fight. I became his manager and thus entered the sporting profession, resigning my job hoisting oyster barrels into the wagons. However, I thought Fredericks ought to keep his job as it was good training for him and, moreover, we needed his modest wages between boxing matches.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

ALABAMA VS. NOTRE DAME.

ALABAMA'S decisive victory over Washington State at Pasadena Thursday will bring forth from southern football followers, no doubt, claim for equal recognition with Notre Dame as national football champion. On the basis of comparative scores in their last games there is not much difference between the two elevens.

In an early Pacific coast league contest, Washington State beat Southern California by a point after touchdown, 7 to 6, the only reverse suffered by the Trojans until the Notre Dame debacle. That was a real defeat, 27 to 0. Then Alabama and Washington State, both undefeated, met and the Crimson Tide toog the Cougars, 24 to 0. That made Notre Dame and Alabama look pretty even, on the scores.

The Wake does not think Notre Dame partisans will be inclined to enter into an argument of pros and cons. They're satisfied with what Rockne's squad accomplished and have been awarded the Erskine trophy, purporting to designate the best football team in the country. Except for this latter fact Alabama, too, might be inclined to let the matter rest, but that Erskine award may start a bit of southern oratory on the subject.

The only way the question could be settled definitely would be by a contest between the two elevens, and that is impossible. Both Notre Dame and Alabama were good elevens. They proved that. That's as far as The Wake is going on the subject, no matter what we think, because we cannot prove what we think.

Points of View.

Harve: According to a news item the Bronx zoo animals had a big Christmas. Each was given his favorite dish. The monks had oranges, the elephants peanuts, and the python six live chickens. I've been thinking that over. It was nice for the python, but wasn't it a bit wearing on the chickens? Doc.

Am I a Myth?

[Answering Fancy Smith with many thanks.]

Am I a myth?—I'd like to know
Is Maisie real or this girl called Jo
[For that's the name on the letter that's sent
To collect the bills for my food and rent].
When Jo's my name, I peg away
Adding up figures, day by day,
Accurate, business-like, prime, and staid—
Every one says, what a model maid.
But let a sunset come along,
A springtime breeze, a thrush's song,
Some purple shadows on the snow—
What do they do to poor old Jo?
She quivers a moment, then is gone,
Swallowed by Maisie, who hurries on
To the land of dreams where poets sigh,

Get Philo Vance, let him reveal
Who is mythical—who is real. Maisie.

"Remember 1930."

In football, "Remember 1930" may attain equal rank with "Remember the Maine." GOOD football is played on the Pacific coast. It has been played, and it will be played there. But a few emigrants from these and other eastern parts had not been sufficently native sonned or native sunned so that the superman stories of gridiron prowess were getting on their nerves. Then along came Notre Dame and Alabama. It may be these emigrants at some future time under similar provocation will say "Remember 1930."

Jersey City Wants Clancy, but Draft Row Halts Trade

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Even though a worth while first sacker may not be picked up via trade, the White Sox may dispense with the services of Bud Clancy, who did most of the front door work last season after the Great Shires was traded to Washington. It is whispered that Clancy already has been offered to several class AA clubs, but nothing can be done until deals are made possible by a cleanup of the present draft muddle. If Clancy is sent away and no additions are made to the present roster, Manager Bush will be forced to give the job to Radcliffe, a youth purchased from a class D league. The Jersey City club is reported ready to grab Clancy as soon as the draft barrier is eliminated.

White Sox headquarters were moved downtown yesterday. For the next month the club's affairs will be handled from room 1212, Congress hotel, where Business Manager Harry Grabiner and Secretary Lou Barbour are in charge.

Almost all of the local baseball dignitaries have knocked off work for a month. Ernest S. Barnard, president of the American league, left yesterday for Florida. Manager Bush of the White Sox is touring toward the same spot. William Veeck, Cub president, is starting for California this morning. He will spend a month with William Wrigley on Catalina island.

Bucky Harris, boss of the Detroit Tigers, is threatening to institute a new training wrinkle next spring. He intends to make his pitchers keep their hands off bats and baseballs during their first week in the California camp. He believes it is more important to get their legs and wind in competitive trim than to let them start right in on their working arms.

Donie Bush could make up a fairly formidable football eleven from the ex-college notables now at his command. For a drop kicker he could employ Frank Grube, the catcher purchased last fall from the Buffalo Internationals. The lad starred in baseball, football, and basketball in three years at Lafayette. He was an end on the undefeated Lafayette eleven of 1926. Three times that season he registered drop kicks from behind the 35 yard line. While a collegian he learned his baseball from Bill Coughlin, formerly of the Detroit Tigers. He played the outfield, third base, and finally caught after the latter job became vacant through the graduating of Charles Berry, now backstopping for the Boston Red Sox.

CHARLES' LONG, FLAILING ARMS BEAT RENAULT

New York, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Jack Renault, a relic of the ring, again tried the comeback road tonight and found the way barred by the youthful but awkward Pierre Charles of Belgium. Meeting in Madison Square Garden before a crowd of only 7,500, the lanky Belgian clubbed out a ten round decision over Renault.

Like many of the recent fights in the Garden pit, the battle was not much to shout about. Charles, with his long reach, did most of the clubbing, while Renault did most of the holding on. The big Belgian won seven rounds, while Renault took one and two were even.

Fight Decisions

At St. Louis—Jackie Brady stopped Joey Medill [5]; Mickey Cohen and Mike Dundee, draw [8]; Marty Fields beat Joey Rivers [6]; Eddie Shea knocked out Andy Martin [2]; Tommy Groggan beat Eddie Ran [8]; Bushy Graham beat Davey Abad [8].

At New York—Pierre Charles beat Jack Renault [10].

Dr. Euwe, Colle and Michell Advance in Chess Tourney

HASTINGS, England, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Dr. Max Euwe of Holland, E. Colle of Belgium, and R. P. Michell of England were winners in the fifth round of the international chess tournament today. Capablanca of Cuba drew with Sir George Thomas in 26 moves. The Cuban dropped to fourth place, below Dr. Euwe and Michell. Sultan Khan of India had the inferior game with Winter of England.

N. U., NOTRE DAME QUINTETS MEET AGAIN TONIGHT

College Basketball

De Paul, 45; Rice Institute, 28.
Butler, 37; Arkansas, 21.
Loyola, 27; Millikin, 19.
Illinois Wesleyan, 26; North Dakota State, 23.
Yale, 35; Dickinson, 27.
Cornell, 20; Cincinnati, 16.
Buffalo, 42; Carnegie Tech, 31.
Kansas, 34; Colorado, 25.
Kansas Aggies, 39; Colorado college, 34.

Northwestern's basketball team will wind up its pre-conference engagements in a game with Notre Dame at Patten gym tonight. This will be the second contest between the teams this season, the Wildcats having won the first game at South Bend three weeks ago.

Basketball rivalry between the two schools is the equal of that in football, and another hard fought battle is anticipated. Since Northwestern and Notre Dame started their annual series in 1922 the Irish have won ten games and the Wildcats six.

Seek Fifth Straight.

The Wildcats have breezed through their early season schedule and need only a victory over Coach Keogan's quintet to give them a record of five straight before they open their Big Ten schedule with Michigan a week from tonight.

Northwestern again will be without the services of Bob Lockhart, guard, who is nursing an injured knee. His position has been taken over by Bus Smith, a second year man, who turned in a creditable game against Alabama. He fitted in well with the other members of the team and will serve regularly until Lockhart is able to return to the lineup.

Irish Eye Reiff.

Notre Dame will seek to stop Joe Reiff, the Wildcats' sophomore forward, who accounted for 26 points in their first game. Reiff's shooting has played a prominent rôle in most of Northwestern's victories.

The Irish attack will center around the two forwards, Crowe and Newbold. Both are accurate shots and excellent floor men. Starting lineups:

NORTHWESTERN.		NOTRE DAME.
Risi	L. F.	Crowe
Reiff	R. F.	Newbold
McCarney	C.	Decook
Smith	L. G.	Johnson
Marshall	R. G.	Baldwin

Referee—Fessio (Indianapolis). Umpire—Schommer (Chicago).

MAROONS MEET BISHOPS

The Maroon basketball team will meet Ohio Wesleyan tonight in Bartlett gymnasium in the fourth practice game of the season for the Chicago quintet. The game, which starts at 8 o'clock, will be played between the two concluding contestants of the University of Chicago interscholastic tournament.

Norgren's team should be able to defeat the Bishops if the Maroons play as they did against Bradley and Brigham Young in their last two starts. The game will be another test for Keith Parsons, sophomore center, whose work in the Brigham Young game held the Maroons in the running.

Ohio Wesleyan has lost its last two starts, being defeated by Michigan and Michigan State.

BRADY FLOORS MEDILL 5 TIMES; MATCH STOPPED

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 2.—(AP)—Jackie Brady of Syracuse, N. Y., 148 pounds, was far too good for Joey Medill of Chicago, 143, in a boxing bout here tonight. The bout was stopped by the referee before the start of the fifth round and Brady was credited with a technical knockout. Medill went down three times in the third round and twice in the fourth.

LOSES FIGHT

HARRY HOCHSTADTER.

Hochstadter, Veteran Sport Writer, Dies

Harry Hochstadter, one of the veterans among Chicago sports writers, died at the home of his mother, Mrs. Esther Hochstadter, 5521 Cornell avenue, at 3:30 yesterday afternoon.

For more than two years he had been in ill health, following an attack of pneumonia, but struggled against death so valiantly he came to be known among those in the sports fraternity throughout the country as "America's gamest invalid."

Was 43 Years Old.

The pneumonia attack was followed by a liver ailment and a heart leakage, which resulted in his sudden death late yesterday after his column had appeared as usual on the sports pages of the Chicago Evening Post.

He was 43 years old and for the last 20 years, while serving the American, the Journal, and the Post, covered every big sports event in this section. In recent years he had devoted most of his writings to affairs of the prize ring and the turf, although it was on a spring training trip with the Cubs in 1929 that his illness became alarming.

Funeral Monday Morning.

He got his greatest thrills out of the races and many times, when too ill to be anywhere but in an invalid's bed, made his daily trip to the race track, climbed long flights of stairs to the press stand, and seemed to improve whether or not he picked a winner.

Funeral services are to be held at 10 o'clock Monday morning from the chapel at 936 East 47th street. Burial will be in the Free Sons of Israel cemetery.

Pallbearers will be French Lane, Don L. Omo, Warren Brown, John Schank, George Ferguson, Robert Ruhl, William Blinn, and Charles Dunkley.

GARFIELD PARK SCENE OF ANNUAL ICE CARNIVAL

Add Division for Boys Under 12.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The fifteenth annual Silver Skates Derbies of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE will be held at Garfield park Jan. 24 and 25. The number of entries and prize lists have established these races as the greatest in the central states.

When the first meet was held 15 years ago there was only one race. But with the years the interest of thousands of Chicago's skaters increased so that additional divisions were provided. Last year there were six events, four of them for boys. And more than 3,300 boys and girls entered the races seeking silver skates, the award of the victor. The entry lists will close at midnight Saturday, Jan. 18.

Add New Division.

THE TRIBUNE, recognizing that many of the young boys have not had an equal chance in recent years [the boys' juvenile class being open to those under 14], has added another division for this year's meet. Boys of 12 and 13 years of age will compete in the juvenile class. Boys under 12 now will compete in the midget division.

Five prizes are offered in each of the seven divisions. A pair of solid silver skates is the first place award for each race. Silver plated skates will be given for second place, and bronze skates are third place prizes. Gold and silver medals are fourth and fifth place awards in each division. The club, playground, or school scoring the most points will receive a team trophy. Gold medals will be awarded in the three longest races for the skater leading for the most laps.

Enter One Race Only.

Entry is limited to one race. This means, of course, that the younger skaters cannot enter in older age divisions, but must skate in their own classification.

Following are the seven events, the distances, qualifying distances, and age classifications:

The first entry blank will be printed in tomorrow morning's TRIBUNE. Contestants are requested to print their names, addresses, club memberships, if any, and ages in pencil. Secretaries of clubs, playgrounds, and schools wishing to enter a team may send the entry in on a separate paper, but they must designate the ages for classification, and it is advisable that the names be separated according to the races.

Must Belong to Association.

There is no entry fee. However, all skaters must be members of the Illinois Western Skating association. Many of the skaters already are registered. Ages must be given correctly. If they are at variance with preceding registration, the skater will be suspended from all competition for false registration. The ages of all prize winners will be checked by birth certificates, baptismal, or school records.

West Chicago parks commissioners have granted THE TRIBUNE a permit to use Garfield park Jan. 24 and 25. The races also have been sanctioned by the Illinois Western Skating association.

Each skater who goes to the mark in the preliminary races will be given a bronze button as a souvenir. Preliminary races will be held Saturday, Jan. 24. The finals in all divisions will be held the following day.

FOUR HORSES ARE BURNED TO DEATH AT NEW ORLEANS

New Orleans, La., Jan. 3 (Saturday). —(AP)—Four thoroughbred race horses were reported burned to death as fire early today destroyed barn No. 8 at the Fair Grounds race track here.

The horses reported destroyed were Little Minister, Rusticate, and Ballot On, owned by W. H. Fizer, who managed the barn, and Honey Grove.

Three other horses in barn 8 and twenty thoroughbreds in barns 6 and 7 nearby were led to safety from the fire. Horsemen at the track said that the horses burned were valued at $3,000 each. The property loss was estimated at $25,000.

LINDBLOM BEATS LAKE VIEW, 29-25, IN EXTRA PERIOD

Morgan Park, Tilden and Bowen in Semi-Finals.

Herb Gunner of Morgan Park High school lived up to the marksmanship his name implies at the University of Chicago basketball interscholastic last night. With four seconds to play, he sank a side line shot that defeated Proviso, 20 to 19. It put his team in the semi-finals. The championship game will be played tonight at 9 o'clock.

In the other evening game, Lindblom won from Lake View, 29 to 25, in overtime. Tilden trimmed Parker, 30 to 20, and Bowen nosed out Crane, 19 to 16, in the afternoon games.

Semi-final contests today will bring together Tilden and Bowen and Morgan Park and Lindblom.

Morgan Park Takes Early Lead.

Morgan Park piled up a 14 to 8 lead at half time. It led, 16 to 12, at three-quarters, but at the start of the last period baskets by Young and Yuknis knotted the count at 16 all. Kephart sank a one handed shot from the side of the court, but Yuknis equaled it a moment later after a clever dribble. With one minute and fifteen seconds to play, Rehr put Proviso ahead on a free throw but Gunner's last second basket gave the south side team victory.

Lindblom held an 18 to 13 lead at half time and was out in front, 25 to 23, at three-quarters. Kowalski of Lake View tied it with a long shot, and it was 25 all when the gun sounded. Silverstorf's side shot on the first play of the overtime gave Lindblom a 27 to 25 advantage and Yanzanita's sleeper clinched it for Lindblom.

Tilden Takes to Air.

The rangy Tilden team played over the heads of the midget quintet from Parker, and though Boole Snyder and his mates fought like tigers, Tech's passes proved the undoing of the Parker lightweight five.

Bowen eked out a 19 to 16 victory from Crane. At the end of the first half with Crane leading, 12 to 11, Bill Haarlow, star Bowen player, wrenched his knee and had to be carried from the floor. Bowen pulled up to a 16 to 14 lead at three-quarters and Sandell made it 17 to 14 on a free throw. Moore, Bowen substitute, clinched the game on a sleeper shot after a pass from Celmer, who scored six baskets from the field.

Coach Jimmy Kitts and his Athens Texas High school basketball team will be in the stands at the semi-finals this afternoon. The Longhorns, winners of the national title two years ago, have been barnstorming through the central states. Lineup:

OAK PARK CAGERS HAND LA GRANGE DOUBLE DEFEAT

Oak Park High basketball teams handed La Grange a double defeat on the Villagers' floor yesterday, the undefeated heavyweights winning, 27 to 15, and the lights, 15 to 12. Lovett featured for the heavies with six field goals, while Christman was high scorer for the lights.

Bloom and St. Ann divided a double header, the latter's heavies, led by Jepson with five baskets and two free throws, winning, 26 to 15, while the Bloom lights trounced St. Ann, 22 to 2.

Riverside's heavies whipped Englewood, 30 to 8, but the Englewood lights evened the program with a 30 to 6 victory.

Busscher and Zuercher led St. George heavies to a 28-10 decision over Holy Trinity, while Dick Ruh and John Ryan featured in the St. George lights' 22-16 victory.

rounds for $200 a side and the police intruded on us, halting the contest. We were fined $100 apiece, which our stake just covered and the photographs of the two boys are still in the police headquarters in St. Louis as evidence of the worst punishment two fighters ever took in the ring.

Tells About Fitz's Fight.

"So I left St. Louis and now I must tell you about the fight between Fitzsimmons and Peter Maher on the Mexican Palisades opposite Langtry, Tex. The fight was to have taken place in Dallas, then in El Paso, and then in the bull ring at Juarez.

"But the United States minister in Mexico City got President Diaz to issue a decree forbidding the bout on Mexican soil, so a retired army doctor who owned a sort of no man's land in the river said we could fight on his grounds and started building the arena. But the cavalry came and threatened to burn down the place and finally we all got on a special train for Langtry.

"At Langtry the rangers were waiting for us to forbid the fight, but a fellow by the name of Judge Breen, who ran a saloon and was noted as a tough judge because he had hanged a great many horse thieves, said we could cross over to the Mexican side and take a chance there. So we crossed on a pontoon bridge up to our knees in water and as we were climbing the Palisades Bat Masterson, who was to be timekeeper, said to George Siler, who was to be referee, 'George,' he said, 'this Maher crowd looks very tough, but I want to promise you one thing. If anybody gets you I'll get them.'

Siler Makes Suggestion.

"Siler turned around and said, 'Bat, suppose you get them before they get me.'

"But Fitzsimmons just popped Maher one in the middle and another on the jaw and the fight was over in 45 seconds. Then we looked around and for the first time noticed that the Texas rangers were sitting on the palisades on the Texas side with their rifles over their knees, watching the fight like fans. I see where Maher is now a night watchman in Philadelphia.

"Now we come to the morning when I woke up at my home on Long Island and Georges Carpentier said to me, 'Jack, I have a friend in the guest room. We were at a dance but went away and thought we would just come here for the night so I put him up.

"I said, 'That's fine, George; who is he?'

"It's the Prince of Wales."

"'It's the prince of Wales,' George said.

"So I went downstairs and with my butler's assistance squeezed some oranges and hurled an omelet and took it up to the prince who sat up in bed while Georges and I sat on the edge of the bed, and had his breakfast. "And a bum like you tries to make a bum out of me by casting aspersions on my butler's ears.

"Yours very truly,

JACK CURLEY."

LEACH, DILLON END DRILLS FOR MONDAY BOUT

As an added attraction Promoter Mike Harrison will stage a 30 minute wrestling match between Lou Talaber, former middleweight champion, and Jack Malkoz, Rogers Park policeman.

Benny Goldblatt, south side Jewish featherweight, meets Harry Alberts of Chicago in a four round scrap. George McConnell, middleweight of Harvey, meets Al Ries of the north side in another four round fight. Hamburg Wiskany of Germany and Sammy Adduci will open the show.

Promoter Billy Cepak will stage his second boxing show in the Cicero stadium, 20th street and 52d avenue, on Wednesday night. He will have a ten round main event, a six round semi-final, and four fours.

Board of Education Ice Meet Set for Jan. 10

The finals of the board of education ice skating tournament will be held at Garfield park Jan. 10. Teams from eight districts will compete in nine events.

Shamrocks to Battle Duluth Again Tonight

Somewhat alarmed by the frequency with which his Shamrocks have been defeated by the Duluth Hornets, Tom Shaughnessy left hurriedly for the north yesterday with Stan Fuller, a reserve wingman, to be present at the second game of the Duluth series tonight.

With the arrival of Fuller, who will play tonight, Spud Burland, defense spare, will be sent home to comply with the player limit. Only twelve men are allowed to dress for a contest and with Burland in Chicago and Danny MacFadyen injured, the Shamrocks will be within the law.

Dick Irwin had his Blackhawks out on the Stadium ice for a long drill yesterday and has scheduled another practice session today, preparatory to the Detroit Falcons game tomorrow. Ten goals against Philadelphia on Thursday night mean little or nothing in tomorrow's game, Irwin figures, particularly with Detroit bringing to the Stadium the league's leading scorer and the season's find, Ebbie Goodfellow. With one year's experience in major league hockey, Goodfellow has scored 16 goals and had 3 assists for a total of 19 points.

Failure on the part of the contractors to complete the new arena in Buffalo as per schedule has necessitated the postponement of two more games in the American league, President W. F. Grant announced yesterday. New dates will be found for the Tulsa-Buffalo series booked for tomorrow and Tuesday nights. The Buffalo rink will be ready Jan. 13, it is promised.

These postponements give Tulsa a week of rest before it tackles the Shamrocks at the Stadium Tuesday. The Shamrocks on the other hand, are in the hardest part of their schedule, with seven games in ten days, five of which are on the road.

CARDS AND MILLS MEET ON INDOOR GRID TONIGHT

Professional football will move indoors tonight, when the Cardinals inaugurate the season at the 124th Armory, 52d street and Cottage Grove avenue. The Mills, headed by Pat Dowling, Tony Lawless, Walsh, and Foley, will be their opponents.

Ernie Nevers' place at full back is being filled by Cobb Rooney. Otherwise the Cards' back field is intact. Howard Maple will run the team from quarter back, and toss the passes. Bill Boyd and Gene Rose will play the halves.

BRUINS TO MEET PRO BASKETBALL LEADERS TONIGHT

The Bruins, Chicago's representative in the American Professional Basketball league, will play the league leading Brooklyn Visitations tonight at Broadway armory, Broadway and Thorndale.

Tonight's card will consist of two games, the first between Redeemer church and the Chase A. C. starting at 8 o'clock. The Redeemers are the present Church A. A. champs.

One of the features of the pro game will be the clash of Charley Murphy and Pat Herlihy at center Herlihy was a member of the Bruins until yesterday when his release was purchased by Brooklyn. Murphy has returned to the Bruins after an absence of several weeks.

BROKERS' LOANS ADVANCE; FIRST FOR 14 WEEKS

Hailed as a Sign of Liquidation End.

BY O. A. MATHER.

The first increase in brokers' loans in fourteen weeks was reported by the federal reserve board yesterday. It was an expansion of only $7,000,000 but Wall and La Salle streets hailed it as additional evidence that liquidation in the securities markets at least had about run its course.

The reserve board's report covered the week ended last Wednesday and therefore does not reflect the influence of the upturn in stock market prices yesterday. It was the more cheerful because the small increase in brokers' loans showed that the buying of stocks in the last week of the year was largely for cash by investors. The small increase, moreover, leaves the current total of $1,926,000,000 nearly $1,100,000,000 below the figure of four weeks ago and also $1,498,000,000 under a year ago.

The detail of the statement shows that interior banks withdrew $59,000,000 from the New York call money market, probably in preparation for their year-end statements. But such withdrawals were exactly offset by an increase in loans by New York banks for their own account. Non-banking leaders, including corporations, drew down $7,000,000.

Cheap Money Policy.

While the usual year end demand for credit for commercial purposes has subsided, the federal reserve authorities are maintaining their policy of cheap money in full force. This is shown in the weekly statement of the reserve system. The member banks reduced their borrowings from the reserve banks by $196,951,000, bringing the total down to $251,398,000. But this decline in the credit supply was practically offset by the reserve banks' purchasing $104,007,000 of bankers' acceptances and $87,000,000 in government securities.

The holiday demand for currency also receded, as evidenced by a decline of $58,259,000 in federal reserve note circulation. Deposits expanded $80,184,000. Gold and total reserves increased $19,152,000 and $43,951,000 respectively. The ratio of reserves to liabilities rose to 73.7 per cent, compared with 73 per cent last week.

The statement of the New York reserve bank showed a decline of $79,588,000 in member bank borrowings, which now total $61,898,000. But this was more than offset by the reserve bank's buying $59,476,000 of bankers' acceptances and $50,781,000 of government securities. Deposits expanded $65,669,000. Reserves increased $24,345,000, but the reserve ratio eased to 71.6 per cent, compared with 72.4 per cent a week ago.

Chicago Statement.

The Chicago reserve bank made no change yesterday in its 3½ per cent rediscount rate. Its report showed a decline of $8,870,000 in member bank borrowings, bringing them to $22,884,000. But the reserve bank bought $30,775,000 of bankers' acceptances and $6,968,000 of government securities. Deposits expanded $16,824,000. Reserves increased $5,041,000, but the reserve ratio ragged to 74.4 per cent, compared with 75.6 per cent a week ago.

Additional Chicago banks reported their earnings for 1930 yesterday. The National Bank of the Republic and subsidiaries had net earnings of $2,729,166, equivalent to 25.56 per cent on average capital stock and to 14.05 per cent on average invested capital. Net earnings in 1929 were $3,775,072, equivalent to 45.50 per cent on capital stock and 22.75 per cent on invested capital.

Harris Trust Reports.

The Harris Trust and Savings bank reported net profit of $1,641,187, equivalent to 12.26 per cent on invested capital, while net profit for 1929 was $1,630,154, or 13.51 per cent on invested capital. The Northern Trust company reported net earnings of $745,615, equivalent to 30.23 per cent on capital stock and 7.12 per cent on invested capital, compared with $860,345, or 42.91 per cent on capital stock and 10.11 per cent on invested capital in 1929.

Net profit of the Chicago Title and Trust company amounted to $3,186,529, equivalent to $26.55 a share on the stock and 8.6 per cent on average capital employed. This compares with earnings of $4,263,283, or $35.52 a share, and 12 per cent on average capital in 1929.

Lisman Dissolves Firm, Sells Seat on Exchange

F. J. Lisman, prominent New York banker and traction and railroad specialist, has sold his New York Stock Exchange seat. The seat and the business of the firm of F. J. Lisman & Co. are being taken over by Morrison & Townsend. J. B. Miley, resident partner of Morrison & Townsend here, said that the seat had been purchased for $200,000. Mr. Lisman bought his membership 25 years ago for about $20,000. Mr. Lisman, while not associated with any firm, will continue his activities in connection committees, directorates, and railroad work in which he is interested.

BIG COMPANIES BOOST WHOLESALE PRICE OF GASOLINE IN THE EAST

New York, Jan. 2.—(AP)—The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, effective immediately, has advanced the price of United States motor gasoline in tank car lots to 7c a gallon, f. o. b. Atlantic seaboard. This is an advance of ½c at Bayonne, N. J., and ¼c at Baltimore.

The Texas company has met this advance and also has met the advance of ½c of the Sinclair Consolidated Oil corporation throughout New England posted earlier in the week.

The Warner Quinlan company also has increased the price of United States motor gasoline in tank car lots to 7c, f. o. b. Bayonne, N. J.

The rise is the first important upturn in wholesale gasoline quotations since early last April. From that month prices have sagged almost steadily, with the exception of a brief period of steadiness in September.

Relief Plan Fails.

Tulsa, Okla., Jan. 2.—(AP)—Small independent oil operators of Kansas and Oklahoma looking to the big fellows of the industry for assistance in marketing their product received a setback today in the reported decision of the Prairie Oil and Gas company not to accept a relief plan worked out by a committee here. Despite failure of the negotiations, leaders of the industry expressed hope of an ultimate solution of the problem created by the Prairie's withdrawal Jan. 1 as the chief purchaser of the output of some 30,000 small wells.

The new Stanolind Oil and Gas company, subsidiary of Standard Oil Company of Indiana, began operations yesterday with headquarters at Tulsa, Okla., and district offices throughout the Midcontinent and Texas fields, succeeding the Dixie Oil company, the McMan Oil and Gas company, and the Midwest Exploration company in part of its territory.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 2.—Young 1931 got a rousing welcome on the stock exchange today. Everybody turned bullish for the occasion and prices were pegged up 1 to 5 points or more all over the board.

Railroad and motor shares were favored groups, but no section was overlooked in the buying. Various issues and one or two groups which had been overlooked for months showed signs of rejuvenation as befitting the occasion.

The news was somewhat more encouraging than it has been, including evidence of some picking up of industrial activity in many directions now that the year-end period of inventory slackening has passed and generally improved conditions in the credit field.

Bank Rate Cuts.

Following Wednesday's reduction of the bank rate at Boston similar action was taken by the Bank of France, with the rate of that institution now on a parity with the 2 per cent rate put into effect here last week. Here the call rate was dropped first to 2 per cent and then to 1½ per cent, following a renewal at 3 with funds to be had at outside sources as low as 1¼ per cent. Altogether the party was a grand success.

While their gains were not so sharp as those in some other department the improvement of the motor shares probably attracted as much attention as any other feature of the market.

The annual New York motor show will get under way tomorrow, to be followed soon by other yearly exhibitions. The motor trade has usually been able to get a good line on its prospects from attendance at these shows and the volume of orders taken, and until developments to the contrary are forthcoming the street prefers to play on the sunny side of the situation. Thus the opening of the show is nearly always preceded by a little bullish display in the motor shares and this year was no exception.

General Motors Up 2.

General Motors was whirled up some 2 points, which is one of the biggest gains it has registered in many a discouraging week. Nash was boosted 3¼, Hudson 2, Studebaker 2⅜, and Chrysler 1⅝ points. Auburn rose 4 points on a brisk buying movement.

Rail shares were helped by the progress being made in the negotiations for completion of the eastern merger project. New Haven jumped nearly 5 points, while New York Central advanced 3, and Atchison 3¾. Baltimore and Ohio, Illinois Central, Lackawanna, and Atlantic Coast Line were other strong spots in this division.

Oils were aided by advances in gasoline prices, Standard of New Jersey rising nearly 2 points and Standard of New York increasing its appraised value by half as much. Houston, Sinclair, and the rest moved up in the wake of the leaders.

As usual there were a few soft spots to the market. Crucible Steel was one of them, receding more than 4 points against the general trend. Detroit Edison was another. It gave up a good 7 points of the sensational gain it ran up in the trading earlier in the week. Chemical shares were under considerable pressure during the forenoon, Allied Chemical being forced down some 5 points, but they later rallied in fine shape.

While loath to jump at conclusions on the face of one day's good showing Wall street is looking for a period of quiet and much needed respite now from the heavy selling pressure which has borne the market down and down for so many weeks.

NAT. BISCUIT AND WHEATSWORTH MAY COMBINE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 2.—National Biscuit company and Wheatsworth, Inc., have come to terms in negotiations for the purchase of the latter by National Biscuit. An official announcement will be made soon.

National Biscuit will acquire the assets of the smaller company for 70,000 shares of stock, it was learned today. The plan contemplates the dissolution of Wheatsworth, Inc., and the distribution of the 70,000 shares of Biscuit to the holders of the 121,000 shares of Wheatsworth common in the proportion of 70-121 of a share of Biscuit for each share of Wheatsworth.

National Biscuit also will assume all obligations in connection with the small outstanding issue of 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock of Wheatsworth.

WALKER SAYS ACTIONS SHOULD REPLACE WORDS

New York, Jan. 2.—(AP)—The turn of a new year is an appropriate time "for actions to displace words, and faith to be supported by deeds," in the opinion of Elisha Walker, chairman of Transamerica corporation.

In a year end statement Mr. Walker said: "Recovering from recently prevailing subnormal conditions will be hastened, in my opinion, by what business men do rather than what they say.

"If the business men of America will apply themselves with renewed energy to the task of achieving prosperity, rather than awaiting its happening, I have not the slightest doubt of what the outcome will be."

EASY MONEY, DEMAND FOR REINVESTMENT BUOYS UP BOND MART

New York, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Buying, encouraged by the easy trend of money rates and reinvestment demand, fused new life into the bond market on the first business session of the new year.

Today's advance was featured by another rally in railroad obligations. Advances of 1 and 2 points were common.

There were a few large advances among utilities and industrials. Federal Light and Traction 1st 6s advanced 7, International Telephone debenture 5s, 2¾, and Postal Telegraph 5s, 6.

There was a good inquiry for European governments.

CONFIDENCE IN EXISTING PRICES NEEDED: ERSKINE

New York, Jan. 2.—A. R. Erskine, president of the Studebaker corporation, believes that the country needs leadership which will establish confidence in existing prices.

In a telegram today to S. A. Miles, general manager of the 1931 New York auto show, Mr. Erskine, who also is a member of the show committee of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, said that whenever consumers and investors have convincing evidence that prices have reached bottom, increased buying will begin and the machinery of production, distribution and employment will function in a more normal manner.

CHICAGO STOCKS START NEW YEAR WITH AN UPTURN

Strength in N. Y. Market Sign for Advance.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Traders on the Chicago exchange watched the big board tape yesterday for their cue on how to begin the year. It was a little late in coming, but before the day was out stocks were marshalled into bullish formation and higher prices resulted generally throughout the list.

Up to noon the market here had given a good example of loafing. It was plainly waiting for orders. When the New York tape began to record unmistakable evidence of strength it was the signal for a general bidding up of prices here.

Lead Movement.

Motor and accessory shares, utilities and a group of miscellaneous issues furnished the leadership in the forward movement. Those issues which benefited from the last minute marking up process of Wednesday were well in the background. The majority of them were not traded in. Buyers shied at the ask prices and the best bids were well under previous closing quotations. Two of the issues which had experienced sharp gains, Allied Products and Electrical Household, were traded in at moderately lower prices.

Cities Strong Spots.

Conspicuous strong spots included Borg Warner, Bendix, Insull Utility, Middle West and U. S. Gypsum, Creditable improvement was made also by Majestic, Morgan Litograph and Lynch corporation. In the bond group strength was shown by Insull 6s and Chicago Railway 5s. The par value of the Insull issues traded in was $32,000.

Total stock sale amounted to only 134,000 shares. The trading pace had been extremely slow in the early dealings, but increased somewhat as the market swung up. The increase in activity on the upturn was interpreted as showing a favorable technical position

Difficult to Judge.

The extent of the January reinvestment was difficult to judge. Certainly early in the day the market gave no convincing evidence that any such buying was going on in the common shares. The number of preferred stocks traded in, however, indicated that some reinvesting was taking place in those securities. Volume in these issues was light, however. Standard Public Service A stock, on transacations involving only 150 shares, was marked up 3 points to 9.

Announcement of the acquisition of the Hobart Light and Power company, which operates in Hobart, Ind., was made yesterday by officials of the Midland United company. Lycoming Manufacturing company, Auburn subsidiary, reports the receipt of orders worth $100,000 for engines for immediate delivery.

MANIPULATION OF BANK OF U. S. FUNDS IS TOLD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 2.—Saul Singer, executive vice president of the closed Bank of the United States, related on the witness stand today the details of complicated financial transactions by which the subsidiary companies of that institution received large amounts of the bank's money in ways that did not show on the records of the bank itself.

Mr. Singer was the only witness at the opening session of a bankruptcy hearing before Referee Robert P. Stephenson into the affairs of the bankrupt subsidiaries.

An illustration of how bank directors and officers, who also controlled the affiliated companies, did business was given by Mr Singer in his explanation of the repayment to the bank of $8,000,000 jointly owned it by Bankus corporation and City Financial corporation.

Bankus corporation and City Financial had on the books as assets real estate equities totaling $4,000,000. They had these properties appraised in December, 1929, two months after the market collapse. The appraisal resulted in a report valuing the properties at $8,000,000. Bankus and City Financial then sold their equities to others of the fifty-two affiliated corporations for $8,000,000. These other subsidiaries borrowed the money from the Bank of the United States to make the payments to City Financial and Bankus.

Bankus then took the $8,000,000 and paid its debt to the Bank of the United States.

Illinois Central Railroad Gets $950,721 Tax Refund

Woolworth company was also announced. The Woolworth company was refunded $492,886 of the amount involved, credit on tax accounts for $1,597,609 was given and the remainder, as yet unpaid, was abated.

Hogs and lambs scored another advance on moderately small receipts, while cattle moved slowly at the week's 50c to $1.00 decline. The hog market, however, was erratic on the upgrade, prices ranging from steady to 20c higher, with light and light butchers showing most strength.

Extreme weights and packing sows were slow and barely steady, indicating a rapidly narrowing outlet for lard hogs. The extreme top for light weights reached $8.35, highest since Monday, while the general average advanced 10c at $7.75.

Bids of $8.70 for light weights for delivery during the last half of the month featured the unevenly higher market for hog futures yesterday. February contracts were bid $8.00, this price also covering hogs for the first half of March.

January light sold at $8.35. March mediums were offered at $8.15 and bid $8.00, while heavy were offered at $8.00 and bid $7.75. January heavy were offered as low as $7.50 at the close.

Fully 15@25c of the recent sharp loss was recovered yesterday, good grades of lambs selling 40@50c above the low point in midweek and within 10@15c of the highest level since middle of last October. Handy weights sold largely around $8.50, several loads to packers and shippers reaching $8.65@8.75.

Aged sheep were scarce and 15@25c higher, handy ewes going at $3.75, while light yearling ewes ranged upwards to $6.00. Fat yearling wethers jumped 25c in values, one lot of 77 lb averages selling at $7.00. Feeding lambs were quoted steady at $7.00@ 7.25 mostly.

Yesterday's meager supply of 2,000 cattle, mostly common to fair quality, was hard to dispose of and some offerings were carried over on unsatisfactory bids. The steers eligible to $14.25 were absent and best available stopped at $11.25, while most sales were made within a range of $7.50@9.50. Cows and heifers sold on a "catch as catch can" market. Calves were unchanged. Stockers and feeders were weak and showed losses of 25@40c for the week.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 300 cattle, 9,000 sheep and 1,000 sheep, against 251 cattle, 6,540 hogs and 385 sheep on the previous Saturday and 336 cattle, 9,201 hogs and 1,073 sheep a year ago.

Probable receipts of hogs at Chicago for next Monday are estimated from 50,000 to 65,000. C. Southwick marked 65,000; J. M. Waters and S. Lund, 63,000; J. T. Brown and H. Wolfe, 62,000; M. J. Berkery, J. A. Bunyan, A. G. Welhener and G. W. Chandler, 4,000; R. B. Ellis, 58,000; W. C. White, E. S. Waterbury and G. McLain, 57,000; F. M. Sherwood, 56,000; W. T. Reneker, 55,000; H. Pattison, 53,000; and W. G. Olson, 50,000.

Ratify Amer. Agricultural Chemical's Readjustment

New York, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Stockholders of the American Agricultural Chemical company have ratified the capital readjustment plan. Approximately 80 per cent of the stock of the company has been deposited and stock of the new Delaware company is being delivered. Application has been made to list the stock of the Delaware company on the Boston and New York Stock exchanges.

COTTON CLOSES HIGHER

The Federal farm board is said to have sent warnings to cotton farmers that unless a drastic cut in acreage is made the 1931 cotton crop will bring relatively low prices.

An improved spirit was apparent among cotton traders yesterday and with lighter offerings after an early break of 2 to 11 points, buyers came into the market and absorbed offerings in a way that lifted prices sharply the last hour, making a close at practically the top, at net gains of 19 to 28 points on futures in Chicago and 18 to 28 points in other markets. Spot cotton in New Orleans advanced 20 points, equal to $1.00 a bale, and closed at 9.70c, with New York up 15 points to 10.15c, and Galveston and Houston at 9.90c. Liverpool was weak and closed 4 to 6 points net lower, with spot sales 3,000 bales.

SIDNEY SMITH BUYS NEW LAKE GENEVA ESTATE

Purchases Property of Augustus Curtis.

BY AL CHASE.

Sidney Smith, fond parent of the Gump family, who sold his Lake Geneva estate last September, yesterday bought another fronting on the same body of water. He purchased the Augustus Curtis place, at the east end of the lake, half a mile south of the center of the village of Lake Geneva. It contains about 5½ acres. There is a large frame residence, containing twenty rooms, with twelve bedrooms; also a greenhouse and caretaker's cottage.

SIDNEY SMITH.

According to W. F. Best & Son, Lake Geneva brokers, who negotiated the sale, the price paid was in the neighborhood of $50,000. The house was occupied by Mrs. J. Hobart Moore prior to its ownership by Mr. Curtis. She spent in the neighborhood of $35,000 in remodeling it six years ago. Its replacement value today would be approximately $100,000, according to Mr. Best. Of course, Sid Smith is going to do remodeling and improving on a large scale. It is hinted that he may make this an all year round home. The property lies between the Otto Young and Mrs. John R. Wilson estates.

Plans North Side Flats.

Martin Isakson has purchased the southeast corner of Hollywood and Washtenaw avenues, 85x125, from William Todt for a reported $15,000, and announces plans for a three story apartment building to contain forty-eight suites of four and five rooms. The estimated cost is $300,000. Gustav Fernits of John J. Kern & Co. was broker.

Oak Park steps forward with the first good sized realty deal of 1931. Yesterday the forty-two apartment building at the northwest corner of Erie street and Austin avenue, in the western suburb, lot 175x125, was purchased by John P. Sheehan from Ben Sternstein for a reported $225,000, subject to an incumbrance of $145,000. Joseph E. O'Connell of the law firm of Lawless & O'Connell, was attorney for the buyer. Maurice Burr represented the seller as attorney. Smith & Mikeschj and John Digman were brokers.

Percy Wilson Earnings Gain.

Earnings of $3.60 per share on the common stock, after setting aside $52,678 for the reserve fund, paying all charges, and declaring the regular 7 per cent dividend on the preferred, were announced yesterday by Percy Wilson, president of Percy Wilson & Co., real estate operators. The company reports no bank loans or other outstanding indebtedness and more cash on hand than at the end of any previous fiscal year.

The earnings of $3.60 per share on the common stock compare with $2.04 on the common the previous year, based on the total number of shares which were outstanding after the last common stock dividend.

YOUNG BROKER SURRENDERS ON LARCENY CHARGE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 2. — Robert Lee Harrison, twenty-nine year old stock broker, who disappeared last February after it was charged he had accumulated obligations of $1,000,000, surrendered to the district attorney today, broke.

He had been a fugitive from justice since March 28, when he was indicted for grand larceny on the complaint of a customer, Mrs. Edith Y. Robinson, that he had stolen from her $26,700 in stocks and bonds.

She said that he had persuaded her to let him buy stock for her by telling her that a stock pool was being formed by former Gov. Smith, John J. Raskob, William F. Kenny, and Michael Meehan, and that following the operations of this pool he would multiply her investment ten times.

When he was indicted Mr. Smith, Mr. Raskob, and Mr. Meehan all declared they did not know Harrison and that his story of a pool was pure fiction.

Harrison, the prosecutor said, left behind him when he fled not only $1,000,000 in customers' claims, but large bills for personal expenditures and a considerable number of bad checks. An interior decorator claims Harrison owes him $31,000 for decorating his office and his apartment.

If Harrison goes to trial, Messrs. Smith, Raskob, and Meehan will probably appear as witnesses against him.

Chemical Manufacturers Cut Prices on Soda and Ash

New York, Jan. 2.—(AP)—In an effort to stimulate business, it was reported in trade circles today that the chemical manufacturers had cut their prices on soda and ash and other products. Soda ash, which has a wide variety of uses, has been reduced during a fortnight from $1.31 per hundred pounds to 90 cents, and then advanced to $1. It was reported in the trade, however, that some producers have accepted business at 70 cents.

Caustic soda is selling for $2.20 per hundred pounds, compared with a quoted contract level of $2.90. Aqua ammonia has been reduced from 3 to 2¾ cents a pound.

Awards for the year to Dec. 26 totaled $4,482,344,900, against $5,750,790,800 for the full year 1929.

CORN MARKET SWEEPS HIGHER IN LATE TRADING

Action Corrects Recent Oversold Condition.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Long lines of corn futures sold out early in the week to establish losses for income tax purposes were brought back yesterday by commission houses and local professionals.

The market swept upward in an impressive manner with a heavily oversold condition being disclosed, and at the top May corn showed 5¾c over the low on Monday and 4¼c above the inside figure early yesterday. Closing trades were at the top with net gains of 3⅝@3¼c, March being 69⅝@69¾c, May 71⅛@71¾c, and July 72⅝@72¾c.

There was some selling of corn early by local operators, but the surplus in the pit was absorbed by commission houses. Toward the last there was a scramble by shorts and sellers of offers to protect themselves. Sentiment generally was more optimistic, and the strong upturn in the stock market had some effect, while the country showed little disposition to part with its cash grain. At the same time cash handlers reported a good demand for the offerings in the sample market.

No Pressure on Corn.

At no time during the day was there any material pressure on the corn market, and once started upward the market was never headed. Part of the buying was credited to a leading local professional who was active on the selling early in the week. Aside from the technical position there was little in the situation that was responsible for the upturn.

Strength in corn had considerable influence on July wheat, which advanced 3⅝c from the low point on scattered buying. It closed 3c higher at 65⅛@65¾c, with the old crop months ⅛@⅜c higher, March being 79¾c, and the May 81@81¼c.

Winnipeg wheat showed more strength than American markets in the early trading, but was outdistanced toward the last and finished 1⅝@2⅛c higher, although there was heavy buying toward the last which was attributed to Chicago interests. Liverpool was firm early, on the strength in Argentine markets on Wednesday, but eased later on reports of a sharp recession in the Argentine exchange rate and closed ⅛@⅝d lower. Buenos Aires lost ⅝d for the day, with the exchange rate off ⅝c.

China Buys Cash Wheat.

Efforts on the part of the Canadian government to broaden the demand for cash wheat seem to be bearing fruit. China bought a cargo of the grain from the Pacific coast during the day. Sales in all positions were finally estimated at 500,000 to 600,000 bu, including some durum to Germany.

World exports of wheat for the week promise to be small. A further reduction in supplies on ocean passage is expected. With the holiday season out of the way, and further unsettled weather in the southern hemisphere, it is generally expected by the trade that Europe will come into the market on a larger scale than for some time past. Since Dec. 1 Australia has cleared 10,320,000 bu wheat, of which 6,648,000 bu went to non-European countries. Argentine clearances for the week aggregated 1,255,000 bu, compared with 1,062,000 bu the previous week, and 1,503,000 bu, last year.

Oats Advance Quickly.

At no time were oats futures below the finish of Wednesday. With commission houses fair buyers prices advanced quickly, and the close was at net gains of 1⅝@1¾c, the strength in corn having some effect. March closed at 33½c, May 33⅞c and July 33c. Houses with northwestern connections were the best sellers.

While there has been more or less spreading under way between rye and corn of late, the former grain was inclined to lag somewhat yesterday and closed 1⅝@2½c higher with March 42½c and May 43¾c.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw was easier today and following a sale late on Wednesday of 25,000 bags of Cuban for prompt shipment at 3.25c, 40,600 bags of Philippines for January arrival sold today at 3.18c to local refiners.

Disappointing London cables and a larger European beet sugar crop estimated were responsible for the decline in raw futures, although the volume of business was of small proportions. Approximate sales were only 12,250 tons. Prices follow:

CASH-GRAIN NEWS

Expected improvement in the foreign demand for Canadian wheat materialized yesterday, with sales of 500,000 bu estimated in all positions, including a cargo to China. Local handlers sold 3,000 bu wheat, 40,000 bu corn, and 55,000 bu oats to the domestic trade, while 7,000 bu corn were booked to arrive.

Owing to the expiration of the December delivery trading in cash wheat is now based on the May, but there was no relative change in the basis. No. 1 red was May price to 5c over. No. 2 red ¼@1c under, No. 1 hard 2¾c under, No. 3 hard 2¾@2¾c under, No. 1 northern 2¾@3c under, and No. 2 northern 3¾@4c under the May.

Offerings of cash oats remain light and the "+" basis steady. No. 2 white brought ⅛@⅜c over May and No. 3 white under the future. No. 2 rye was nominally 4@7c over May.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

A more cheerful feeling dominated the speculative market yesterday and traders in grain are looking to the stock market to continue its leadership, which, it is believed, will materially help grains. All grains are considered as well liquidated and the disposition on the part of a few leaders, particularly in corn, to take hold had a good effect.

July wheat is attracting more attention. It is a new crop delivery with six months before harvest. Chicago does not get any new wheat of consequence much before July 15 and with practically all sales at present being regarded as strictly short sales, a few of the closest observers are advocating buying the July as investment on any good declines.

Latest estimate on the world's wheat crop as given by the department of agriculture is 3,784,000,000 bu, compared with 3,495,000,000 bu in 1929, and 3,973,000,000 bu in 1928. Russia's production is 1,157,000,000, compared with 703,000,000 bu in 1929. On this basis the world's wheat crop of 1930 was 4,941,000,000 bu, compared with 4,198,000,000 in 1929, an increase of 19.7 per cent.
